

ST. JOHN PARTY OVER ROUGH ROAD TO ST. STEPHEN

J. A. Pugsley and Malcolm Mackay Made Trip in Four Hours, and Found Only Few Good Bits.

Wednesday, June 26. St. Stephen, June 26.—J. A. Pugsley and Malcolm Mackay, Jr., made a record run by automobile over the rough road between St. John and St. Stephen on last Friday, and covered the distance in four hours.

Interviewed by a Telegraph reporter here, Mr. Pugsley said that the road was a rule were in a wretched condition and he remarked that with the exception of the fairly good stretch for a few miles out of St. John, the only pieces fit for motoring were the sections between Leppaux and St. George, and the highway near St. Stephen.

Mr. Pugsley said that the superintendents of these sections deserved great credit for their care and satisfactory results, and he added that if the roads in general were kept in such excellent condition, tourists would motor here from the United States in much larger number than come at present.

Speaking of tourists, Mr. Pugsley said that the New Brunswick Automobile Association had effected good work in making travel less trying for strangers, and he called attention to the road signs which had been put up only after the expenditure of time and trouble by Percy W. Thomson for the association.

"These signs," said Mr. Pugsley, "all in a long felt want, and as it is difficult to travel, Mr. Thomson deserves the thanks of all motorists for his trouble."

The Optimists.

(The Christian Science Monitor.) In a recent reprint of verses popular a generation ago, some lyric, some dandiac, it was found that nearly every one of them contained a sign or a sob. All had to do with the sun and the sea. What the old-time reporter would have called a "general air of gloom" pervaded the rhymes. "Not so in this day and generation!" Quite the contrary. Take at random some poems, verses, rhymes now current in the daily press of the United States. Says one, in the opening stanza:

Hang on! Hang on! No matter what they say, no matter what they say, Push on! Sing on! Things will come your way. Sitting down and sighing never helps a bit; Best way to get there is by keeping up your grit.

Says another:

There are just as many good fish in the sea As ever were caught in a net; And anglers all over the world will agree The best one is swimming there yet.

So do not repine If instead of your line Shows no sign that there's anything tugging; Just stick to your work, Don't weaken or shrink; For nothing will come without plugging.

And another:

There are men who do and men who don't; Some men they will and others won't; But pluck will win in every line— Pluck and effort make strong combine.

Yet another:

If you're on the gloomy side, Get a transfer; If you're inclined to fret and pine, Get a transfer; Get off the track of doubt and gloom— Get on the Sunshine train—there's room! Get a transfer.

And here is one from Nixon Waterman:

Go in and do the best you can, Nor waste your time in sighing; The mind's the measure of the man.

And strength is born of trying, And though you meet a sad reverse, The world is still your debtor; 'Tis only that some do things worse.

That some can do them better. These might be continued indefinitely. The prevailing note marks a striking reversion from the burden of song and odes of a few years ago. It reflects an optimism that is becoming universal.

ABE MARTIN

Rhubarb seems to grow bolder on a certain market. Some candidates put pictures on their cards, not others are in the hands of their friends.

CAMP SUSSEX NOW IN FULL BLAST

Recruits Soon Make Good Showing

Staff Officers Will Make Inspection On Friday

Four Patients in Hospital with Minor Ailments—Y. M. C. A. Tent on the Ground Proves a Boon to Soldiers—Military Movies to Amuse the Men.

Sussex, N. B., June 26.—The booming of the big guns from one of the artillery batteries awakened the citizens of Camp Sussex a little after daybreak this morning, and apprised them of the fact that this would be the real commencement of active training for the next two weeks. It was, indeed, a busy day. Everywhere about the extensive camp grounds uniformed men were engaged in drill in small squads and in companies, trying in accordance with the standard of efficiency, several so-called "awkward squads" being amongst the number.

In their large "boxsters" or straw hats, and khaki service uniforms of jumper and overalls, the men appeared on parade at the scheduled hour and they had finished this afternoon there was even in that short time apparently marked improvement in their appearance, bearing and drilling knowledge. In a few days they will be hardly recognizable as the same body of men who for the most part glommed into and about the camp grounds yesterday, if the results of today's manoeuvres in each branch of the service may be taken as a criterion.

Inspections Begin Friday.

The several inspections which will be made into the different branches encamped at Sussex will be commenced on Friday, when Lieut. Colonel Maunsell, director-general of engineering, will arrive from Ottawa to inspect the Brighton Engineers. Colonel Vandray, of Halifax, is expected in camp on that day also to inspect the men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, while Lieut. Colonel Helmer, director of munitions, will be here towards the latter part of the week for inspection purposes. Lieut. Colonel Miller, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, will inspect the cavalry next week and the director of artillery will be here then also. It is not yet known whether or not any of the other higher officials will visit Sussex camp this year.

Four Men in Hospital.

The Red Cross ladies of No. 2 Clearing Hospital, commanded by Major Ford, yesterday gave their first realistic idea of active service for this year when four patients were placed in their establishment under their care, although in no way also to include the men who were regarded as serious. This is the first year for this unit, which numbers 61 men, recruited from different Nova Scotia points, to be at Sussex, although several of the men were here last year with the general field hospital, also under Major Ford's command.

The scheme of providing for the establishment of a clearing hospital has been found to be more practical so the former corps was disbanded and the new unit organized. Although but a few days old, the corps has already been found to be more practical so the former corps was disbanded and the new unit organized. Although but a few days old, the corps has already been found to be more practical so the former corps was disbanded and the new unit organized.

This afternoon considerable time was devoted to the vaccination of some of the soldier lads, quite a number of whom were "scratched" with the needle. The lines of the unit are a model of neatness. Each tent and marquee is kept neat and tidy and precautions are taken to see that no refuse is thrown elsewhere than in the receptacles sunk in to the ground for this purpose. The surgical tent, hospital, dental, lecture marquees and other features of the lines are in commendable shape and the corps would even at this early stage endure creditably a rigid inspection.

Y. M. C. A. on Hand.

The big marquee of the Y. M. C. A. was opened today by L. W. Archibald, physical director of Acadia University, in charge and Arthur Chute, also of Wolfville. W. S. Jacobs, of Annapolis, and J. Arthur Green, of St. John, are assistants. This is an important assistance of life in camp. It is a combined reading, writing and resting place and a source of great convenience to the hundreds of soldier lads desiring to pen a few lines home or elsewhere. Free writing material is supplied by the association and books and magazines are to be found in the tent also, while a refreshment counter has been added this year as well. Meetings and song services will be held in the big tent each evening. The Y. M. C. A. churches assisting in this regard.

Another feature tending to the social interest of the soldier boys this year is the installation of a motion picture show in the "holow" or open air amphitheatre as arranged for by the militia department. A large crowd of soldier lads assembled to witness the first performance. Each show will consist of three reels and they will continue until next week with a nightly show.

A horse owned by Trooper Brighton, of the 8th Hussars, had to be shot this afternoon because of injuries sustained when another horse kicked him and broke one of his legs. The animal, which was carrying his owner in drill, stumbled on a gravel for a few moments and then dropped. A bullet put an end to his misery.

The horses in camp this year are a fine looking lot of animals for the most part. The number of them picked each evening after their all day labor is considerably larger than in any other year, and the allowance for their use is advanced the former allotment. A few of the officers have their automobiles in camp, but they have not yet been brought into general use, although a reasonable allowance is given in this connection.

The administrative staff today was composed of Major A. J. Markham, 8th Hussars, as field officer, Capt. W. T. McKinnon, A. M. C. orderly medical officer; Capt. G. Corbett, 28th Dragoons, M. O. at the range. Major J. B. Macpherson, of the 6th regiment, is posted as field officer for tomorrow; Prov. Lieut. DeWitt, A. M. C., as orderly medical officer, and Capt. G. C. Folsom, as range master officer.

Major R. H. Arnold, 8th Hussars, has been selected president with Major C. Macintosh, 28th Dragoons, and Capt. W. McKee, 19th Field Battery, as members of the camp equitation board.

GERMAN SPY GETS FIVE YEARS IN BRITISH COURT

(Canadian Press.) Winchester, England, June 26.—William Klare, a German dentist residing at Portsmouth, was found guilty at the assizes here today on the charge of espionage at Portsmouth, England's chief naval station. He was sentenced to five years' penal servitude for espionage and submarines, it developed at the trial, were the special subjects of Klare's research.

time until next week with a nightly show. A horse owned by Trooper Brighton, of the 8th Hussars, had to be shot this afternoon because of injuries sustained when another horse kicked him and broke one of his legs. The animal, which was carrying his owner in drill, stumbled on a gravel for a few moments and then dropped. A bullet put an end to his misery.

The horses in camp this year are a fine looking lot of animals for the most part. The number of them picked each evening after their all day labor is considerably larger than in any other year, and the allowance for their use is advanced the former allotment. A few of the officers have their automobiles in camp, but they have not yet been brought into general use, although a reasonable allowance is given in this connection.

The administrative staff today was composed of Major A. J. Markham, 8th Hussars, as field officer, Capt. W. T. McKinnon, A. M. C. orderly medical officer; Capt. G. Corbett, 28th Dragoons, M. O. at the range. Major J. B. Macpherson, of the 6th regiment, is posted as field officer for tomorrow; Prov. Lieut. DeWitt, A. M. C., as orderly medical officer, and Capt. G. C. Folsom, as range master officer.

Major R. H. Arnold, 8th Hussars, has been selected president with Major C. Macintosh, 28th Dragoons, and Capt. W. McKee, 19th Field Battery, as members of the camp equitation board.

High School Graduates.

Those who will receive their diplomas tomorrow are as follows: Gladys, Alice Bell, Elsie Belyea, Hazel Beatty, Edna Brann, Grace Brown, Barbara Clark, Emma Colwell, Ruth Corbett, Helen Cuthbert, Gladys Dowling, Vivian Freese, Helen Ganker, Grace Gibson, Florence Gillen, Ida Hannah, Faith Henderson, Jessie Jamieson, Dorothy Key, Elizabeth Keirnes, Hilda Kesteven, Lister, Anna Marshall, Elsie Martin, Helen Murdoch, Mabel MacDonald, Elizabeth MacMillan, Lottie Parrie, Dorothy Peckham, Margaret Peckham, Doris Princes, Helen Robinson, Alice Ross, Lillian Shand, Marjorie Staples, Goldie Williams, Marie Willis, Mildred Wilson, Harriet Wright.

Boys—Liam Anglin, Randolph Bennett, George Callaghan, Gilbert Climo, Paul Climo, Charles McKee, Warren McPherson, William Owens, Daryl Peters, Harold Ramsey, Ernest Robert, William Springer, Wilfred Tait, Edgar Wrenman, Arthur Willet, D. Gordon Willet.

High School Exercises.

The exercises in the high school will commence at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, with the principal, W. J. S. Miles, presiding, and a number of prominent men will have seats on the platform. The address to the graduating class will be delivered by Rev. F. S. Porter, pastor of German street Baptist church, and Gov. W. A. G. Leach, who will read the valedictory. Among the numbers on the programme will be a selection from Shakespeare's "As You Like It," by members of the graduating class.

In the evening the High School Alumni will hold their annual conversation for the graduates.

At St. Vincent's.

There will be a graduating class of thirteen young ladies at St. Vincent's school this year, as follows: Misses Mona Rose McGrath, Katherine Margaret, Alice Stephany Ayer, Annie Maher Jennings, Mary Kathleen Leary, Mary Geraldine Kane, Agnes Florence Horgan, Loretta Walsh, Kathleen Margaret Horgan, Margaret Margaret Higgins, Elizabeth Mary George, Teresa Geraldine Sugrue, Mary Josephine Power, Irene Agnes O'Brien, Helena Agnes Quinlan, Eileen Mary Taylor and Margaret Mary Driscoll.

The closing exercises will be held on Friday morning. The Saint Cecilia orchestra will furnish music and there will be an interesting programme. Features of the programme will be presentation of diplomas by Dr. H. S. Bridges; presentation of St. Vincent's gold medal to Miss Julia Cleary, Class '12, by Bishop LeBlanc; presentation of the Ellis gold medal to Miss Julia Cleary, Class '12. In the evening the graduating class will assemble in Keith's assembly rooms where a banquet and reception will be tendered them by the St. Vincent's Alumni.

A mixture of one teaspoonful of black ink to a tablespoonful of liquid gum will do much to brighten up a piece of straw rubbed well into the interstices of the plait with a stiff brush.

This cotton blankets are most practical for summer because they can be easily laundered. If hung double over the line they will need no ironing.

LEAVE YEAR AT SCHOOL BEHIND

Seventy-three Graduates from High School This Year

GORDON WILLET LEADS

Two Boys in Close Race for Highest Honors—Girls Not Far in Majority—Closing Exercises Tomorrow.

Thursday, June 26.

For the last few months the children in the public schools of the city have been counting day by day, the weeks and finally the days until they would be free from their school duties for the summer and tomorrow will see the realization of their desire. There will be only one session in all the schools and special closing exercises will be carried out. The graduating exercises in St. Vincent's and the High school will be the principal source of attraction on Friday and excellent programmes have been arranged in each case.

The graduating class of the St. John High school consists of seventy-three pupils, thirty-eight girls and thirty-four boys. This is one of the largest number of boys that have ever been in the class before.

The boys this year have made an exceedingly fine showing, one of their number, Dr. Gordon Willett, taking premier honors, after a close contest with another male student, Wilfred Tait, who passed in second position.

Mr. Willett's average for the year was 88.86. He has had a brilliant career throughout his school life and his work has been greatly commended by the teachers. He led his class in the high school entrance, taking the Corporation Gold Medal and succeeded in Grade IX in carrying off the Alumnae prize. In Grade X, he again distinguished himself by winning the Governor-General's Gold Medal, the best average on the special examination.

The others in the honor division, in order of their standing, as follows: Elsie Martin, Elizabeth Keirnes, Doris Princes, Arthur Willett, Lyman Anglin, Gordon Lingley, Gladys Dowling and Mildred Wilson.

General Manager Gutelius Also Said That Entry Into St. John and Fredericton is Still Undecided.

Fredericton, N. B., June 25.—An incident which occurred during the recent visit of Hon. Frank Cochrane and General Manager Gutelius here has been much discussed in business circles. A statement was made by the latter, during the visit, that he had been asked by Fredericton's citizens to increase railway terminals. A member chanced to get a remark that it would be necessary to prepare for the entrance of the G. T. P. into Fredericton when he was brought up rather sharply by Mr. Gutelius, who was connected by the source of his information.

The general manager went on to say that there had been no arrangements made whatever for the entry of the G. T. P. to either Fredericton or St. John. He had been decided to establish connection with the Valley Railway. The delegation did not derive much encouragement from the interview.

FEELING TRIBUTE TO LATE DR. JOS. McLEOD AT PRIVATE SERVICE

Rev. Wellington Camp Debated to Late Baptist Editor for Much Valuable Advice—Body Taken to Fredericton.

Thursday, June 26.

Feeling tribute to the personality of Rev. Dr. Joseph McLeod was expressed by Rev. Wellington Camp yesterday afternoon at a service held previous to the removal of the body from the home of the deceased. Rev. Mr. Camp spoke of his relations with the deceased and the deep impression he had left upon those he came in contact. He was an ideal man, kind, sympathetic and a true friend. He had been one of the congregation of the German street Baptist church of which Mr. Camp was pastor, and the latter said he always went to Dr. McLeod for counsel and it was given with the greatest cheerfulness.

Among those who were present at the service were Rev. H. R. Boyer of Fairville, who offered prayer; Rev. F. H. Wentworth, W. R. Robinson, Rev. A. J. Archibald, Rev. Dr. Archibald, Rev. F. S. Porter, Rev. M. P. McCutcheon, Rev. J. A. MacKeigan, Judge McKee, and Dr. G. B. Burns of Sussex, a very old friend of the family. The choir of the Leinster Street Baptist church was present and sang two selections. "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Abide With Me."

The body was conveyed to Fredericton last night, in interment will take place from the residence of his son, Hon. H. F. McLeod, at 230 Colcord. The service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. J. H. MacDonald, formerly pastor of St. John's street Baptist church and now of Ottawa, assisting Rev. Joseph E. Wilson.

Nothing is funnier than the way in which the Tory attack on the Senate has been handled out. Before the Naval Bill was sent to the Upper House, the Government organs in part indulged in patronizing compliments to the senators, praising them for their wisdom, experience, far-sightedness and public spirit. Sir George Ross was in particular singled out as an Imperialist of the Imperialists, and was told what a great thing it would be for him to help Mr. Borden out. Another portion of the Tory press, however, assumed a menacing attitude from the beginning, and "warned" the senators that if they dared lay unholty hands upon the bill that their doom was sealed as sure as the sun could be. The members of the Upper House neither responded to the patronizing compliment nor shivered before the menace. Neither did they lay violent hands upon the bill. They said to effect, "the people are the masters and absolute sovereigns in this Canada of ours. Both Senate and Commons are their servants. The sovereigns of the nation have no right to change the principle embodied in the bill. Therefore we feel that we have no right to pass it before there is a popular mandate upon it." And then a howl of rage and partisan disappointment went up to heaven from all Torydom. The Senate was to be abolished, root and branch, and the House of Commons was to be adequately expressed what was to be done with the senators. For a week or more the government press were loud with indignation, but words fail and hard words were "stealing red" from Halifax to Vancouver. But as in the case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

FIZZLED OUT

Tory Attack on the Senate Has Fallen Flat—No Attention Paid by the Upper House Either to the "Warnings" or the Patronizing Compliments of Mr. Borden's Followers.

(Halifax Recorder.)

Nothing is funnier than the way in which the Tory attack on the Senate has been handled out. Before the Naval Bill was sent to the Upper House, the Government organs in part indulged in patronizing compliments to the senators, praising them for their wisdom, experience, far-sightedness and public spirit. Sir George Ross was in particular singled out as an Imperialist of the Imperialists, and was told what a great thing it would be for him to help Mr. Borden out. Another portion of the Tory press, however, assumed a menacing attitude from the beginning, and "warned" the senators that if they dared lay unholty hands upon the bill that their doom was sealed as sure as the sun could be. The members of the Upper House neither responded to the patronizing compliment nor shivered before the menace. Neither did they lay violent hands upon the bill. They said to effect, "the people are the masters and absolute sovereigns in this Canada of ours. Both Senate and Commons are their servants. The sovereigns of the nation have no right to change the principle embodied in the bill. Therefore we feel that we have no right to pass it before there is a popular mandate upon it." And then a howl of rage and partisan disappointment went up to heaven from all Torydom. The Senate was to be abolished, root and branch, and the House of Commons was to be adequately expressed what was to be done with the senators. For a week or more the government press were loud with indignation, but words fail and hard words were "stealing red" from Halifax to Vancouver. But as in the case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between the two houses. Besides, Mr. Borden has already to all intents and purposes practically said that the Senate shall remain as it is, for he has declared that he will wait until, Time and the Grim Destroyer have given him a majority in that House to pass his rejected Naval Bill. In the meantime, of course, the same old "Emergency" will wait the event in the same old way.

case of the awful curse uttered by somebody in the "Ingoldby Legends," And now the fury has petered out "as ashes follow flame." The Senate still stands as the curfew curfew against it three weeks ago have sunk into silence that is grotesque. The mending of ending of that body is not as easy as it might seem. If a bill to this effect, passed by the Commons and the Senate, then it is likely that the Imperial Parliament would agree to the necessary amendments of the British North America Act. But there is no fear of the passing of the Senate no matter whether there is a Tory or a Liberal majority there. There are thirty Tory senators now in the House, many of them recently appointed and they are just as anxious and resolved to "hold down their job" as any who have ever held it. The Commons chamber, especially when the Government is contemplating raising salaries all around to $5,000 per session. Oh, no, they will not give it up. The Commons of course might pass a resolution asking the Imperial Government to amend the British North America Act so that the constitution of the Senate might be changed, but there is not the least fear of the Mother Parliament doing this without first making sure that there is a consensus of opinion on the matter between