

	Special Collections.	Missionary Meetings.	Total.
Yarmouth	$8 00	$9 93	$17 93
Belmont	13 00	4 92	17 92
Wardsville and Bend		15 13	15 13
Wallacetown and Duff's Church		15 00	15 00
Amherstburgh		15 00	15 00
East and West Tilbury		13 60	13 60
Windsor		12 12	12 12
Harwich		12 00	12 00
St. Thomas		11 72	11 72
Widder		11 26	11 26
Adelaide and Warwick		10 91	10 91
Fingal		10 31	10 31
Bothwell		10 00	10 00
Aldborough		7 45	7 45
Wallaceburgh		7 25	7 25
Buxton		7 00	7 00
Frampton North and Dorchester		7 02	7 02
Carlisle		5 25	5 25
Lobo and Carradoc		5 20	5 20
Mandaumin		5 20	5 20
Delaware		2 38	2 38
Mersca		2 35	2 35
	$370 05	$435 12	$805 17

W. CLARK, Treasurer.

Book Notices.

LETTERS TO AFFLICTED FRIENDS—By the late Rev. John Jameson, Methven; 18mo. pp. 118. Edinburgh: Andrew Elliot, 1862.

One can hardly bestow higher praise on these letters than by saying that they are remarkably characteristic of their author. Few men were better known or more admired in the circle to which he belonged. Beyond that circle he was little noticed; for he wrote sparingly, and his preaching was very irregular—wholly dependent on the mood of his mind at the time, and, as is the case with many men of genius, his mind was singularly delicate, sensitive, and mobile. The Rev. George Gilfillan justly says of him, that in intellect he was a man, in simplicity a child, and in affection a woman. He had his own share of affliction, and few were better qualified to soothe the sorrows of others in trouble. He views everything through the medium of piety, ingeniously turns attention to alleviating circumstances, dwells on the bright side of the case, encourages hope, and never fails to urge a right improvement of what was meant as salutary discipline. In the letters also, especially those to his son Alexander, a lad who had gone from home to be employed in a mercantile house, he displays an amount of genuine worldly wisdom combined with the purest piety, which renders the little volume quite a valuable present from any parent to a son similarly situated. It is for the afflicted, however, that the letters are chiefly intended; and for that class, alas, a numerous one, we know few books we can more cordially recommend. It was evidently written with-