

A New Departure.

David—Blessed be thou my Carmelite bride.

Song and Refrain—Oh, Long Hast Thou Wandered.

Abigail—

Oh long hast thou wandered an exile from Judah,
Compelled like a bird to the mountains to flee,
And oft hast thou pined 'mid the palm groves of Carmel,
And longed the fair hill sides of Bethlehem to see,

CHO.—Wherever thou goest my heart goes with thee.

I shielded thee oft when with peril surrounded,
I brought the rich fruits of the vineyards to thee,
Then tenderly cherish thy fair bride of Carmel,
Who loved thee in exile as though thou wert free,

Scene Ninth.

The Evening Before the Coronation

David—The Lord my shepherd is.

My wants He will supply;
In pastures green He leadeth me
The quiet waters by.

Yea, though my feet may walk
The valley of the shade,
No evil there shall come to me,
I will not be afraid.

For Thou before me still,
Thy rod and staff shalt bear,
Where enemies encompass me,
Thou makest my table there.
