The noted jockey, Archer, is thus described "He is, I think, the tallest jockey of his weight in practice, and while he is cast in the mould of a horseman, his length of leg gives him an extraordinary grip on the saddle. Active as a monkey, with an eye like a hawk, he steps up to his splendid-looking mount and takes up his reins in the style of a cavarly officer rather than in the orthodox fashion of an ordinary lockey. When the ribbons are secured, he rests his bridle-hand on the withers of the mare, and with his right placed on the cantle of the saddle he quickly raises his left foot, and Matthew Dawson placing his hand under the instep as a purchase, the jockey springs into the tiny saddle like a flash of lightning, while his feet are mechanically passed into the stirrups. All these motions, though distinct, are, as in the case of our cavalry soldiers, so quickly performed that they decive even the oye of the initiated, and appear as one effort."

Prizefighters are made useful in New York city. They are engaged at the principal places of public resort to suppress disorder and to bounce any unruly character that may show fight. Among the fighters so engaged is Billy Edwards, the lightweight champion, who officiat s at the Hoffman house, and says he has little trouble. Being interviewed relative to his duties. Edwards volunteered the following remark: "By the way, the last time I swy you, you were asking me my opinion of Slade and I told you I had not then seen him. Since that time I have seen him spar. I think he is a fine big chunk of a man, and if he takes kindly to fighting, that is, if he really likes it, he may become a remarkably good one But he has much to-learn yet. Mace has not had him long enough. In a year more he may be a match for Sullivan, but he certainly is not now. He is very active for a big man, but it does not stand to reason that a green fellow picked up in the backwoods of Australia could, in a few months of training, get in as he does on Mace—the greatest sparrer the world has ever seen—if Mace really wanted to stop him."

The Man and the Becoys. From the Fin and Feather.

It was bitter cold that morning,
And the piercing wind did blow
The fleecy flakes to scallop
The mantle of the snow.

Beneath a weather beaten hut
We stood- three college boys—
And watched the pond whereon did float
Our wooden duck decoys.

But look! down yonder levee comes A figure closely wrapped. Wi h pistol and with bowie knife Round his abdomen strapped.

'Tis "Massa' with his shot gun, A mighty Ninrod he; He killed three ducks in two weeks' hunt, As true as true can be.

He peers adown the winding slough, A g'ad scene meets his eye, He sees our ducks—fleating there; "Duck ague" 'gins to rise. Ah! see him sneak behind the bank,

Behold him steal about, While we within do almost choke To keep from bustin out.

He peeks about the levee And long and straight does stare, Then wipes his "-peeks" and looks again-lis heart beats fast; they're there. He drops upon his hands and knees, No longer stands on feet, And creeps along through snow and slush, Through mud and slime and sleet.

Gize on his agitation! He lifts his gun at last; His trembling glass backed by his eye Along the sight is passed.

Maladies multiply one another. A simple fit of digestion may—especially if the constitution is not naturally vigorous—throw the entire mechanism of the liver and bowels out of gear. Sick headache follows, poisoning of the blood by bile ensues, and there is grave and serious disturbance of the entire system. Check the threatened dangers at the outset with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic cure, the medicine that drives every impurity from the blood.

At the bal masque recently given at Cunnes in honor of the Prince of Wales' visit, Lady Randolph Churchill scored all the honors. Her ladyship was so closely the honors. Her ladyship was so deely masked and "dominoed" as to defy recognition, while her pure and exquisite French quite dispelled the idea of her being an Englishwoman or an American. She knew everybody, yet nobody "spotted" her until the Prince eventually succeeded in unravelling the mystery before supper.

Crowley are about the most expert of that set."

What set?"

"What set?"

"Why, the White House set. They tell me that they play it 'blind' in deference to Arthur's wishes, and I understand that this has been the most popular way of running the game here this season. In the 'draw game there his season. In the 'draw game there his season. In the 'draw game there is a little chance for skill, but the blind' poker, in which you don't draw at all is the most outrageous form of gambling.

But of course you know all about it."

"Who are the best poker players in the house?"

"Joe Blackburn can deal the pasteboards with as much grace and celerity as any man I know of, and will back his band to any suit. Young Walker, of Pennsylvania, is what is commonly known as a 'daisy-cutter,' and Springer, of Illinois, swears by the jack of clubs. The western men are by far the best card players. I think Ton Young, of Cincinnati and ex-governor of Ohio, is about as smart a one as ever set his foot in Washington, and the man who can bluff him out of a hánd has to get up pretty early in the morning, but the poken-playing here just now is nothing to what it was at Albuny when Boss Tweed ruled the deck."

"By a thorough knowledge of the natura" aws which govern the operations of digestion and autrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselvey well fortified with pure blood and a properly nour-ished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
