OUR FRENCH VISITORS.

MASS UPON THE "ARETHUSE."

Different Preparations Made and Programmes Carried Out in their Honor.

The French admiral and the officers of the "Arethuse" and "Hussard" were royally entertained during the whole of Saturday. In the forenoon the members of the Reception Committee took them in hand and a procession of carriages took the party to the Mountain Park, with which the visitors were, as a matter of course, highly delighted. Mr. McGibbon presented handsome bouquets to the Admiral and officers and the party sat down to an excellent luncheon prepar-ed by Messrs. Hall & Scott. A few toasts were enthusiastically proposed and res-ponded to and Mr. Frechette read a poem of welcome, which was cheered to the echo. A drive through the cemeter ies and along the Outremont road brought he visitors to the Haras National, where they were received by the managing direc tors, Mr. Turenne and Mr. L. Beaubien, jr The French officers were delighted with the animals exhibited and the whole arrangements of the institution. An adjournment was then made to the mansion of the Hon. Mr. Beaubien, where refreshments were served. The party then returned to the city, and, in the evening, the admiral with his staff and a large number of sailors visited Solimer Park. A special programme had been prepared, the park was brilliantly illuminated and decorated and there was also a display of fireworks. Over 15,000 people were

THE MASS.

The special feature, on Sunday, was the solemn Mass on board the 'Arethuse." The main deck had been turned into a chapel brilliantly illuminated and decorated. The ship's chaplain officiated, and in front of the altar were Admiral Libron, supported on his right by Mayor McShane and on his left by Captain Bernier. A large number of ladies were present and the whole deck was crowded with invited guests. The band played during the service, and at the elevation Saturday's demonstration in Hamilton of the Host, the guard of honor prefor the St. John's sufferers will realize sented arms and the clarions played. THE FRENCH OFFICERS FITTINGLY ENTER-TAINED BY THE 65TH BATTALION. The Herald gives the following report of the beautiful ball :-

The co-patriots of the gallant tars who are now vising the port of Montreal, seem to have made up their minds that they shall not return to the motherland without having, not only the most lively but also the most enjoyable recollections of their North American trip. Various entertainments have been above the armory, in which the dancing took place, could not be recognized by reason of the military decorations. On every side the glitter of armor flashed its silver radiance upon the handsomely dressed ladies and gentlemen, and to the strains of the band of the entertaining regiment they danced the grand fantastic until an early hour in the morning. This delightful program, however, was inter-rupted by the veteran caterer, J. T. Dixon, notifying the master of ceremonies that supper awaited the guests in the armory room below, which had been specially decorated for the occasion, and the tables with their colored lights, as well as the appetizing dishes which loaded them down, presented a scene which will not be soon torgotten by our gailant visitors. After this recherche repast had been partaken of nothing but encomiums could be heard on all sides at the excellent manner in which it had been served up.

Supper having being concluded, the happy guests once more returned to the room, where dancing was kept up to a late nour. The Committee of Reception were: Lt.-Col. Prevest, Major Labelle. Major Hebert, and Capt. and Adjt. Roy GAVAN DUFFY.

An Interesting Interview on the Sub ject of the Revival in Irish National Literature.

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy was interviewed recently by a newspaper representative in Dublin, on the subject of the revival in Irish national literature. "How is the scheme to be managed?"

the veteran Irishman was asked.

"Like all companies—by directors.
The shareholders will choose tive or seven directors, and they will manage

"Will their management include the literary question and the selection of

"There will, I trust, be two or three literary men among the directors who will necessarily exercise large influence on this question, but to make sure that the project which I have designed may answer its purpose, and obtain public confidence by a rigid adherence to the principles on which we set out, I will isk the shareholders to give me such a general control over the scheme as I exercised over the Library of Ireland from its projection to its completion, and I will take care that the books are worthy of confidence."

"Do you object to a literary committee in Dublin taking an initiative in the selection of books?" "Not at all; such a committee if it were chosen by a vote of the share-holders or appointed by the directors might perform a very useful function. They might propose books which they considered it advisable to publish, and it would be for the directors to determine whether or not they approved of their suggestion. You cannot have too many men's minds engaged in the project if their single desire be to help it, and if young men they will necessarily know more of the wants and wishes of their generation than older ones." Will the publication of the books take place in Dublin?"

"Certainly, but it will take place simultaneously, I hope, in London, New York and Melbourne. The busi ess of publication in Ireland is quite paralyzed. We hoped to form a syndicate of pub-lishers, and perhaps this will be done, as several of the existing publishers concur in the idea."

"Why is it necessary to have recourse to these foreign countries to accomplish an Irish work?"

I do not consider Irishmen in America or Australia any more foreigners than Irishmen in Munster or Leinster. Quite otherwise, indeed. They will make greater sacrifices for the cause, those exiled Irishmen, than Irishmen at home."

"Would it not be better that all work of publication was done here-offering the books afterwards to America and the Colonies to take if they will?"

"That method, I think, would ensure a total failure. My personal experience is that England, America and the Colonies buy Irish books, and that in Ireland you must sell them at a low price or give them away. "Will shilling books cover the whole field of National literature?"

"Why not? The price of a book has no relation to its value. I bought in London the other day at 41d a volume of a library containing Edmund Burke's Reflections on the Present Crisis, the greatest political pumphlet written for 150 years. Besides, the tervor of a literary remaissance spreads upwards as well as downwards. Mr. George Smith, of Hodges & Smith told me that he never would have ventured to publish O'Donovan's "Translation of the Four Masters," or Petric's "Round Towers," both costly books, but for the mental heat created by the Young Ireland movement; and Butt and LeFanu, who were at the time active Conservatives, told me that in writing "The Gap of Carnesmore" and the "Cock and Anchor," Irish metorical novels of a singularly generous character ! Ouservalive-. they were constantly thinking of what the men of the Nation, as they called them, would say to their achievements?

" Are you now confident that the company with be formed?"

"Yes, I may say I am, as a company can be formed by seven persons, but whether the shares will be taken up with avidity I cannot venture to predict. If few men will take a hundred pounds worth each, and nearly all who attended the conference will probably take a few shares, more or less. The necessary documents will be prepared immediately and submitted to legal supervision, and fterwards circulated amongst those likely to desire shares. The Press, which goes everywhere, can help it effectually, and if it does. I think the project will suc-

Panic in a Church.

The Roman Catholic Church, three miles from Forestville, Mich., was burned to the ground on Sunday and the following people were injured: Miss Tilly Gustin, latally; William Grant, seriously; Mrs. Jane Armstrong seriously. The fire was discovered while the service was being held and a wild panic ensued among the members of the congregation. Women and children were trampled upon and many of them were badly bruised. Miss Gustin, who was fatally burned, was so seriously hurt during the mad rush for the door that she was unable to make her escape and was caught by the flames.

The entomological section of the United States Agricultural Department reports a very dangerous insect enemy of the potato. It is known as the potato tuber moth, and has been exceedingly destructive in Australia. It first appeared in this country in California, last November. Efforts will be made to stamp it out by destroying potatoes infected with it, and if necessary suspending potato culture for a year or two where the moth has appeared.

Professor Henry, of the Wisconsin experiment station, found, by thorough experiment, that of $100 worth of corn product $37 was in stalks and $60 was in the ears. It may be well to bear this in mind the present season and see if some practical means can not be put in action to save the stalks in better shape. There has been and will be yet as fearful waste of money already curned in the shape of wasted corn fodder. Some farmers say they have not help esough to save the fodder rightly. It is hard to see how they can make money by growing so many acres of corn that they must lose over one-third of its value in order to save two-thirds. Less acres and more thorough work will solve the problem.
