SATURDAY, July 29, 1911.

Will Claim Only $85,000,000 From the Government.

Much has been done legitimately to advertise Newfoundland in America and much illegitimately. Here is an instance of the latter. It is taken from the N. Y. World of July 24th:

A suit involving $85,000,000 will be brought against the Newfoundland Government by Mrs. Claremont Marshall of No. 215 East Seventy-eighth Street in the near future, according to information given a World reporter yesterday by William La Point, an attorney of No. 110 West Thirty-fourth Street. He has just returned from the North, with absolute evidence, he believes, of Mrs. Marshall's right to much land in St. John's.

"This is not a dream of a fanatic," said Mr. La Point. "It is not a paper suit. This is a bona fide claim, and there are only two heirs concerned. I have no interest in it other than that of determining whether my client has a case or not. After spending three weeks in Newfoundland searching through ancient records, I am convinced that it is worth while to go into the courts, and my belief is that Mrs. Marshall will be awarded the entire $85,000,000."

According to Mr. La Point, the estate which Mrs. Marshall claims was confiscated by the Government in the early part of the last century. The fight to regain the property has lasted for three quarters of a century. If the lawyer's prediction proves correct, the Government of Newfoundland will lose a portion of the waterfront of St. John's, extending from Petty Harbor to Riverhead and to Government Wharf.

Romance and Pirates. "In the early part of the eighteenth century," said Mr. La Point, "Samuel Churchill, who Mrs. Marshall believes to have been a relative of the first Duke of Marlborough, went to Newfoundland with his son, Nicholas, and his two daughters, Claremont and Elizabeth."

"Churchill, upon his arrival at Newfoundland, engaged in the shipping business and became the owner of a large fleet of merchant vessels. The captain of one of these vessels was one Morris Bolin, a young Irishman, romantic and captivating. Miss Claremont met him. There was a whirlwind, elopement, courtship and the young couple ran away and were married. The bride became a Catholic for her husband."

"The rich, stern father was a strict Calvinist, and his daughter's religious change infuriated him. He cut her off without a shilling. Shortly after he died."

"Nicholas, the brother of the girl, inherited the entire estate. The young man was fond of his sisters, and made a will in which the property was to be equally divided between Claremont and Elizabeth. At this point the trouble leading up to the present suit begins."

"Nicholas entrusted one copy of the will to William Haffyard, who had married Elizabeth Churchill. The other he kept, taking it with him when he sailed for England to take charge of his father's affairs there."

"On route to England the vessel upon which Churchill sailed was attacked by pirates, and the whole ship's company was forced to walk the plank. The pirates presumably obtained the will. What they did with it of course is a matter of conjecture. No trace was ever found of it."

"When Churchill's fate was learned, Haffyard showed Claremont the other copy of the will, intrusted to him by his brother-in-law. He proposed that it remain in his care until Churchill's death was proved. Claremont gave her consent."

Lawyer Finds New Evidence. "Shortly afterward Haffyard met his death by drowning while sailing in a small boat, and although all possible efforts to find the will were made, the important paper was never brought to light. The two girls could not produce proof that they were the rightful heirs of their brother's estate, and so the Newfoundland Government took the property and sold it at auction, taking up Samuel Churchill's landmarks and substituting its own."

For years, according to Mr. La Point, Claremont and her sister fought to regain the property, but were unsuccessful, and now the contest is being taken up again by Mrs. Marshall, the granddaughter of Claremont. Mrs. Marshall and her sister, Mrs. John Walsh of Boston, are the only heirs of the Churchill family.

They have made several attempts to recover the property which they believe rightfully belongs to their grandmother, and at one time interested Benjamin F. Butler to such an extent that he went to Newfoundland to take up the case. He died before he had advanced far in his investigation.

"I have been able to find the records establishing the identity of Claremont Bolin and her ancestry," said Mr. La Point. "Her marriage certificate has been unearthed and data concerning Bolin. I hope to locate letters sent to Claremont by Haffyard, establishing her right to her brother's estate."

Meting Out Justice.

To-day a drunk was fined $4 or 14 days, as he often appears; another was discharged.

Const. Whelan summoned three young men for loose and disorderly conduct; one was fined $4 or 14 days, and the others discharged.

Const. Squibb summoned a man for obstructing the public thoroughfare with a carriage near an arch during a procession last week. He was fined $5 or 14 days.

A driver summoned by Const. Hutchings for driving without lights was fined $1 or 5 days.

An assault case between two women was dismissed, being of a trivial nature. Const. Tobin summoned a resident of Torbay for ill-treating a sheep he was taking home in his express. It was shown that he kept them under the porch for hours with their legs tied and without water. He was fined $5 or 14 days.

Train Notes.

CATALINA IN DANGER.—Owing to the forest fire which raged there, for hours yesterday the R. G. Church at Catalina was in great danger of destruction. Had it caught with the high wind and dry weather prevailing the whole town would have been destroyed. The residents spent a very anxious day of it. The people worked hard and saved the structure. Had thereby their homes. The fire is not burning as fiercely to-day as it was yesterday.
