Practically every business house in town was gaily decorated with flags and bunting, some of them quite elaborate. The parade was the first event of the day and while very short it was quite commendable. Last year there were a great many more floats than this and in addition to which many of the labor organizations and secret societies were in line.

The appearance of the fire department was excellent and was well exhibited to the consideration given by the committee in the contest for the decorations in the parade. The first prize was captured by the N. C. Co. which had two floats. One the prize winner was allegorical representing Miss Canada with the Yukon, the latest protege, at her feet. Canada was impersonated by Miss Laura Mitchell, who is a very welcome face of 16, and the Yukon by little Miss Ruth Wood. The decorations of the float were superb and all the accessories were superb. The other float of the company was typical of the mining industry, that portion of such upon which the country is placing its hopes for the future. On a platform on a large wagon were placed all the accoutrements of the quartz mine, all in actual operation. There was a small boiler in which steam was up, a steam hoist, a spool of wire cable and the first Borlough drill that many people of the Klondike have ever seen in the country. There was a large boiler upon which men were to be seen drilling with hand drills. Others were operating the machinery and it was a very lifelike scene that was enacted.

The parade was formed at the corner of First avenue and King street marching from there along King to Third avenue, thence to Church street to Fifth avenue, to Duggs street in South Dawson and thence back to the city along First avenue and by the grand stand where it was reviewed by the patrons of the day and the leading officials of the administration. Heading the parade was a band, then came the military division under command of Major Outburt. The subdivisions of the police being under command of Captain Wroughton, Captain Taylor and Captain

Howard while the Dawson Rifles were under command of Captain H. H. Hume, with Lieutenant Crook and Lieutenant Howard as aides. The bugler corps was in charge of Corporal Cobb.

Following the military came the Y. O. U. P. with 22 members, under command of I. W. O'Brien. The floats and fire department came next in the parade. On arriving in front of the grand stand the police and Rifles were drawn up in two long lines and stood at ease while the procession. Gordon addressed the crowd upon events pertaining to the day, including her whose memory will ever be a particularly bright spot in the memory of our nation's patriots throughout the entire world.

United States Consul, having in his speech in behalf of the citizens of this country now residing in the territory of the late queen he was referring to her memory was not forgotten by the subjects of Great Britain, than by the people of the United States. Pleading for peace, gas made to the cordial relations existing between England and the United States, their industrial and social progress, the fraternal relations referred to by Mr. Hume, the speakers were enthusiastically applauded.

Some 200 or more floats were under the direction of Mr. Hume, the Maple Leaf, some of them King and others, were in line. The floats were very numerous and the parade was very fine.

The royal salute was given with a will and they had had a very good showing of the parade in the territory. The game of baseball was played at 12:15 between the Vancouver and the Klondike. The Klondike won the game 4 to 1.

WANTS COALING STATION

Located at Dutch Harbor—Admiral Bradford Considers the Alaska Boundary as the Great Political Question of the Day—Trouble Ahead.

Washington, May 26.—Admiral Dewey has made a report to Secretary Moody recommending the immediate establishment of a coaling station at Dutch Harbor, Alaska. The president has approved the preliminary steps already taken. Rear Admiral Bradford is recommending the station and attention is invited to the great political question of the day, which is the settlement of the boundary between Alaska and Canada. There is plenty of evidence to show that the spirit of Canada in the matter is considered threatening. It certainly constitutes a strong reason why the progress of war should be placed at this point.
