This season richly brocaded silks with threads of stiver and gold seem to be the thing for evening wraps. Those silks are almost prohibitive in price, but it occurred to me they are almost exactly like the huge flowered brocades which upholsterers use to cover chairs with.

House furnishers aren't using those big brocades for sofas and furniture now—upholstered furniture has rather been pushed aside by plain wood pleces—so it isn't difficult to buy the goods very reasonably. Some of the brocades are too heavy, but others are light and supple and would make beautiful evening wraps for a fifth the price of the goods sold by the yard on the counters.

One cost which I saw in the pleaves full.

One coat which I saw in the theatre lobby was very smart. It was made of long-haired cream plush, and as the wearer slipped off the coat I saw that it had lining of brocaded crepe. The collar was made of black monkey fur, and the woman carried a barrelshaped muff of the same fur.

Another coat which reminded me of an evergreen tree in winter had a ground of green velvet which was covered with white marks representing snow flakes. A banana-colored velvet wrap had a flat collar of cream Venice lace and a standing collar of white fox fur.

The proposal that the occasional teachers for the public schools would be supplied by the faculty of education free of charge is to be placed of ficially before the management committee this afternoon by the chief inspector, backed by the special committee which has made the agreement with the Ontario Department of Education and the university authorities. The experiment will start off with a staff of forty volunteer teachers-intraining. The Toronto ratepayers will save an enormous sum of money by its adoption. The forty teachers on the list will simply succeed a like number who will be placed on the permanent, staff; instead of taking on another forty on the scheduled pay.

Among the many pictures of reproductions of actual scenes in the war zone which appear in this week's Sunday World there are views of how the Germans make their prisoners work at roadmaking and as beasts of burden in taking the place of horses. There is a pathetic picture of a Belgian priest giving the last rites to a dying soldier. Views of English and Canadian Red Cross nurses who are taught to pitch a tent in addition to their duties of nursing. There is a view of the battle fought at Peronne, which is a grim illustration of the deadly nature of this war. The Sunday World is for sale by all newsdealers and newsboys at five cents a copy.

So much for the story; but such a synopsis can give little idea of the interest aroused in Mr. Wells' handling of the various problems involved: the entrance of freedom into the connubial state, especially as it is known in Lingland; the reason for women's desira for suffrage, and perhaps one reason for militancy; the impossibility of reaching certain classes of neonic

Few writers possess this author's power of vivid interpretation. He goes deep into the heart of things and into the very souls of his characters, so that the things become live issues, and the people, living, breathing personalities.

CANADIAN - MADE PIANOS FOR AUSTRALIA.

Ye Olde Firms of Heintzman & Co. Limited, Have Entered the Field of the Antipodes.

A recent visitor in Toronto was Mr. H. G. Cutler, representative of W. H. Paling & Co., Limited, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, the largest and wealthiest house in the plano business in that country. The Australians have been importing their high-class planos from Germany, but "Made in Germany" is a slogan that does not count today in the sister colony any more than in Canada. This has made it necessary that the Aushas made it necessary that the Australian piano men should seek other fields for business and this accounts for the visit of Mr. Cutler to Toronto. Mr. Cutler went very carefully into the question of the merits of the Heintzman & Co. Piano, as it was necessary that they should secure an instrument that would take as high a place in his country as do some of the high-class German planos, which have obtained years of standing there. The investigation satisfied W. H. Paling & Co. that no mistake could be made in Co. that no mistake could be made in accepting the pianos of Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co. for their Australian trade, and an order was placed for immediate shipment of samples of Grand and Upright Pianos and the Heintzman & Co. famous Player-

Stale and Cracked Eggs a Menace to the Public Health

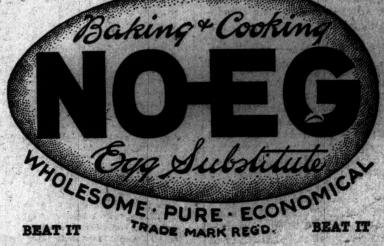

History records that more men have died through pesti-lence and disease than through actual warfare. Sanitation and pure food laws have done much to improve the public health by making it impossible to supply food that is not fit for human consumption. There yet remains, however, the menace of stale eggs which are sold regularly to the public at too high a price.

Fresh eggs are good and should be encouraged, but no wo-man who values the health of her family will put stale eggs in her pies, cakes and puddings. To make this unnecessary we offer to the public a pure substitute for eggs in baking and cooking known as NO-EG.

NO-EG is pure and made from the egg product, containing nothing but the food elements we eat every day.

NO-EG comes fresh every time it is required. NO-EG cannot get stale. It is a wholesome food product, scientifically prepared. NO-EG is economical because it gives the housewife eggs at an average of 61/2c a dozen.
