He was brought up a Presbyterian, but at the age of fifteen was converted in a Methodist revival, was converted in a Methodist revival, and four years later was called, like Elisha of old, from the plough to the pulpit. His circuits became the centres of extensive revivals, and also many other fields where he assisted in special services. During his probation, Mr. Hunter spent two years at Victoria College, and shoutly after his ordination, on the 12th of July, 1882, was married to Miss Jennie Jones, of Esex, He was then by his own request trans-He was then by his own request trans-feured ito the Manitoba Conference where he continued in the pastorate until, the conviction of his call to evangelistic work becoming more intense the, in July, 1884, joined Mr. Grossley, and the two went forth, like flaming evangels, through the principal towns and cities of the Dominion, gathering thousands into the churches. THEY FOUND THE GUNBOAT

Several Chatham Antiquaries Inspect the Hull of the Old Scow

Which General Proctor Fank Near Pike. ville to Save it From the Americans.

The Chatham Historical Research Society, otherwise known as the Relic Hunters, took a prospecting jaunt up to Pikeville yesterday afternoon, to examine the well-preserved hull of the Canadian gunboat scuttled or sunk by Gen. Proctor, when, during the war of 1812-13, he was retreating before the advancing Americans.

Last June, Samuel C. Kearney, who fishes logs and things out of the river, located the boat while following his usual occupation. Lately, perceiving the lowness of the water in the river, Mr. Kearney realized that the gunhoat, which he had discovered, must be very near the surface of the water. | He informed President Jones of the Research Society, of his find and his belief. Mr. Jones at once called a meeting of the society to investigate Mr. Kearney's find. Four active members responded to the call of their chief. They were Pres. E. B. Jones, chief. They were Pres. E. B. Jones, Vice-president R. C. Burt, Assistants Thomas Armold and Samuel Kearney; also Photographer 'A. S. Park, whose duty it is to photograph all finds of the society.

In order not to hide under a bushel the valuable information to be gleaned from the day's investigation. The Planet was invited to ride with the party, and he trudged wearily along through the deep snow, buoyed up with expectancy. Photographer Park took several views on the journey up the river. Arrived at their destination, a hole was cut in the ice with the ice chisel which had been brought along, and as luck iwould have it, success crowned the farst effort. Within six inches of the water's surface a rib of the ancient warship was revealed. A huge snowdrift slose to the bank and directly over the sunken boat, had prevented the formation of ice of sufficient thickness to bear a man's weight and Mr. Kearney, in his anxieto to expose the boat to view, steppe holdly on the treacherous spot and an instant later his lower half had dis-appeared from view and he was floun-dering in the icy waters of the

He lost no time in scrambling out and this cool bash did not in the least lessen his zeal in the work. FOUND THE BOAT.

The whole party worked hard and oon exposed to view at least 24 fee of the boat's side, but this was not ac complished without some more col-baths. The ice, on which Mr. Jone and Mr. Burt were standing, gave warrang crack; Mr. Jones leaped to a place of safety, across the channel which had been cut in the work of exposing the boat to view, but Mr. Burgt unfortunately landed in the middle of the channel, where the water was both cold and wet. Clutching the ice on the other side, he scrambled hurriedly from his cold and perilous position. The section of the boat exposed to view was now carefully examined. It was found that the boat had been built of oa i. The ribs were in good condi-tion; the outside planking still re-mained intact, and was of two-inch oak. In some places the inner sheeting was still visible. Huge wrought-iron spikes had been used in the construction, and rows of these could be plainly

While the rest of the party were ex amining into the construction of the ship. R. C. Burth had been search ing around with a steel prod, and be fished out a piece of one of the oil ribs twelve, by six, by five inches. Mr Burt was highly pleased with his find and brought it carefully home.

WHERE THE BOAT LIES. WHERE THE BOAT LIES.
The remains of the ancient gun boat lies sunk at an angle of about 45 degrees to the shore. It is in the rear of the former residence of Squire John Delmage and about 500 yards above Pikeville bridge, on the South bank of the river. The mose of the boat had evidently been run against the bank when his majesty's ship was sunk, and there the boat lies to this day, its ribs showing up prominently like the skeletim of some buge and ancient morther of the deep that, having lived its life ran its nose into the shore and died, leaving its bare and ghastly bones for a future generation to find and to speculate on. The river is deep where the boat lies and although the nose of the boat is close to shore it is sunk in over five feet of water as Mr. Burt can verify, he having gone into the water as far as his waist without

Sam Kearney, who located the boat, follows up and down the river during the summer fishing up sunken logs. He found two anchors in the niver near Pikeville last summer, and he also located another of Proctor's gun boats, sunk in six feet of water near the old Fisher homestead up the river, The boat is now so covered with sand that it is impossible to tell much about it. march about it.

A REGULAR SPIKE MINE. Speaking of this boat, Thos. Arneld, who was of the party yesterday, said "I can remember well when a boy seeing the floor in one of the rooms in my grandfather's, Louis Arnold's house, at Louisville. Louisville, covered several inches thick with wrought iron spikes that had with whought from spikes that had been secured from the gan boat sunk back of Fisher's. The boat had been burned. The spikes were secured by diving. My grandfather had a huge Iron iron kettle which the divers would sink bottom up. The men would then dive down and they would get their heads under the kettle. The air int he kettle would permit the men to stay under water quite a while and to stay under water quite a while and to pick up many spikes. A carpenter's chest, full of tools, was secured in ad-dition to the spikes."

British Officers to do so When Appearing in Public After April 2.

King Edward Will Have Extensive Repairs Made to Most of His Old Palaces

London, March 2. - Society parade grounds will be much brightened soon by reason of a forthcoming army order that all officers shall dress in uniform instead of mufti in public, just like privates.

The order comes into force on April 2. It ordains that all army officers shall wear their uniforms in public and in theatres and places of entertainment as well. This applies to all household regiments, foot guards and

It cannot be said that this order i at all popular. It is generally thought that it has been brought about by the instigation of the kaiser when he was over. It does not mean, when he was over. It does not mean, of course, that the officers will always have to appear in scarlet or will have to wear their long braided frock coats and peaked caps.

It is understood that the whole thing is supposed to be an incentive to recruiting. Roberts and the King have had many long discussions on the subject.

Edward is not expected to return to London before Monday or Tuesday.

He will continue to occupy Marlborders and ough House until various changes and improvements in Buckingham Palace are completed. The alterations will be extensive and, while the gloomy exterior is beyond redemption, the in-terior will be made more comfortable and artistic as a place of royal resi-dence. Queen Alexandra's taste will be consulted at every turn. Marl-borough House will be thoroughly renovated in course of the absence of
