Expert Testimony

Perhaps we as prejudiced in favor of the Underwood. Our own claims may smack of bias. But here is an independent and impartial finding by the highest authority:

The Franklin Institute of Philadelphia (established for the promotion and development of mechanical arts), after a year's investigation, awarded to the Underwood the Elliott Cresson Medal-the highest award obtainable. The Committee's lengthy report concludes :

"In recognition of the very meritorious inventions embodied in the Underwood Standard Typewriter, and of its exceedingly simple and efficient details of construction, forming a writing machine of the most advanced type, with unsurpassed capabilitles and excellent make-up throughout, the Institute awards the Elliott Cresson Gold Medal to the Underwood Typewriter Company for the ingenuity, skill and workmanship displayed in the Underwood

With the Underwood user this verdict merely confirms what he has learned from experience. With the prospective user it "makes assurance double sure."

The answer surprised me. I would have expected a weakening, perhaps signs of demoralization, among the simple soldiers; firmness, resolution and confidence among the officers; but on the contrary.

"The simple soldiers are usually slow and heavy," was the reply.

Foe Soldiers Confident.

"The morale of the men is better than of the officers. It is a surprising thing that among the prisoners of the last two months it is the officers who acknowledge defeat."

My visit was to the south of the Somme, and I found the entire French army organization moved far to the east of where it was on my last visit. Former headquarters were abandoned and once more occupied by civilian inhabitants, while generals and staffs marched eastward.

their artillery. So good are the French aviators that German machines cannot get off the ground. In the whole long tramp from Soyecourt round by south of Deniecourt to Estrees we saw only two German filers while we could count twenty French at white we could count twenty French at any time vering over the German lines directing French artillery fire, Sees Air Fight.

Of two Germans we saw one was chased back to his own lines in incontinent flight, and the other was brough down by a Frenchman. The German was directing fire on a woods we had to cross, and we were busy watching him, wondering if he was ordering shells to fall on us, when out of the north swept a French fighting biplane, alimbian steadily. climbing steadily as he came to get above the German. The two machines were so close together it seemed they must crash when above the thunder must crash when above the thunder of French artillery and exploding Ger-man shells we heard the sharp rattle of mitrailleuses, and the German swooping down, turned and fled for his own lines. He sought shelter in the mist of higher levels, but the Frenchman, cf higher levels, but the Frenchman, hot on his trail, climbed always higher and drove the German down. At last coming directly over him agair, once more broke cut the crackle of the machine guns. Three volleys, and the German pitched suddenly forward, turned over and dropped nose down, straight for earth. He was some 1,500 yards up and dropped fully one-third of that distance before the pilot recovered control, straightened the machine out, and began to spiral downward, trying for a safe landing.

Like Wounded Hawk.

But the Frenchman was after him

But the Frenchman was after him all the way, and momentarily we heard the nasty spit of the mitrailleuse. We saw the German's left wing drop, saw him slip, fall sideways, catch himself, slip and fail again. It was like a wounded hawk I once saw fail from high in the air struggling to save high in the air, struggling to save

Like a hawk the German became Like a hawk the German became feebler. A little wisp of smoke came from between the wings; a tiny tongue of flame shot up, the wounded left wing crumpled suddenly. For an instant the machine hung still, the right wirg seeming to beat the air in a vain last effort. Then the Boche and his 'plane plunged upon the rocks."

BUTTONVILLE

NO SETTLEMENT YET.

No settlement has yet been effected in the claim for damages by William Goodyear of Unionville, whose engine was damaged by going thru a bridge a month or more ago, and Reeve Nigh stated a day or two ago that no negotiations were on looking to a settlement. He had not heard anything regarding the matter for weeks. Goodyear has bought a new engine.

MOUNT DENNIS Movement on Foot to Form

Town Improvement Society

A movement is on foot in Mt. Dennis to form a Town Improvement Society. The principal object being to organize a co-operative body who would be responsible for the planning and laying out of streets. sidewalks, roads and trees. Residents hold that a society of this description is urgently needed and that houses should be built in a line with each other. In other words, an organization is necessary so that some restrictions be made with regard to building and opening up streets, laying sidewalks and beautifying vacant lots in the business centre.

UNIONVILLE

Will Likely Impose Rate of Half Mill for Red Cross

The public meeting called at Union-ville on Saturday afternoon by Reeve Nigh of Markham Township with a view to perfecting the organization for British Red Cross work was disappointingly small, less than a dozen taking part in the conference. The farmers are said to be unable to get help of any kind, and the opinion was expressed that it would be useless to attempt a canvass of the township at the present time. It was also stated that the general opinion over the municipality was favorable to a rate on the dollar being levied the township to borrow the money from the bank at once, and council will likely impose a rate of half a mill at the next meeting of council. This will net something over $2000.
