The discourse was of a most impressive nature, and, being interspersed with many striking and beautiful anecdotes, rivetted the attention of all. The children were then examined by Mr. Osler, who requested them to give their answers in the words of Scripture, and the way in which the replies were made did credit to their teachers, and commanded the astonishment of all: it was beautiful, after each question, to hear the buzz of youthful voices pouring forth the words of life, now stating the various doctrines of Christiania. of Christianity, now giving a reason of the hope that was in them. After the examination a hymn was sung, and they were then conducted to the tea-table under the booth, where currant cake and delicious pastry were found in rich abundance; the tables, though of immense length, could not recommedate all, so as one party got up, another could not accommodate all, so as one party got up, another sat down,—the inmates of the parsonage and the visitors ying with one another in the pleasing task of waiting on the little ones, who, as soon as they had finished, made room for their parents and friends, who also partook of the good cheer furnished by the untiring exertions of Mrs. Osler, the areal was the road promoter of all her has Osler, the excellent sharer and promoter of all her husband's labours. GASPE' BASIN, IN THE DIOCESE OF QUEBEC.—The term "Gaspé Basin, in the Diocese of Queble."

"Gaspé Basin, is applied to the port or harbour of the county of Gaspé, near the extremity of an extensive and beautiful bay of upwards of 20 miles' continuation of navigable water from the Gulph of St. Lawrence: its shores are but thinly settled, chiefly by members of the Church.— The harbour branches towards the south-west, is completely protected from every wind, and capable of containing a large fleet in the most perfect safety. The Church, a neat wooden building, being in the Gothic style, is on the north side of the harbour, and in exterior as well. as well as internal arrangement, is becoming the great object for which it is dedicated. An increasing congregation, rather beyond what was reasonably contemplated, has rendered it too small to accommodate the worshippers, and recently induced an endeavour to erect others at convenient entered. The convenience of this work has convenient stations. The completion of this work has been rather retarded, from the inability of the members of the Church to contribute largely for carrying on the work, although we are enabled to acknowledge,—which we do not

DISSENT IN HEREFORDSHIRE.—Dissent has a terrible tale to tell in this county. No where does it admit itself to be so defeated and broken down as in Hereford. Hear the Congregational! "In no county in the kingdom is the need of a central institution like the Home Missionary Society, as now constituted, more clearly seen, to assist the weak churches, and to restore the waste places of our denomination. The County Association has become extinet, and some chapels are actually shut up, whilst towns and villages that greatly need the Gospel, do not hear it proclaimed. The return of the Rev. C. U. Davies to the county town is connected with a plan of intended opera-How Markey and colleged in appeal to the Central Markey Markey and the Central Markey tien, which, it is hoped, will produce a more healthy state of things." APPOINTMENT OF THE HON. F. HINCKS. (From the Niagara Chronicle.)

The appointment of Mr Hincks to the office of Inspecto General is strongly censured throughout the length and breadth of the Province. The entire press, with one or two exceptions, loudly condemns this act of our "responsible government," and when all parties unite in doing so, that government, on their own principles, are clearly in the wrong.

On one ground we rather like the appointment of Mr. Hincks. It is a step towards a full definition of the position of ministers, towards making the cabinet completely radical. If all the Conservatives in the cabinet will resign or procure themselves to be shalved and if no Conservative will conserve themselves.

however, of the lecturer, hardly half-a-dozen persons were found present when the time appointed came, and it was only by opening the doors afterwards to a number of the lowest Irish, without payment of the shilling, that anything like an audience could be obtained. The whole athing was an entire failure. The Churchmen of Leeds understand what true Catholic principles are too well to be taken in by an emissary of the Popish schism. The teaching of their vicar is so earnest, so frequent, and so convincing against the errors and pretensions of Popery, that their minds are as well guarded against harm from Rome, as from ultra-protestantism. Well would it be if those who absurdly cry out against High Church principles for being Popish, were to see how much Rome fears

The two sets of members—those chosen by the people and those named by the Crown will be brought into contact with each other, and it is impossible but the latter will suffer by the collision. It is to concede and deny the grand principles of representation: and however the Crown may succeed in obtaining majorities in the Assembly, the moral force will still remain with the popularly elected numbers, who will be supported in their measures by the voice of the people out of doors. Thus the old troubles will be revived.

RESOLVED, that with a view to improve the respectability of the Innkeepers and the accommodations which their houses should afford to the travelling community. It is desirable that some understanding of the Bench of Justices should exist as to the propriety of reducing the number of houses now licensed, that those interested in obtaining Licences for the coming year, may take Notice, and govern themselves accordingly:

It has the commodation of a superior description, and an unquestionable character for sobriety and general good conduct, and that when two or more applications are made for licencing houses in the same vicinity, a preference will invariably be given to those possessing the best character and accommodations. And no applications for licencing new houses will be entertained, tuness it shall be clearly shewn, to the satisfaction of the Justices, not only that the applicant is a fit and proper person to keep a Purbic House, has sufficient accommodations for that purpose, but that also a necessity does positively exist for a Tavern in that situation.
