

that the Prosecution of my Design to treat of the System of our great Boards at Home, upon the Knowledge of which much depends, cannot draw their Resentment upon me ; but if, contrary to my Expectation, any Person in Power takes Offence at my Conduct, I humbly hope that on due Reflection they will change their Sentiments. And that such of our young Senators, who may take the Trouble to read this Discourse, will be pleased to accept of my Endeavours to explain to them the System of our American Offices, from which great Advantages may arise to this Kingdom in the future Conduct of our Affairs.
