ZT There is not a Man, Woman or Child anywhere, in all the Country, who reads this, who cannot easily get two or more others to join him or her in taking the Paper and thus secure, FREE, one, or more than one, of the desirable articles described below.

There are from 25 to 500 families, or more, in the vicinity of each Post Office, every one of whom would be benefited by having this paper for a year at a cost, postage included, of 3 cents a week. From one to a dozen Premium clubs, small or large, may be gathered in the vicinity of each Post Office, and as many premiums be obtained. You may get one or more of them.

A GENERAL PREMIUM.

A FREE COPY to the sender of a Club of 5 sub-scribers, at $1 each, without other Premiums.

Every subscriber whose name is sent in by those working for premiums or otherwise, will have the choice of the following:—

IST.—SIX PURE NICKEL-SILVER TEASPOONS, beautifully finished. Nickel Silver is a white metal like Silver, and being solid cannot wear down to brass like a silver-plated spoon. They are easier to keep bright than silver, and the six would sell in any retail store for 50 cents.

six would sell in any retail store for 50 cents.

2nd—A BEAUTIFUL ILLUMINATED CHROMO MOTTO WITH PORTRAIT OF PIUS IX. OR L. O. XIII. A written description cannot give the reader the least conception of those beautiful gems of art. In their centre is a well executed and life-like portrait of Pius IX or Leo XIII, surrounded by a wreath of lilies, on each side of which there is in large illuminated letters, their mottoes in Latin and English. The size of the mottoes are 21x83 inches, and are worth 50 cents each. Any subscriber wanting both of them, can have the extra motto by forwarding 25 cents extra, above the subscription price, this simply pays cost of importing, postage, &c. We will send them neatly framed in rustic for 50 cents extra; or in veneer, engraved corners, 75 cents; subscriber paying expressage.

The above prizes will be given only to such of our present subscribers as will have their subscription paid for the year 1879.

TESTIMONIALS.

DR. HARVEY'S HONEY DEW EXTRACT. Toronto, December 29th, 1878. Some three years ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs. I had a dry, hacking couch. I could netther rest by day or sleep at night. I became alarmed at my situation, but could get no permanent relief until I tried Dr. Harvey's Honey Dew Extract, and after taking a few doses I felt great relief. I continued for a few weeks, and am nowentirely recovered.

C. M. CARTER.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 29th, 1878. My little boy had the whooping cough last spring. Spite of all I could do the coughing continued. He lost flesh and could not sleep, and I was afraid that my poor boy would never recover. I tried all sorts of things, and I have great pleasure in saving that it was by using three small bottles of Dr. Harvey's Honey Dew three that my child is now in health and getting quite robust.

MRS. REBECCA J. MOORE.

TORONTO, Out., January 14th, 1879.

I had for some years been badly afflicted with Thad for some years been badly afficied with an argravating and alarming cough. My friends as well as myself became affald of my condition. I found no relief in any remedy until I commenced using 'Dr. Harvey's Honey. Dew Extract, and after taking it some three weeks I ceased to cough, and can now sleep well at night, and am rapidly gaining strength, and liesh.

HOW A PRIEST WON A DECORA-TION.

(From the French)

-is a village situated near Roanne; it along. The cure of the place was a splendid fine old man, upon whose shoulders his snowwhite locks fell down with patriarchal sim-plicity. He was of a very cheerful disposition, his face deeply bronzed, and, in spite of his seventy years, he was still strong and straight as an oak. For more than twenty years he administered to the spiritual wants of his people and was, in effect, like the father of all the inhabitants.

Returning home from the church, where this pious old man was accustomed to spend the morning, he would sometimes stop to chat a moment to the villagers, who seated outside their doors on large wooden benches, were enjoying their midday refection. His Sunday instruction, simple, but practical, had quent discourses of Bossnet and Father Lacordaire would have had. This veteran ecclesiastic was decorated with the Legion of Honour and upon his left breast he carried a fold of scarlet ribbon, which quickly attracted attention from the striking contrast between the scarlet and the blackstuff suitane.

The cure had amongst his parishioners an enemy. He was a man whose name was Martin, who, on his return from military service ten years before, got married in the country, and bought there a little farm on the banks of the Loire, about five hundred yards from the village. Martin hated priests. He forbade his wife to assist at the Divine office, reached it. Holding on by the chimney, the

There a terrifying spectacle met their gaze. For the space of two miles around, the Loire rolled black and threatening, dragging with it whatever it met in its course. All the village was out looking at the flood, which rising higher and higher, now beat against the bottom of the hill, on the side of which the village was pleasantly situated. The terrified women clung to their husbands, fathers, or brothers, whilst the latter were themselves silent, thoughtful and anxious. Suddenly a man appeared, his lofty stature towering over the trembling crowd. Twas the cure. The people reverentially fell back, to permit him to pass, with that true religious instinct which so deeply characterises the relations of our own poor Irish Catholic people with their clergy. The veteran priest cast a long wistful look towards the horizon. "My children" he suddenly cried, "look there," pointing at the same time, in the direction of Martin's house. A cry of horror went up from the crowd, for upon the root of the house a woman, with dishevelled hair was running wildly backwards and forwards like a lioness in her cage, dragging after her two little children who cried most pitifully. Upon the chimney was seated a man, his eye fixed and gloomy, who seemed to be engaged only in counting how many moments of life still remained for him. 'Twas Martin." Let us go quickly," said the energetic old cure: "Let us not lose a moment, we must save them," and turning towards his parish-ioners.—" My children," he added, inquiringly "there are some brave fellows amongst you who will not refuse to snatch this poor unfortunate family from a certain death." man stirred. "Let us see," again the cure ventured in a vehement tone of exhortation, You surely will not leave Martin and his family die thus." Then, striking one after another upon the broad powerful shoulders of the peasantry, who, terrified and ashamed, lowered their heads upon their breasts, "Let us see! You, Thomas! You, James! You, Claude! You, John.

" Very well, be it so," cried the generous self-sacrificing priest, "You cannot expose yourself-you there. looks down upon a great plain, through But as for me, I will go to try and save these which the Loire rolls majestically and calmly unfortunates!" "Oh, don't go there, Monsieur le Cure, don't go there," cried the crowd, now surrounding him, "your boat will be broken to pieces against the arches of the bridge,' exclaimed Pierre. "The current will carry it away." cried Thomas—"You are going to certain death," said the third. "Leave, leave me," remonstrated the cure, disengaging himself from the restraints of his loving parishioners, and descending with a precipitate step towards the boat, the courageous old man jumped into it, handled the two oars, and shooting forward into the open space, settled down for a hard pull to wards the house
