

BRITAIN'S DREADNOUGHTS

Only One Old Vessel on the Nore Division.

A New Ship, Lord Nelson, Placed in Commission.

First French Battleship of Dreadnought Type Launched.

London, Jan. 18.—Just as Great Britain was the first to have a Dreadnought, so she is before all other nations in having a fleet of these, the most modern of fighting ships. With the commissioning of the new battleship, Lord Nelson, and her assignment to the Nore division of the Home Fleet, the first line of defence against a possible attack from across the North Sea, that fleet, in the words of a British Admiral, became "a combination of strength and homogeneity unequalled, ship for ship, in the world's fleets."

A year ago the Nore division, which is under the command of Vice-Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, consisted of the Dreadnought, which had hardly completed her trials, the Bulwark, London, Magnificent, Majestic and Victorious. During the year the new battleship Agamemnon and the armored cruisers Indomitable and Inflexible, which are all intended and purposes largely to replace the older vessels, and last week the Lord Nelson relieved the Magnificent, leaving the Victorious the only representative of the pre-Dreadnought era in Admiral Bridgeman's command.

Before midsummer it is anticipated the fleet will be further strengthened by the Dreadnought battleships Temeraire, Bellerophon and Superb.

British shipbuilders are elated over the prospect of obtaining contracts for Argentine naval craft, bids for which have been invited. The shipbuilding industry is at such a low ebb on account of depression in the mercantile marine that most of the yards are running part time and many men are without work.

Argentina proposes to build two battleships which are to be somewhat stronger than those now being built for Brazil. They are to be of 20,000 tons and will carry a dozen twelve-inch guns. The Argentine Government has also asked tenders for several torpedo-boat destroyers.

The Republic of Argentina is reported to have made a proposal to Brazil that each Government take one of the two ships. The Brazilian Government is now building here and cancel the order for a third battleship, thus equalizing the naval preparations of the two countries. Brazil declined to accept the proposal.

FRANCE'S FIRST DREADNOUGHT. New York, Jan. 17.—A cable despatch to the Sun from Paris says that the Voltair, France's first Dreadnought, was launched at Toulon today. She is the first launched of six similar ships the building of which began early in 1907. She will have tubing engines and carry four guns of 305 millimetres, twelve of 210, sixteen of 75 and eight of 47 millimetres. The cost will be $10,800,000.

The Voltair's armor is not as thick as the Dreadnought's. The five other battleships now in course of construction will be of equal weight, respectively the Diderot, Condorcet, Vergniaud, Mirabeau and Danton.

CREW PERISHED.

Newfoundland Schooner Wrecked Off Long Island.

New York, Jan. 17.—In a biting, driving snowstorm off the Long Island shore the schooner Swallow, of St. John's, Nfld., and her crew were lost today, according to evidence furnished by a turbulent sea which has strewn the beach east of Fire Island for several miles with bits of wreckage from the ship itself and from her cargo. On some of this flotsam appears the name, "Swallow, St. John's, Nfld.," and this told the beachcombers that the wreckage was from a vessel that had pounded herself to pieces in a few short hours in the howling gale. Of the crew, probably five or six, judging from the schooner's size, there was no trace. But the wild rage of the sea, the thick, driving snow with its stinging and cold, led no doubt in the minds of the beachcomers to the crew's fate. No human power could have aided them.

It is supposed the Swallow, presumably a fishing boat, was found from Newfoundland and was carrying a cargo of frozen herring, and that she carried a deckload of lumber to help make the trip pay. Caught in the storm, the crew probably lost their bearings, and struck on one of the many sandbars a mile or so off shore, near the Blue Point station. There the wind and heavy seas pounded the vessel to pieces in a short time and the men aboard were speedily lost in the sea.

EQUAL IT IF YOU CAN.

You can search the world over, and for an even thousand dollars not find a remedy that destroys as many pains or aches as a 25c. bottle of Nerville. Stronger by five times than ordinary liniments and more penetrating, it soothes away inflammation and nerve-pain instantly. Just try Nerville for toothache, earache, sore muscles and lumbago—you rub in the Nerville and rub out the pain. Internally it cures cramps, stomach pains and sick headaches, all minor ills, and children's sickness. It cures as fast as the doctor and costs but a quarter a bottle.

NO RACE SUICIDE HERE.

Queen of Spain's Bet With the Princess of Wales. London, Jan. 17.—The London social letter of the Liverpool Post, which is written by a well-known Johnman, says: "The King on Sunday night declared that the Queen of Spain had made a bet with the Princess of Wales, the stake being a fan, that she [the Queen] would have a larger family than the Princess, who now has six children. The King has a much higher approval of large families than apparently the majority of his subjects have."

At Earlscourt, James Hunt was sentenced to 5 years and Gordon Schultz to 18 months for burglary.

FRENCH SENATE.

Bound to Declare Its Opinion on Treaty With Canada.

Paris, Jan. 17.—Now that the Senatorial elections are over there is a strong demand for immediate discussion of the Franco-Canadian treaty. The Journal des Debats publishes the latest and, so far, the most outspoken article in this sense. It points out that at present the Franco-Canadian commercial relations are governed by a modus vivendi to which Canada agreed only when given some ground for hoping soon to see a special convention established in its place. Thus the Senate is taxed with something tantamount to a breach of faith, and in consequence the Journal des Debats considers that the House is bound to declare its opinion very shortly, unless it wishes to transgress against international polity.

The danger that the advantages offered France may fall to Germany is once more insisted upon, and the Journal des Debats also points out that there is a personal aspect to the question, since during the elections in Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that he considered the signing of the treaty one of the greatest achievements of his party.

WORLD OF FASHION.

The Waist Will be Defined in New Spring Models.

London, Jan. 17.—According to an expert therein, who writes to-day, a terrible tragedy has darkened the world of fashion, for the report has gone around that the waist will be defined in the new spring models. This expert, who has just returned from the French capital, says Paris is extremely mysterious in regard to the spring models. Numerous small dressmakers are waiting about the gay city wondering what the autocrat of fashion has decreed. On everyone's lips is the query, waist or no waist? They must possess their souls in patience for a couple of more weeks. The managers of the chief fashion stores of the west end of London maintain similar reserve. They do not want to say that they believe skirts would be fuller, but the question of waist must be left in abeyance.

Meanwhile one reads that the Merry Widow hat is as dead as a door nail, and that the Busby reigns in its stead.

READY FOR SESSION.

The Members Beginning to Arrive at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—Members of Parliament are beginning to arrive in the capital for the session. A large delegation of western members reached here today, coming a few days before the opening on Wednesday next in order to locate rooms before the sessional rush for accommodation starts. All the British Columbia members are now here, and about half the members from the three prairie Provinces. The Government has its sessional programme in good shape to meet Parliament. The estimates are ready for presentation to the Commons, and Government bills are drafted and in shape for early consideration. It is expected that the session will be a comparatively short one of about four months.

HID IN CAR.

New Scheme to Smuggle Celestials Into United States.

Montreal, Jan. 17.—While customs inspectors were examining a car bound for Albany, N. Y., to-day they found the seal broken. The car was loaded with theatrical scenery, but on closer inspection it was also found to contain ten Chinese carefully stowed away among the scenery. It is thought that this scheme of exporting Chinese to the United States has been tried before, but in future it will be watched.

CASTORIA.

The Kid You Have Always Begged for. A puff of flame shot up from the rear of the most extensive automobile storage and repair plant in Boston, located near Park Square, shortly before dawn to-day, and half an hour later over 400 automobiles, valued at $750,000, were a mass of tangled steel and iron. The flames swept through the building with such rapidity that only two machines were saved. A coal famine is near at hand around Moose Jaw, Sask.

FRANK LAW FOUND GUILTY.

VERDICT REACHED AFTER EIGHT MINUTES' DELIBERATION.

Hints at Some Powerful Reason for Crown's Attitude — The Case Comes Before the Court of Appeal To-day.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—Frank Law is guilty. The jury which tried him in the sessions on Saturday afternoon came to that conclusion after only eight minutes' deliberation, and in returning their verdict did not attach the recommendation to mercy which many people expected. The verdict did not visibly move the prisoner, but it caused his wife, who throughout the trial has been a faithful and pathetic figure, to cry out and reel from the court room, only to return a moment later when she had conquered her emotions to resume her place by his side.

This is the latest development in the prosecution of the mining firm of Law & Company on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the public, arising out of the flotation of the Highland Mary and other mines. The action was commenced under clauses of the Companies Act in the Police Court a year ago. Mr. Law's partner and principal, Wm. Lockhart Russell, has thus far managed to evade the arm of justice of the Provincial Attorney-General's Department.

Mr. Law's cash bail of $10,000 was not renewed, and he was taken into custody. The object of this procedure was to enable the appeal which was entered to come before the Court of Appeal on Monday. The ground of appeal to be argued on is as to whether the Crown can order and sustain the prosecution of Mr. Law after an officer from the Attorney-General's Department had promised him immunity as the price of giving evidence against his partner.

Asked after the trial if he had anything to say to the public, Mr. Law replied: "The fact is that I think I have been treated in a dirty fashion. I am convicted, while Russell is allowed to go free. He was the moving spirit in the work, and I did his bidding. Yet his brother and his lawyer, and the Crown attorney, and you do not convict me, as much as offer me their hand and say they feel sorry. I suppose I can bear the penalty, and they want nothing to do with me now. That's what hurts me."

COUNSEL ATTACKS THE CROWN.

Mr. Law's counsel, Mr. G. T. Blackstock, K. C., made a very impassioned address on his behalf, but it was confined to arguing that the Crown had acted in bad faith towards Mr. Law, which he asked the jury to rectify. After reading the stenographic report in which Inspector Rogers, of the Attorney-General's Detective Department, promised Mr. Law immunity if he would testify, Mr. Blackstock said: "I have never heard of such a proceeding such as we have here under the circumstances. This statement shows that the statement of Law is borne out. I once more ask whether it is possible with such an entanglement as that of the later proceedings with their case. It fills me with amazement." Mr. Blackstock argued that Law was a simple, innocent man occupying a clerk's position under Wm. Lockhart Russell, who he said, was the master mind in the affair, and who had got the bulk of the profits. In closing his address he again reverted to his original plea, saying: "The Crown wanted Law's aid and they lured him into giving evidence. I don't know what he did, but he was lured into it, and the Crown's refusal to stand by their undertakings fills me with the suspicion that there is some powerful reason for their action."

Mr. H. L. Drayton, K. C., in presenting the Crown's case, replied to Mr. Blackstock's argument that Mr. Law was ignorant of the real facts of many of the properties he advertised in glowing terms by saying that though he might have been ignorant of the first, that is, the property of Winchester, which he had committed the entire management of his own great estate as well as large trust funds, the whole had been entirely disposed. For upwards of a half century Lord Amherst had been a collector of books, manuscripts and tapestries. Dillington Hall was a storehouse of historic treasures—Gobelins, Sevres, Sèvres, Limoges, Majolica and the most complete collection in the world of books and manuscripts illustrating the history of printing from the earliest times. These books and manuscripts were estimated to be worth three-quarters of a million, but no figure could represent the loving care Lord Amherst spent in gathering them. When the crash came there was nothing to be done but sell, and Lord Amherst saw the art treasures he had spent his lifetime in bringing from the ends of the earth go under the hammer. "Amherst's sale was a tragedy, selling heart's blood," said a collector who was present. Not a book or manuscript, not a print or vase but was dear to his heart.

When the auctioneer's hammer fell on the last lot for reason for living had ceased for Lord Amherst of Hackney. He survived just six weeks.

MISSING HEIRESS.

Story of Miss Charlesworth's Death a Myth.

London, Jan. 17.—Miss Violet Gordon Charlesworth, the alleged heiress, whose mysterious disappearance a short time ago caused a great deal of excitement, and her intimate association with extensive stock deals, has been found and identified at Oban, Scotland.

It was reported that Miss Charlesworth, who lived with her parents in Bogata, St. Asaph, Wales, was killed while automobiling in the neighborhood of Penmaenmawr, with her sister and the chauffeur, about two weeks ago, but the truth of the story was doubted. A day or two ago a torn telegram addressed to Violet Charlesworth was found in a room in a hotel at Tobermory, Scotland, and it was ascertained that the occupant of the room, who answered the description of Miss Charlesworth, had gone to Oban. She was located there to-day.

MINISTER'S CRIMES.

BIGAMIST AND BETRAYER OF YOUNG WOMEN.

Detectives Searching for Rev. Evan T. Evans, Formerly of Sarnia, Who Married and Deserted Miss Davis of New York.

Windsor, Jan. 17.—Detectives from Canada, the United States and Scotland Yard are diligently searching for Rev. Evan T. Evans, up to a short time ago attached to St. John's Episcopal Church, Sarnia. Rev. Mr. Evans came to Sarnia, presumably from a city in eastern Canada, some eighteen months ago. Posing as a bachelor, he at once became extremely popular with the ladies of his congregation. To one of them, Miss Nellie St. Clair Davis, his attentions were most marked.

On Sept. 26 last Miss Davis quietly left home, and Evans did likewise 24 hours later. The two met in a town in Niagara county, N. Y., and were married, afterwards proceeding to Cleveland, where the clergyman succeeded in inducing his bride to turn over to him a large sum in cash which she had. Then he sent the girl back to her home in Sarnia, after exacting a promise that she would keep the wedding a secret until he could secure another parish.

This was the last anyone in Sarnia saw or heard of the clergyman. No word came from him, and under the stress of her secret and failure to receive the promised letters young Mrs. Evans sickened and died. This was only a few weeks ago.

With the lowering into the grave of the body the people of Sarnia generally hoped that the scandal would be hushed for all time, but it is again revived by the statement now made that the sixteen-year-old daughter of one of Evans' former parishioners charges her downfall to the missing clergyman. The latest developments have decided the church authorities to take action in the case, and the matter has been turned over to the police with a full description of Evans. The authorities of Niagara county, New York, where Evans' bigamous marriage occurred, are also to be urged to act. Evans has a wife and four children in Landreth, Wales, but this fact only became known after search of his effects left behind at Sarnia, had disclosed letters from across the sea.

LOVED HIS BOOKS.

Pathetic Ending of Lord Amherst, a Great Collector.

London, Jan. 17.—The sudden death last night of Lord Amherst of Hackney brings to a tragic end the pathetic story of the misfortunes that overwhelmed the last days of the worthy man. He was past seventy when he learned of the through the rasality of a solicitor, through whom he had committed the entire management of his own great estate as well as large trust funds, the whole had been entirely disposed. For upwards of a half century Lord Amherst had been a collector of books, manuscripts and tapestries. Dillington Hall was a storehouse of historic treasures—Gobelins, Sevres, Sèvres, Limoges, Majolica and the most complete collection in the world of books and manuscripts illustrating the history of printing from the earliest times.

SAVED BY MIRACLE.

Proclaiming Wonderful Rescue of Little Boy at Reggio.

Reggio, Jan. 16.—Another miraculous rescue has taken place, resulting in the recovery of a five-year-old boy after having been interred since Reggio was overthrown. The result of this rescue is to stimulate the efforts of relief parties in their search for others who may still be living.

The boy is the son of a porter, who made his own escape, but believed his boy must be dead. After seeing the ruins of his house he did not even search for the boy, but a woman, passing the wrecked house a few days after the earthquake thought she heard a weak cry. It soon ceased, however, and the woman with her sister went to Naples. Returning to this place, and hearing of wonderful escapes, she drew the attention of Colonel Corapi, who was in charge of a relief party, to the porter's house, which was little more than a heap of stones and dust. The soldiers examined the wreckage and called out a number of times.

After a breathless suspense, a faint sound was heard, unmistakably human. This was enough. The soldiers attacked the debris with a fierce energy, and within a few hours a small opening was made, through which a fireman entered. In a moment he returned and passed through the opening a little boy, who was not only conscious, but showed few signs of privation. He was taken to a hospital, where he has become the pet of all, and a little hero, the women declaring that he was saved by a miracle, as the child persists in saying that throughout he was fed by his mother with bread and oranges.

The mother, however, was killed on the day of the earthquake. The whole neighborhood is already proclaiming that this is the first authentic miracle, and their strong belief is exciting the soldiers to continue the search.

GROUNDLESS FEARS.

Toronto Man, Who Thought He Was Wanted by Police, Surrendered.

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 17.—Robert Reynolds, a Toronto baker, aged 41, walked into police headquarters in Detroit yesterday and gave himself up. He said that a month ago in Toronto he broke a big plate glass window and left home and had been a fugitive from justice ever since. He imagined the police were hot on his trail from city to city, and was therefore astounded when the detectives telegraphed to Toronto and found the police there didn't want him. He was told to go home to his wife and children.
