Committees of Nominations and Resolutions Appointed—Address by Dr. W. S. Carter, Chief Superintendent of Education, Deals With Shortage Teachers

Monday afternoon's session of the New Brunswick Educational Institute was well attended, between three and four hundred teachers being present. The features of the afternoon were the appointment of a nominating committee, a resolutions committee and an address by Dr. W. S. Carter, the chief superintendent of education. The membership fee for the coming year was fixed at $1 and following this the election of secretaries was held by Dr. George A. Inch being elected secretary and Miss I. Peabody assistant secretary. The report of the Executive Committee was presented by Dr. Inch, showing a balance on hand of about $600.

Committees were appointed as follows: Nominations—A. S. McParlane, city; C. T. Wetmore, Rothesay Superior School; Wesley Miles, St. John; Miss Louise Scott, Fredericton Jct. School; George Oulton, Moncton; D. W. Wallace, Woodstock, and G. H. Harrison, of Chatham. Resolutions—Dr. H. S. Bridges, of St. John; Miss Fraser, of Grand Falls; and H. H. Haereman, of this city.

DR. W. S. CARTER

Chief Superintendent Quotes from American Reports on Shortage of Teachers

Dr. W. S. Carter, Chief Superintendent of Education, in his address to the Institute, said: "As it has been some time, owing to combined institutes and other causes, since I have had opportunity for an intimate talk with our own teachers, I shall take this occasion to refer to some of the things accomplished during the last ten years, touching upon a few of them as time permits, and directing your attention to a few of the things that deserve our attention in the future. "I think it is well to take stock occasionally to mark progress or note failure. "I do not propose to dilate upon the late war. We were unprepared for it as we are unprepared for some of the effects caused by the war. We emphatically insisted in the earlier stages upon 'business as usual,' but we find that no business is done as usual, and instead of a return to normal conditions, everything is abnormal. I hope we shall profit by the experiences of the past, but we are prone to be forgetful. "In a contest in which all excel, those connected with the school and colleges have every reason to be proud of their record. If any arguments are needed for a liberal education, the response of teachers and students to the cause of duty is a convincing one. "Many of our plans for education have been entirely dislocated at a time when the loads of public debt are staggering. In the most critical period of the struggle Mr. Fisher, Minister of Education for England, said he was surprised to find that in the United States the school system was being maintained in spite of the fact that the government was spending more money on education than it was on the army and navy.

Third reading was given the bill which provides for extending operations of the wheat board after August 1st, should this be necessary. Third reading of the franchise bill was taken up and a number of amendments lost on division.

In the Senate: Third reading was given the bill amending the criminal code, which provides that racing continue under present regulations until October 16th instead of September 1.

More Money Required. The nation will have to spend twice as much money as it now pays for education, new sources of revenue and new taxing devices will have to be discovered, and immediate emergency measures taken, including the probable adoption of paying the living expense of students while in teacher training institutions, were some of the conclusions reached by the National Citizens' Conference in Washington in May last.

80,000 Teachers Short. The United States this year faces a shortage of about 80,000 teachers, and there is only a prospect of 30,000 trained teachers.

Reports just received from the high schools indicate a more serious situation than in the elementary schools. One-third of the 800 teachers now in the high schools propose leaving the teaching profession to enter other professions next year.

This shortage comes at a time when the nation can least afford to neglect education. New conditions require that schools be more effective, but the present danger of shortage makes the conditions look for lesser effectiveness.

Serious indeed is the rapidly growing number of sub-standard teachers. More than half the teachers of the nation, 350,000, are not prepared on any reasonable basis for the work of teaching.

A conservative estimate of the new teachers needed this fall is 110,000 and the number may reach 150,000. The graduates of normal schools this year will be 25 per cent. fewer than in 1914, and will total about 16,000.

The Educational Emergency. The following suggestions at the Superintendent's Section, National Conference on Education, May 19, 1920, as to means of recruiting teachers were offered for consideration by the Institute:

"Salaries must be raised to a reasonable living wage. "Qualifications raised and salaries graded on training and experience. "Better housing conditions for teachers and social recognition of the service. "Make profession attractive for more men teachers. "Furnish employment for 12 months in the year. "Certificates based on training and experience to be issued by the State. "Security of tenure. "Graded salaries increasing with successful experience. "Freedom system financed by the State. "Equalized support assuring specific amount for each pupil. "Provision for training of teachers in service. "Subsidy for teachers taking normal training. "Teachers' participation in school administration. "Enforcement of compulsory educational laws. "Widespread publicity for need of trained teachers."

To Meet the Emergency. As to means of raising school revenues to meet the emergency the following suggestions were made: "Give 50 per cent. of all fines and forfeitures to support of schools. "Poll tax to be levied or increased. "Collect royalties on natural resources and public utilities. "Tax on banks and corporations. "Inheritance tax. "Proceeds of sale of school lands. "Fifty per cent. of income tax and excess profit tax to support of schools. "State to guarantee fixed sum per child to be educated. "Distribute school money on basis of ability of effort. "Federal aid for State school systems. "State to furnish 50 per cent. of school revenues. Recent changes in British Education were outlined as follows: "To extend the age of compulsory attendance without exemption to 14, or to 15 or 16 by local by-law. "To provide medical inspection and treatment and physical welfare before, through, and after school to the age of 18. "To establish nursery schools for children between two and five and six. "To establish a system of compulsory continuation (part time) school attendance ultimately to 18. "To arrange for the promotion of poor but able pupils by a system of scholarships and maintenance grants past the higher rungs of the educational ladder in the hope that in the future the nation may have the best mental capacity of all its sons and daughters to draw on for its service instead of having to content itself with such brains as are comparatively limited class happen to produce."

Remember the Days when You were a Boy, Dad?

Remember those exhilarating bicycle rides in the country and the picnics under the trees?—
Those rides to the old fishing holes up the river?—
Those thrilling coasts down the hills?—
You were "bicycle crazy" those days, dad—just as your boy is now.
Remember how you pestered your dad for a bicycle?—just as your boy is doing now.
You can't blame him, dad. It's in the blood.
You might just as well get him a bike now as later.
And while you are about it get him a good one—a bicycle that he will be proud of—not one that the other boys will guy him about.
You wouldn't push a hard-running bike yourself. Don't inflict one on him.
The boy is not as strong as a grown man. Don't overtax his strength.

Buy him an EASY-running bicycle—a C. C. M.
C. C. M. Bicycles run easily because they are built of the highest grade materials.
All parts are accurately made. They fit together perfectly. The machine runs true.
The bearings are case-hardened and highly polished. They run with utmost smoothness. And they continue to run easily for years. That's the difference between a C. C. M. and an ordinary bicycle.
C. C. M. Bicycles are also equipped, without extra charge, with the new Hercules Positive Drive Brake—the Coaster Brake without a side arm.
Take your boy to the C. C. M. dealers. See the different models. There's one—the 18-inch Curved Bar Model—that the boy won't outgrow.
