Three of these, Guysboro, Antigonish and Kings are certain to be redeemed, while the chances for a Conservative victory never looked so bright in the other three, viz.: Digby, Yarmouth and the united counties of Queens and Shelbourne. "I also visited Prince Edward Island," said the Prime Minister, "and I there found our friends splendidly organized, and I may add most hopeful of sweeping the whole Island. It is in fact a settled feeling that three out of the five seats are absolutely safe for the Conservative party and that our chances are good for taking the other two.

The Prime Minister was then asked what he thought of the Patron-Liberal alliance in Ontario and replied as follows: "The exposure took place while ! was down by the sea, but from all learn it is one of the most corrupt and disgraceful alliances ever before made in Canada, and will certainly react on both the Liberal and Patron organizations. UGLY THREATS.

The following is the translation of an article that appears in the Tidende, a Scan dinavian paper, extensively circulated in this province:

A little more than a week or ten days ago, in the post office lobby, while I was Times, spoke to me on the burning ques-tion of the day—the Dominion election. While I was showing him our special illustrated 17th of May edition, he accused me of having brought electors to the voting places in different wards in carriages, a places in different wards in carriages, 'a fact which I honestly could not deny and saw no reason why I should deny. "Well, look here, Amorsen, how would you like to work for one candidate on each side, say Col. Prior on one and I on the other side?" I answered that I could and would do no such thing.
