AMUSEMENTS

Lewis Waller at the Grand.

Mr. Lewis Waller, a member of that higher house of English actors, who, like British statesmen, come all too seldom to Canada, "had the honor to submit" that evening comedy, "A Marriage of Convenience," at the Grand Opera House last evening.

It speaks well for the intelligent appreciation of theatregoers that Mr. Waller was welcomed with an attendance amply proportioned to the actor's reputation and the merit of the attraction. One could feel that a prompter was no more needed before the footlights than behind. It is good to say that just as there was a constant giving of good things, a proffering of bright gifts of wit, little tests of mind-keenness, challenges to intellect, from the stage, so there was a fine responsiveness from the audience. The happy combination of perfect ease and perfect seeing; or so it seemed. Art correctly viewed the keynote of the evening.

Plays Courtier Gracefully.

Mr. Waller is the courtier to the life. He wears wigs and lace, and manners with becoming grace. His part is of the lightest, least difficult in his repertoire, probably, one reason being because he becomes it so admirably. The comedy is a picture of pretty manners and courtly conventionalities, and an unbroken play of repartee, with the slightest tone of seriousness. A delicate bit of china that required delicate handling. The voices of the actors were the marks of their distinction. Mr. Waller's tones are of the sort that fit romantic acting. There are more handsome men, but few more capable of a wide range of parts, it would appear.

Miss Madge Titherage assumes a role quite as finely spun in playing opposite Mr. Waller. She is a winning actress, with a charm all her own, and a refreshing appreciation of technique. Reginald Dane, Edward M. Ryder and Hume Hughes were the capable supporting artists.

The members of the Becher-Wilson wedding party were in the audience, and there was a befitting atmosphere of gaiety in the theatre.

"Billy the Kid."

Berkeley Haswell is the criminal hero of "Billy the Kid," the Grand tomorrow night and Saturday. He is surrounded with a company of capable actors. The melodrama is of western type, with lots of action, exciting situations, plenty of fun and a nice little love story, and the scenery and production is all that can be required. Seats on sale.

Robert Loraine in "Man and Superman."

The appearance of Robert Loraine in Bernard Shaw's brilliant comedy, "Man and Superman," at the Grand next Wednesday evening, promises to be an event of unusual interest. "Man and Superman" is considered the witliest and most successful of Shaw's comedies, and Mr. Loraine has played the role of John Tanner elsewhere in this country and England, over two thousand times. In "John Tanner," Bernard Shaw is said to have dramatized himself, making his character the mouthpiece of his own startling opinions and theories. Robert Loraine gives to the part of John Tanner the keen artistic finish, the varying moods and emotions the character embodies. His supporting company includes Rence Kelly, who plays the role of Ann, John Tanner's sister; Ethel Mervin, Margaret Unnett, Louis Masson, Hyllon Allen, William McVey, A. P. Kaye and Rockliffe Fellowes. Seat sale opens Monday at 9 a.m.

The Dunbars.

The achievement of the Dunbar male quartette and bell ringers is unique in the history of bell ringers and quartette work. Their coming to the Auditorium on Saturday evening will be looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure by all music lovers.

LITERARY EVENING

Fine Program Was Given by Bothwell Epworth League.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Bothwell, Jan. 8.—At the last regular meeting in the Methodist Church the Epworth League service took the form of a literary evening, which was conducted by Miss Amy E. Campbell, who gave a paper on "The Lives and Works of Certain Canadian Writers of Verse."

The program included poems, which were read by Rev. J. Currie, Mrs. Bradley, Albert McRitchie, Madolin Jerome, Perry Sharpe, Edith Kerr, May Prout, solos by Hazel Beut, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," Andrew Marcus, "The Old Story," and Viola Johnston, "Indian Lullaby," written by Mrs. Collins, a Canadian composer of note.

QUERIES ANSWERED

HOLIDAYS—To what holidays is a farmhand entitled, no days of technical specified in the agreement? Is it legal to compel him to do the chores, such as feeding the cattle, etc., on Sundays?

—Only such holidays as are observed by his employer and his family. He must do necessary chores on Sundays, and other holidays as a domestic servant. An entire holiday must be a matter of arrangement to be made shortly before.

No. 5 WARD—As the city council gains for the new ward three additional trustees, will there be two additional trustees on the board of education?

ANS.—No. A city of less than 50,000 has only nine elected members on the board, but as soon as the city is officially declared to have 50,000 or more inhabitants it must have twelve elected members.

SCORES NAVY BILL AT ROUSING RALLY

Hugh Guthrie Says the Borden Government Should Dissolve and Go to the Polls.

A POLICY OF ACTION

Is Urged by Liberals and Conservatives With Naval Authorities' Needs.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Elora, Jan. 8.—At a rousing rally here this evening Mr. Hugh Guthrie dealt at length with the navy bill. He declared it was not the Liberal policy to obstruct. He thought it was the duty of the present Government to dissolve and go to the polls.

Had the newspapers of either party or the speakers on any political platform during the last election campaign ever discussed the naval policy? He knew they had not. He quoted Mr. Churchill, Lord Charles Bessborough, Lord Milner and Sir Charles Tupper, as all opposed to the idea of giving a cash contribution to the British Government. Mr. Foster had said himself on the floor of the House that a cash contribution smacked too much like giving tribute. Mr. Foster had also said they must make a beginning, however small, when referring to forming a Canadian navy. Mr. Borden himself had declared in favor of a Canadian navy, and had continued to adhere to this solution of the problem until the fall of 1909, when Mr. Monk delivered a speech in Quebec against any naval policy at all. Mr. Guthrie, continuing, quoted from Mr. Borden's speech at a banquet in London, where he was reported to have said that without representation in the councils of the empire, Britain would not get a man or a dollar from Canada.

The Liberal policy was a policy of action. It was the policy which conformed to the suggestions of the British naval authorities, it was the policy which would strengthen the ties of empire, for was it not true that as the spirit of self-government developed in the colonies, the spirit of loyalty also increased? We had the resources, the men and the brains to build, man and maintain a navy of our own. It would be as sensible a plan to ask that the naval department to manage our postoffice department as to manage our navy or our army.

LABOR IN DOMINION AGAINST NAVAL POLICY

Borden's Offer Is Declared To Be Merely a Party Move.

London, Jan. 9.—The Daily Citizen states the parliamentary Labor party is giving considerable attention to the Canadian Government's proposed naval contribution, with a view to united action at the proper time. In the same issue appears a letter from J. C. Walters, written on behalf of the executive of the Trades and Labor Congress, in which he seeks to dispel the illusion that the offer represents the united sentiment of Canadians. Organized labor in the Dominion is steadily against the proposal, and the arguments of the Labor party are not so much a party move. Unfortunately, Canadian Labor men haven't a direct voice in the Dominion Parliament. If they had their answer would be made in no uncertain tones. The letter concludes: "With the ripe experience acquired by the Labor group in the British House, not alone in domestic affairs but in the world's politics, would it not be well to give us in Canada the benefit of your experience by advising how we can best co-operate with you in maintaining the world's peace? No more practical way suggests itself to us than to co-operate closely with our working comrades in the mother country."

FOUND IN RIVER

Body of Unknown Woman Discovered at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 8.—The decomposed body of a woman was found at the Maid of the Mist landing today. It had been in the water for several months, in the opinion of those who examined it. The body was nude except for a pair of black silk stockings.

It is impossible to even hazard a guess at the age or weight of the woman. The body was five feet three inches tall. The hair is all washed away by the water, and the teeth, and only four teeth remain, the others having dropped out. An undertaker has charge of the body.

STEPPED BEFORE ENGINE

Confused by Storm, M. C. R. Brakeman Is Cut to Pieces.

[Canadian Press.]

Niagara Falls, Jan. 8.—Thos. Fraser, a Michigan Central railroad brakeman, was cut to pieces by an engine in the Montrose yards about one o'clock this morning. Getting out of the way of an approaching train, he stepped in front of the engine. There was a heavy snow storm at the time. Deceased was twenty-four years old, and unmarried. He was the son of Martin Fraser, this city.

UNITED STATES MONEY PROBE

Washington, Jan. 8.—More expert advice on how to remodel the monetary system of the United States to provide an elastic currency and strong, central reserve, was heard today by the committee of the House. The principal witnesses called for the day were Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, and Professor Lawrence Laughlin, of Chicago.

Questions asked by the democratic members of the committee seems to indicate that the majority favors the establishment of a system of divisional reserve banks, operated under close government supervision, as a substitute for the national monetary commission's proposed central bank.

Varna, Jan. 9.—At the manse recently, Miss Elizabeth Allan, nurse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allan, of Blake, was united in marriage to Mr. Allan A. Esler, a prosperous young farmer of Biggar, Sask., and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Esler, of Blake, by Rev. D. Johnston. The happy young couple left on the evening train for their home in the West.

SAW NERO'S VILLAGE.

Rome, Jan. 8.—At Abzio, a fishing town and bathing resort 30 miles from Rome, in a clear, calm sea, after the recent storms, men discovered extensive remains of Nero's village submerged 200 yards from shore. They saw a lot of broken columns of statuary, some of which they recovered, and also a colossal female head. Other submerged Roman buildings and

DR. HERVIEUX DEAD

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Word was received here today of the death on the steamer Rochambeau, which arrived at New York from Havre, of Dr. H. Hervieux, one of Montreal's most prominent and oldest physicians. The late Dr. Hervieux had not been in the best of health for some time and left Montreal for Europe in the hope that the voyage would do him good.

On Saturday, Dec. 4, he took a turn for the worse and never recovered. His body was brought to New York and will be forwarded to Montreal for burial. Mrs. Hervieux accompanied her husband on his last voyage across the Atlantic.

The late Dr. Hervieux was well known in Montreal, having his offices at 490 St. Denis street, and was also a professor in Laval University.
