reply to the Japanese terms of peace will not insist upon the two chief points—the indemnity and the cession in the control of Sakhalin. To surrender either is impossible. If Barön Komura should yield on these points are accepted as bases for discussion while still others accepted conditionally.

The reply is an absolute non possimus. Other points are accepted as bases for discussion while still others accepted conditionally.

The reply is rather long because in enumerating the conditions upon which discussion is admitted and those upon which consideration is declined, reasons and arguments are given.

The Japanese, plenipotentiaries are expected to ask for an immediate adjournment to examine and prepare this reply. Mr. Witte will probably intimate that the Russian plenipotentiaries expect the Japanese to display as much expedition as they (the Russians) have shown in the preparation of their response. Monday, therefore, is expected to be the day on which the real discussion will begin. Neither side ways to indulge in diplomatic sparring. The time for fencing is over and less than a week must decide whether a basis of peace is possible.

That the Japanese terms insofar as they touch the main points will not be with drawn or materially modified is the opinion of the most competent Japanese authority on the ground who will talk for publication, namely, Julio Kumpei Matsumato, a member of the Japanese parliament, who is here as a financial emissary of Japan and who is in close communication with Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira. The reasons he assigns at extremently interesting.

Mr. Fornes asserts, in brief, that his wife, a very beautiful woman, whom he married seven years ago when he was over fifty, and she was under thirty, wished the company of younger men before they were a year married, and that while he was willing to provide for her support quietly apart from him, she entered, or was led into a conspiracy with notorious lawyers to blackmail him out of a large sum of money, a quarter of a million cash down being mentioned.

Papers were filed in the suit last fall in Rutland, Vericont, and everything was kept seeret, the suit being held, Mr. Fornes says, as a club-over his head. The fact of the suit was published by a New York evening newspaper this week, having been accidentally ascertained in Vermont. The woman's charges are unspeakable, and the public is inclined to credit Mr. Fornes in his denial and in his asservation of a gigantic and hideous conspiracy on the part of the divorce lawyers. Not withstanding that, however, even if he proves the conspiracy, proves the falseness of his wife's charges and sends some of the harpies to jail, his public career is blighted for ever. ness of his wife's charges and sends some of the harpies to jail, his public career is blighted for ever. He was to have had the congressional nomination from his home district this fall.

Besides being the executive head of New York city at the present time, Mr. Fornes is the head of a great mercantile business, a number of various prominent clubs, a trustee and director of the Emigrants Industrial Bank, and is identified officially with many public charities. He is a native of New York of Dutch descent. The woman he married was Dora Lyde, daughter of a departmental head in his mercantile business, who has been known in minor parts on the stage. She is strikingly handsome.

Acting Mayor Fornes of New York in Sore Trouble.

New York, Aug. 11.—The acting mayor of the metropolis, Chas. V. Fornes, president of the board of aldermen, president of the Catholic Club, the most influential Roman Catholic social organization in America, if not in the world, millionaire, merchant, banker and philanthropist, is defendant in a suit for separation brought by his wife, who makes in her sworn complaint charges that would brand her husband as a monster of infamy, if they were true.

Fornes, who is 58 years of age, has always borne a most excellent reputation. In a long formal stalement to the public today he denied most solemnly every one of his wife's allegations, and asserts that he is the victim of the vulture gaug of divorce lawyers that prey on the wealthy of New York.

Mrs. Fornes recently has been on very friendly terms with Raoul Berthelot, grand-son of the late W. H. Beers, president of the New York Life Insurance Company. Mr. Fornes is mistaken absolutely, as your correspondent happens to know, when he says that she was responsible for, or knew anything about the publication of her suit, Neither she nor her lawyers had anything to do with it, and, in fact, the publication must have come as a very disagreeable surprise to them, as taking away their weapon of attack, if Fornes really credited statements about the attempted blackmail are true.

Meanwhile certain vile lawyers move a little nearer the cell door, although the harm they have done can never be undone.
