PRISONERS BREAD FUND CONTINUES DISTRIBUTION

Subscribers to the British Prisoners Bread Fund will be interested in the report from the central prisoners of war committee that there is every prospect of early repatriation. Notwithstanding as is pointed out by this committee, and also by Fane Sewell, secretary-treasurer of the British Prisoners Bread Fund, efforts must not be relaxed in the keeping up of supplies.

In Mr. Sewell's own words, "There is much to be done for the prisoners at the end of this year at least, and the fund will be open to any help our generous-minded and sympathetic friends may give."

own Canadians will be coming back, let us hope in not quite such a desperate condition as those arriving in England, but in any event the prisoners bread committee will see to it that as far as funds permit every effort will be made to make them feel we are glad to see them back again."

LIFE IN TRENCHES WITH OLD BILL

True British Spirit Shown in Picture, "The Better
"Ole."

INTIMATE ROMANCE

Humor and Pathos of the War Intermingle
With Fun.

The tale of "The Better "Ole" the acquaintance of which all good pic-turegoers are now scrambling to make, is too well known to need description in print. The film play visualizes it in a new form.

This romance of Old Bill is just a simple story. His worth lies in his symbolism. Mankind is always searching for symbols to carry its thought.
Ole spells valor, Arthur spells chivalry, the Hun spells barbarism, the sky is heaven, the sea is eternity.

And the great war has its symbol in Old Bill epitomized for us, and for millions of others, the old army that was in being, and the new army that rose to the call. By the laws of association of ideas, Old Bill has come to stand for the war, as Tommy, and Tommy's people, know it.

He embraces the whole British army.
Not in his outward uncouth construction, but in what he stands for—dogged devotion to duty, unflinching humor and unfading valor.

It is the laugh in the face of death that wins great victories, the laugh, not of levity, but of pride of race, the common possession of British peer and British peasant. Surely Old Bill stands for this.

This adventure of Old Bill's, the adventure which became his romance, is only typical of thousands of incidents of the great war, but it will convey the message of cheer, the message of "carry on" of the men in the trenches to those who wait in the homes from which Tommy has gone, to our colonies and to our allies.

TRIBUTE PAID GENERAL MERCER AND HIS HEROES

Hon. Dr. Cody, presenting a portrait of the late General Mercer to the Queen's Own Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire at a notable meeting of the chapter yesterday afternoon, paid a glowing tribute to the Canadian corps. Especially impressive was his reference to the field cemetery where lies General Mercer with seventeen thousand British comrades. Canadians, said he, were characterized by willingness to accept any conditions for return home, and as will cause them to still further idealize the homeland they fought for.
One hundred and twenty-five members of the Queen's Own were on the chapter's honor list, whose memory must never fade and whose valor must be immortalized.

There was a large attendance of members in the flag-decked hall, prominent among them being Mrs.
George Royce, regent; Mrs. J. D. Allan, vice-regent; Mrs. Boyce Thompson, Mrs. H. Miller and Miss Lillian Wheeler, secretary.

Women of Canada Doing Good Work for Soldiers

Sir John Hendrie presided at Convocation Hall last night when Leon Joan Arnold of the Canadian Field Comforts Commission, who has been associated with Captain Mary Plummer at the headquarters of the commission in England, gave an interesting account of the work done thru the commission in England and France.

Lieut. Arnold said magnificent was not too big a word for the work of the women of Canada. She had recently been as far as Victoria, and was soon to visit the east, and everywhere she was amazed at what had been done. The Canadian soldier, she said, as far as comforts were concerned, was better looked after than any fighting soldier in the war. The 100,000 men of the Canadian fighting unit were the spearhead of the 2,000-000 of the British.

In her report Miss Arnold told of over eighteen million cigarettes and over thirty million miscellaneous comforts that had been handled by the Canadian commission. Miss Arnold made an appeal for more generous supplies for the men overseas who are now entering upon a most trying time both in garrison towns and as occupation troops.
