Miss Mary Boyd, who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Brebner, returned to Fredericton on the Transcontinental Monday morning.

We are glad to know that T. M. Richards, Jr., is improving in health and expects to be home soon. Our readers will remember that he was operated upon for appendicitis in Fredericton a week or two ago.

Mrs. A. W. Brebner entertained at a bridge party on Friday last. Among those present were Mrs. J. C. Stevens, Mrs. J. M. Stevens, Mrs. Alex Dunbar, Miss S. Mitzler, Mrs. Merritt, Mrs. Monton, Miss Wheeler, Miss Bedell, Miss Herbert, Mrs. McCabe, Mrs. Lundberg, Mrs. Vavasour, Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. Burpee, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Babin, Miss Babin, Mrs. Franchetti, Mrs. Sergeant, Mrs. Reith, Mrs. Rideout, Mrs. Sherwood, Mrs. Pickard, Mrs. (Dr.) Hay, Chipman, Mrs. VanWart, Miss Mary Boyd and Miss Jean Barnett.

The Thanksgiving and Armistice Day services held by the Presbyterians in Fraser Hall was very largely attended, the capacity of the Hall being taxed. Sergt. Reid Richards, M. N., sounded the Last Post whilst the congregation stood in memory of the Soldier dead, after which the Minister led in prayer, asking that we might be worthy of the sacrifices made in the great war. A quartette composed of Mrs. William McElroy, Miss Grace Stevens, Mm. McElroy and D. H. VanWart was very beautifully rendered, and was especially appropriate being Kipling's Recessional. The sermon was based on the subject "Upon the Sacrifice of Yesterday We Build the Structure of Today." This Armistice Day service is a permanent feature of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. F. S. Murchie entertained at an "afternoon Tea" on Wednesday. Among those present were Mrs. Goode, Mrs. Barker, Mrs. Belyea, Mrs. Wm. Matyeson, Mrs. Brebner, Miss Brebner, Mrs. J. Dunbar. The hostess was assisted in serving the delicious refreshments by her daughter, Miss Helen Murchie, Mrs. A. Lawson, Mrs. S. E. Burpee and Miss Roberta Hammond.

Dr. Mag Mekka, a Hindu Philosopher and Occultist, fulfilled an engagement at the Casino Theatre the first three days of this week. The Editor saw the Doctor perform in Montreal some years ago, and saw him again in Edmundston. Some of his tests absolutely failed, but others were successful. The walking of a chalk line made after the Doctor was blindfolded, a chalk line which was signalled in every direction, and the picking up of any articles placed on the line was successful in the highest degree. The Editor placed a postage stamp on the line and struck it down, but the Doctor picked it up. On Wednesday however most of the tests failed, and we are informed that on Monday the audience were not satisfied. Dr. Mag Mekka is a Hindu, born in Chicago, and claims to have studied at many Universities, to have spent some years in the Himalayan Mountains, and to have had a hospital in Russia by the Bolsheviks, to have travelled in Europe extensively, and a number of other things. All we can say is that if he has some all the things he claims, he must be a much older man than he looks. He goes from here to Fort Kent, Van Buren and Fredericton.

MANNERS—EAST AND WEST

By Clarence Ludlow Brownell, M. A., Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, London, England.

One might magnify manners into a religion if one went happily about it, and it would be a religion for seven days in the week, not for the Lord's day only. Those days would suggest the arrival of the millennium were manners what they should be, for they sweeten life, they make it joyous, they establish neighborliness, they realize the prophecies of the sages of old, and put into practice the idealism of the Sermon on the Mount.

Manners with those who have them, are a habit. They are a result of breeding. Good manners and the other kind tell the story. The Hohenzollerns thought themselves high, but few of them had manners one would call even tolerable. Breeding was not there.

Many a coolie is better bred than the ex-Kaiser, as a most casual trip through the Orient will show. One coolie with a push cart bumps into another ditto. Each cart spills some of its contents. The coolies do not fight. They work together to right each other's carts, and to replace the contents—and are friends forever instead of enemies, as they would have been had manners been bad.

Both Confucius and Jesus taught the Golden Rule. It is in all religions. It transmits dross into gold. Under its magic, the men of wrath beams with goodwill, instead of fury. A guest in elegant apparel awaits the coming of the master of the house. On a shelf overhead is a bowl of polishing oil which a servant had forgotten. A rat appears this upon the guest. The accident spells ruin for the exquisite silks. They can never be worn again. Besides, the guest is a spectacle—a mess. He hears the master of the house approaching. Mortification is complete, with fury corresponding, but in reply to the sympathetic queries of his host, the guest declares: "I had the rudeness to place my worthless self beneath your honorable shelf. An honorable rat, inspecting your magnificent palace brushed your honorable bowl of perfume, precipitating the contents upon my unspeakable rags so that now they are redolent as a garden in paradise."

Mine host makes reparation, but only good manners could have saved the situation. Bad manners would then and there have established an enduring enmity. The above is an example of everyday manners in the Orient.

Manners may change an enemy into a friendship if they are, as always they should be, accompanied by tact. Marshal Soult detested a certain journalist, who had criticized him adversely. One evening, an acquaintance of both presumed to present the journalist to the marshal. The marshal turned his back to the journalist's outstretched hand. "I am indeed gratified to observe that there is no truth in the rumor that the marshal is my enemy," said the journalist.

"What's that?" asked the marshal, facing about angrily.

"Marshal Soult never turned his back upon an enemy," declared the journalist, with a bow.

That settled that.

Wilts Hohenzollern had had a stormy interview with his uncle, the King of England. He was directly in the line of exit, as his uncle started to leave, but would not "move out of the way for a fool."

"Then I will," said Edward the Seventh.

But for that, the war might have come sooner.

Japanese manners in the days of the feudal system, which ended barely fifty years ago, were beyond anything the western world knows. Good manners obtained even on the execution ground.

"I pray you will pardon my impoliteness in venturing to trouble you," said a performer to the man he was to perform upon, "but if you would deign to incline your honorable body a few inches further I could chop off your honorable head more easily."

TEMPLETON CO., TORONTO

"Do not mention it" replied he who was awaiting decapitation. "Pray pardon my awkwardness. This is my first experience. I assure you I shall not offend again."

Years ago, officials from both France and Germany were at a luncheon to which representatives of several other nations had accepted invitations. Politics and religion were taboo, as subjects for general conversation, and so it chanced that every one "taking art." "We adore art," said a French officer. "It is life to us. We touch everything with an artistic hand."

Pulling a bristle from his beard, a German said, "Let me see you touch that with an artistic hand." The Frenchman accepted the challenge. His answer was a scarpin—the German eagle with the bristle in its bill, a golden ball at each end—one ball Alsace, the other Lorraine. The inscription read "You hold them by a hair."

That was better than pistols and coffee for two at ten paces.

Robert Louis Stevenson thought well of General Grant for returning the Confederate General's sword the instant Lee surrendered it, but Grant also returned to the southern troops all their horses and mules, for it would soon be time to plow, and men of the south would need them. There was not a man in the Confederacy but felt less bitter toward the north because of that.

At Grant's funeral, some twenty years later, the guard of honor that marched up Fifth Avenue, New York City, beside the catafalque was made up entirely of former Confederate army men. A huge banner along the front of the Windsor Hotel displayed the words of his order as to the southern horses.

Grant's manners were good.

A small man entered a country school house where a large man who had been on a spree for a week had frightened the school ma'am into hysterics.

"Would an Irishman strike a woman?" he asked.

"Show him to me, I'll kill him!" was the response, and the two went out in search of the miscreant.

Those whose manners are good never think of class or caste. "Respect the burden, Madam," said Napoleon, at St. Helena, addressing a lady of rank who resented having to move aside for a heavily laden porter, approaching along her path. Manners imply and include respect; respect for others, no matter how lowly, and respect for self.

Madam de Pompadour was courteous until the last. She had received Extreme Unction, and as the priest turned away, she whispered: "One moment, Monsieur Fabbe, and we shall go out together."

Famous Chemist & ZAM-BUK

A pure herbal emollient of great healing power in skin diseases and injuries—this is shown in a report on Zam-Buk by that eminent Doctor of Science, Mr. Wentworth Lascelles-Scott.

Zam-Buk has won world-wide repute for its reliability in troubles like eczema, poisoned wounds, ringworm, bad legs, etc., now comes Dr. Scott's evidence.

Scientific Excellence

"My exhaustive analysis proves that Zam-Buk is possessed of anti-septic and bactericidal power which promptly alleviates skin disorders due to parasites and pathogenic organisms. Moreover its astringent and balsamic constituents render Zam-Buk an emollient of rare healing power."

"Zam-Buk's constituents are exclusively of herbal origin, it contains none of the irritating mineral drugs and animal fats commonly found in ordinary ointments."

"In my opinion Zam-Buk is well adapted for treatment of superficial injuries and prevalent skin disorders."

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefitted by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Syracuse, Ont. — "I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly then. I had started to take it, I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little sleep, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend this little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can't with the greatest of pleasure as my name is on it and the Vegetable Compound if it will help other like it. Mrs. Harvey Maxwell, Syracuse, Ont."

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared on medicinal roots and herbs and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken as safely by the nursing mother.

Order Printing Now

Now is the time for produce dealers and other business men to look over their stock of office supplies and place their orders for printing before the big rush that usually sets in around the first of September. We can handle any orders sent in now very expeditiously, but if orders are deferred they may come at a time when we have weeks of work ahead. Letterheads, invoices, envelopes, all the various needed blank forms may as well be ordered now and be ready the instant they are required. We can at any time deliver blank typewriter paper, second sheets, from stock in hand, and we supply any form of special loose leaf or other blanks as quickly and as cheaply as they can be secured elsewhere. The facilities of The Observer Newspaper printing plant are not excelled in the province, being quite equal to the best equipped city offices. The most expert craftsmen we can secure are employed and the enterprise needs your patronage and we will lend our best effort to satisfy every customer in quality, service and price. Orders sent by mail will be filled promptly and at just as low a price as if we gave competitive figures—and if you must have an order filled in a great rush we will never take advantage of your necessity. The regular customer, the "stay-at-home" gets our best prices. We try to fill every order so that we may hope for the next one with reasonable assurance. The Observer Newspapers Ltd., Hartland, N. ANOTHER AUTO ACCIDENT
(Carleton Observer)

A serious automobile accident occurred on Sunday when Edmond Violette and his brother were motoring from Grand Falls to Edmundston. About three miles out of Grand Falls, in turning a curve a wagon was met, and in turning out for it to avoid collision Violette swerved, running into a telephone pole. In the crash he was rendered unconscious. He was brought to Edmundston by train on Wednesday by train and was immediately transferred to the hospital at St. Basile where he is reported still unconscious. His brother was unhurt.

FATAL ACCIDENT
(Carleton Observer)

A terrible accident occurred at Mornault's Mills on Monday which resulted in the death of Fred Boese, a prosperous farmer, aged 40. Boese was threshing grain and in starting his gas engine he caught his foot in the machine. The leg was torn entirely from the body and the victim died within an hour.
