

Could Not Lift Stick of Wood

Would Almost Faint From Severe Pain in Back — Doctors Could Not Get the Kidneys Set Right.

A great many people suffer the results of deranged kidneys and do not understand the cause of trouble or the way to obtain cure. The writer of this letter suffered excruciating pains in the back and in vain his physician tried to cure him. For some reason or other his medicines did not have the desired effect.

Mr. Oitz's brother was a merchant selling, among other medicines, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and he heard his customers telling about how they were cured of kidney derangements by their use. This led to Mr. Oitz putting them to the test, with the splendid results reported in this letter.

Mr. E. C. Oitz, Benton, Carleton County, N. B., writes: "I am glad to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered from my kidneys, which at one time were so bad I could not lift a stick of wood without getting on my knees, and then would almost faint from the pain in my back. I consulted a doctor about it, and he gave me some medicine, but it did not help me. My brother, who is a merchant, and carries all your medicines, advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I got one box, and they helped me, so I got another one, and kept on until I had taken five boxes, which cured me. I have had no trouble with my back since, and am never without Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house. Last summer I also suffered from piles. I used three boxes of your Ointment, and it cured them. I can certainly recommend Dr. Chase's Pills and Ointment."

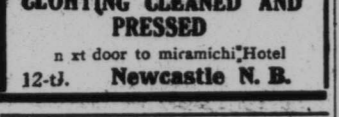

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute or you will certainly be disappointed.

Kelly, a Toronto artist, is spending a couple of weeks in Cape Breton, with a view to obtaining some new pictures for use in connection with advertising the beauty spots reached by the railway system. WHAT DOES IT MEAN
The appearance of the letter "B" on the leaves of rye and oats in several districts of Canada, including Kent County N. B., causes a correspondent to the Toronto Telegram to remark:
Sir—I read about the strange mark of the letter "B" on the leaves on the rye and oats which some farmers have seen, and which is to be hoped is a hopeful message to us. Maybe it signifies victory for Britain and her allies in this great struggle for liberty and right, and that Britannia will still rule the waves.

An Old Custom.
At Lloyd's, the marine insurance exchange in London, a bell is tolled when a ship is reported lost, or when a ship long overdue and considered lost unexpectedly reaches port. The bell used at Lloyd's belonged to the ship Lutine, which was wrecked near the Zuyder Zee in 1799, while taking specie from English merchants to Hamburg. When a ship is "posted" as lost the old bell is tolled once, and on that day the insurance money is payable and all who were on the ship are considered legally dead. In the unusual event of a vessel arriving in port after being posted as lost, the bell is tolled twice, and the announcement is cried aloud by an official in uniform.

An Advertisement.
A recent advertisement contains the following: "If the salesman who keeps the boot shop with the red head will return the umbrella of a young lady with whalebone ribs and an iron handle to the slate-roofed grocery shop he will hear of something to his advantage, as the same is the gift of a deceased mother now so more with the name engraved upon it."

MALE OSTRICH BUILDS NEST

Sets on Eggs at Night During the Incubation Which Lasts Forty to Fifty Days.

After pairing, the ostrich begins to make his nest. It is the male alone that performs this duty. To do it, he squats upon the ground, and, balancing himself upon his breastbone, scratches up the earth with his legs and throws it behind him. When he has dug out enough room, he calls to him he turns round and begins to dig on another side, and continues this operation until he has made a hole large enough for him to sit in comfortably. A few days after the nest is finished the female begins to lay one egg every alternate day for eighteen or twenty days. She then rests for a while, which time varies from four to ten days, and then lays more. A pair of ostriches yield about forty eggs, though it is not unusual for a well-fed well-kept pair to yield fifty to sixty eggs. The eggs are placed so as to leave no space between them, and the male and the female brood alternately. At night the male is always on the nest, as it possesses greater warmth than the female.

These birds perform their duties with the greatest skill, without any noise or breakage of their eggs. The incubation lasts forty-five days on an average, sometimes fifty days, but never continues beyond that. When the chicklings hatch out they can be heard trying to break the shell of the egg. Sometimes they succeed in doing so, especially the father breaks the egg under the breast bone, tears the inside skin with his bill, and frees the chickling. Upon first reaching the air the chickling remains limp and weak; but the warmth of the parent soon revives it, and a few hours afterward it begins to run about, exercising its long legs, topping over at each step, and recommending again its stumbling journey. Four days after their hatching the chicklings begin to eat. They run after insects and swallow small pebbles. The father and mother do not help their little ones to find food.

Bluff of Foreman Failed.
Two of the nocturnal hosenmen of the street cleaning department were engaged in wetting down the pavement near New York's busy corner at 45th street and 6th avenue. They were enjoying their work when, suddenly, one of them noticed a man walking by. The man came strolling along and looked them over. A small group waiting for a bus hoped that the happy soakers were about to be scolded and the hope was gratified. "Well, well," the foreman, turned, "you're wetting down the pavement, aren't you?" "Aw, we got to wet it down, ain't we?" called the younger of the hosenmen. "We ain't lagging around for the love of it." The foreman walked over to the man, and in a conversation turned off the water. "Don't get answering me back," said the foreman. "If you want to get anywhere in this department, just do what you're told to do and say nothing." "Aw, forget it," answered the young hosenman again. "I ain't trying to get nowhere in this department. I been drafted. By the time you get to be a superintendent I'll be a general in the army. Roll your hoop, boss, you're talking like a hero."

Orange Industry.
The interior of any one of the big orange packing houses in either Florida or California shows a wonderfully systematic arrangement for grading and sizing the fruit. There are a dozen different sizes of oranges and so automatic is the grading that every box of oranges comes out with every orange almost the exact size of its companion. The result is oranges which sell in the far Eastern markets as low as 50 cent apiece—from this to 50 or 60 cents a dozen. The only things which must be left to human judgment is the throwing out of culls—imperfect, too ripe or too green specimens.

Newadays in both of the big orange growing states the orange business is divided into two distinct and separate industries—that of orange growing and that of orange packing and shipping. The latter is handled by co-operative associations and very few oranges are packed and shipped direct by the orange growers themselves. The same conditions apply to lemons and grapefruit.

Air Warrior's Predicament.
An accident without precedent in warfare, occurred to a French bombing plane, and death was averted by a feat of daring which will long be remembered. The airplane was about to descend after a raid, when the pilot discovered that two of his bombs had caught in the rigging below the canopy. It was impossible to land without exploding them and blowing the frail craft to fragments. The gasoline was already running low and some desperate expedient must be attempted within the next two seconds. While the pilot held his craft to an even keel the passenger crawled from his seat to the wing and thence to the rigging below. The bombs must be released with the greatest delicacy to prevent their exploding. Impossible as the feat seemed, it was at last accomplished and the passenger regained his seat in safety.

Psychological Effect.
"Why do you call your automobile a 'Silver'?"
"We don't always," replied the passenger. "When we speak of it as a 'Silver' we mean it's a silver color. When we call it a 'Silver' we mean it's a silver color. When we call it a 'Silver' we mean it's a silver color. When we call it a 'Silver' we mean it's a silver color."
