Kids, How Are You Biting?-II. I'd watch my kid's teeth carefully, pale, weak and srow-witted. You will and if in spite of our wholesome food and our chewing matches a cavity or and our chewing matches a cavity or and our chewing matches a cavity or decayed tooth appeared, I'd have a good dentist get right after it and fill the cavity before the training and that most kids who are undersized or underweight for their age are staying up until all hours nights—and these kids never amount to a great deal. Without ity before the training and keep away from the dentists if you can't, then visit the dentist early and often so that you won't have to stay with him late and sleep a fellow gets a poor start in the time. Learn to hits and the time of the training and the training and the start in the dentists if you can't, then visit the dentists if you can't, then visit the dentists if you can't, then visit the dentist early and often so that you can't have to stay with him late and the training and the series are staying up until all hours nights—and these kids never amount to a great deal. Without ty before the tooth became badly damaged. It is a shame to let a kid's teeth decay and crumble away merely be-cause they are "temporary" teeth. For if a temporary tooth is permitted to decay or is lost very long before its suc-cessor comes in to fill its place, there won't be any place for the permanent ooth, and the result of that is irregular eeth and deformed jaws which would handicap the boy all his life unless corrected at considerable trouble and ex-pense by the dental specialist who treats such deformities.

My kid would have for his beverage with meals for and 'tween meals lunches or bedtime lunches if he liked, I'd want him to want a quart or more a day from his sixth year. I am very certain that the very boy the whole truth and nothing but the truth about life and the origin of human life, from A to Z. And then I don't think he'd ever make a darn fool of himself in a mistaken effort to be a "man." I am very certain that the very boy who starts the filthy business among a group, who thinks himself so very wise, who suggests and urges unmanly things upon younger or less sophisticated boys, is the lad who will feel heartily ashamed a little later in life when he comprehends what an idiotic show he made of himself in his MACPHERSON & PERRIN, BARRISTERS, solicitors.
