MONDAY MORNING, OCT. 17, 1910.

NO COMMITMENT MEANTIME.

Attempts to compromise North Toronto in the matter of its public franchises have not been relaxed. The Interurban Light and Power Company, which is nothing but a subsidiary organization of the Toronto Electric Light Company, has made a proposition to the town by which it hopes to secure a new franchise in the municipality for ten years, and probably by artful wording of the agreement to establish ultimately a claim that such is perpetual. The terms proposed by the Interurban Company are on the surface exceedingly liberal. They offer to provide light at the same prices as that ruling in the city, and at the same time to throw in gratis the lighting of the town hall. But it is doubtful if the bait will be sufficiently attractive to induce the council to commit themselves to a deal.

North Toronto must preserve its rights and liberties untrammelled, and steadily refuse to negotiate with any corporation until the people have been heard from in the matter of annexation to the city. If North Toronto wants light and power, there is only one satisfactory way to get it, and that is from the hydro-electric commission, either thru the city or directly from the government organization. By taking electricity from a public undertaking all danger of future trouble is removed and the interests of the municipality will be effectively safeguarded.

WAIT FOR THE VOTE.

Pending the result of the vote on the subject of annexation to the city, no new departure should be made modifying the present position of North Toronto as regards its public franchises. If the vote is favorable, these will become part of the greater problem the city is now considering, and it would be distinctly objectionable if any enlargement of the existing grants is authorized. This is an aspect of the situation which should determine the attitude of the Provincial Municipal and Railway Board towards the application for power to double track Yonge-street, made by the Radial Railway Company, really the Toronto Street Railway Company. The company's move has been prompted by the desire to anticipate annexation and to make it more difficult for the enlarged city to deal properly with the transportation problem. Common fairness requires that the application be held in abeyance until the annexation vote is taken.

THE CITY AND THE LIGHT COMPANY.

There will be no dissent from the action or non-action of the board of control over the letter of the Toronto Electric Light Company, signifying the willingness of the company to sell. The city has made various overtures, and been rebuffed. For the first time the company seems to have had a glimmer of the light of reason, and has headed itself in the right direction.

But it will have to do more than get its head in the right direction. It must make some move. It must have some idea of what it wants for itself. It must be prepared to make an offer with a little more than a mere glimmer of reason about it. There must be a business basis for negotiations, and there must be a realization of the fact that the city has been compelled by the obstinacy of the company to do a great deal of work that renders the company's assets of much less value than they were some years ago, not to speak of the deterioration of the company's plant due to ordinary causes.

The officials of the company know the conditions thoroughly well. They are under no delusions. Sir Henry Pellatt is as well aware of the present worth of the Toronto Electric Light Company's plant as any man alive. He must not suppose that the city has any delusions about it either. If he wants to sell, he must be prepared to regard the proposal as indifferently and as judicially and with as little prejudice as if he were going to buy. What would Sir Henry offer for the company if he were going to buy it, instead of trying to sell it? It would enable negotiations to begin if Sir Henry would propound his views on that basis.

Meanwhile, why has Toronto not the power that a commercial corporation has to acquire stock in the Electric Light Company in the open market? If the city could buy the stock thru a broker, the matter could be settled probably in a short time. If a firm like Messrs. Osler, Hammond & Co. were entrusted with the task of getting control of the company's stock, would it be impossible for them to do so? We believe that solution of the problem should have been available for some years.

Sir James Whitney has stated that government intervention may be necessary if the city and the company do not get together. Let him give the city power to purchase the common stock of the company in the open market, and the stock of any other similar company which the trend of the times must inevitably bring under city control eventually, and many municipal difficulties would be removed. Sir James is not adverse to having the Toronto Electric Light Company absorbed by the city. Can there be a fairer or easier method than the ordinary commercial method?

The Electric Light Company was permitted to absorb its rival to the detriment of the citizens and in defiance of the plain agreement made with the city. No violence will be done to any interest if the city is allowed to act as any individual might act and as many corporations are allowed to act.

If Sir James will not consent to this, he must at least see the reasonableness of having the company approach the city, which has so often sued to no purpose.

Hon. George E. is a brave man. He is coming back, he says, in spite of what happened to Jeffries. Moving picture men please take notice.

Premier Whitney's statement looks like an effort to clear Hon. Dr. Reaume. Mr. Malsonville's statement does not clash with that view. Perhaps the genial doctor will now tell what he knows.

OFFERING OF SHARES

A. E. Ames & Co. Limited, Make Public Offer of $500,000 Pacific-Burt Company, Limited, 7 Per Cent. Cumulative Convertible Preference Stock, With Bonus of Common Shares.

An advertisement that will receive consideration not only because of its own character, but because of the standing of the firm advertising it, is published in our advertising columns to-day. A. E. Ames & Co. Limited, offer $500,000 of the 7 per cent. cumulative convertible preference stock of the Pacific-Burt Company, Limited, carrying a bonus of 25 per cent. of the amount of the preference stock in common shares. The nature of the business is fully outlined in the advertisement, the Pacific-Burt Company, Limited, being a company newly chartered under the laws of the Province of Ontario, but taking over profitable and going concern—the Pacific Manufacturing Book Company of Emeryville (San Francisco, California). The scope of the new company's business is the business of the Pacific Manufacturing Book Company, with the addition of a "Burt" department, which latter is expected, will, in a few years, become a most important concern.

Ames & Co. state that they expect a hearty response to the advertisement for a number of reasons, among which are the present strength of the company and its prospects, the indicated return as from January 1 next of 11.2 per cent. on the amount of the investment, the favorable conditions which the issue is being made and the record of the F. H. Burt Company, Limited, four of whose directors are on the board of the Pacific-Burt Company.

LIBERALISM AND THE CORPORATIONS.

Editor World: I have noticed, with some surprise I must confess, the light you are making for the people's ownership of public utilities. This surprise is further augmented by the fact that The Hamilton Times is making so strong a fight to continue these monopolies in private hands. I must also confess that my knowledge of these facts is almost wholly derived from the columns of The Times. That is, of both your station and the opposition almost my whole knowledge is derived from The Times' columns. Its position—The Times—must be a source of daily surprise to the old time Liberals, who remember Garfield. How the party, as a party of the people, can continue to influence public opinion seriously, is something of a mystery—that is, and continue to regard The Times as its organ. The head and front of all grafters in our American cities, and the main corrupters of our councils and local politicians, are the public service corporations, and the most glaring instances of "watered" securities, upon which these corporations force the public to pay interest, are to be found amongst them. I hardly even say that the Street Trust, whose "graff" on the public, by reason of tariff, is a most glaring instance, altho Andy Carnegie refused to take any of the preferred or common stock in exchange for his property (holding that both of these were pure "water"), and demanded bonds. My interest would not, at this time, have influenced me to write you, had

Public Amusements

Unquestionable success attended the experiment of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening of giving a popular concert, and we may look forward in the future to the establishment of a regular series of such concerts annually. The audience in Association Hall was a thoroughly encouraging one for the beginning, and only a few seats under the gallery at the back were vacant, so that for next Saturday, when another program will be given, application for tickets will have to be made early.

The concert fulfilled its first mission in being thoroughly popular, and yet, such is the taste and knowledge of Frank Weisman, the conductor, every item was of the highest class. Indeed, the most popular and highly-applauded pieces were perhaps the most truly classical number on the program. This was Beethoven's lovely "Minuet" for viola and piano, delightfully rendered by Frank Converse Smith and Frank Weisman. The leading phrases of the music hall song "Won't You Harmonize With Me?" are stolen from this composition, which Mr. Smith rendered with subtle and vibrant feeling and restrained power. The audience was carried away and applauded most persistently until the minutest was repeated. Mr. Smith also played a charming andantino from an Italian suite of Edmund Severn, and this was almost equally well received. David Ross secured the favor of the audience by his singing of "Dio Possente," from Gounod's "Faust." The orchestra accompanied in quite the grandest of grand opera styles. It was done with vitality and spirit. In Clay's setting of Kinsley's "Bands of Des" Mr. Ross sang with tragical pathos and displayed much originality of interpretation with true feeling. Hatton's animated "Did Me to Live and I Will Live Thy Part" should be remembered as a brilliant dash and gained an encore, which Mr. Ross acknowledged in the bright little trifle, "Dr. Maglin."

The orchestra played perfectly. They were well in hand and apparently indubitably familiar with their score. The opening number was the overture to Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor." The glowing warmth of the opening passages was given with cordial feeling, and the sprightly movements following were rendered with freedom and animation. Schumann's "Träumerei" was an encore, the unanimity and color in the needs deserving the compliment, but the repetition was reserved for the encore. The encore was a most delightful composition full of the joyous animation of springtime, and performed with exceeding daintiness. Dvorak's lovely largo, "From the New World," should be remembered as a brilliant dash and gained an encore, which Mr. Ross acknowledged in the bright little trifle, "Dr. Maglin."

The Imperial Russian Ballet, headed by Mile. Anna Pavlova and M. Mikhail Mordkin, who will appear at Massey Hall next Thursday, afternoon and evening, includes a group of character dancers as the chief support of the famous troupe, and an orchestra recruited from the membership of the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra, with Theodore Skler, the London conductor, making an organization of about seventy people.

In order to approach an adequate description of the performances the term "familiar opera" has been coined. In justification it may be said that the ballet as presented in Russia approximates "visual opera." Entire programs, consisting of dancing only, are given through the seasons, the participants are graduates of government schools, where the course of instruction covers a number of years; dramas, sketches, operas call them what you like—are given especially for interpretation thru choreography and in consequence of all this the ballet has reached a stage of perfection in Russia that has caused it to be adopted as the national art of the country.

Anna Pavlova and Mikhail Mordkin are acknowledged to be the greatest living exponents of that art. Their performances include many creations of the type just referred to, of which "Giselle" is an excellent example, as is also "Le Lac des Cygnes." The former is a story dealing with the tragic love of Giselle and her lover, Albert. After the death of Albert, Albert appears at her grave to mourn and is confronted by his lost sweetheart in the form of a sylphide. Albert pursues her as if it were a mortal to dance with a sylphide, she eludes him and he dies of a broken heart. The narrative is elaborated by a curious imposed upon Giselle which condemns her to dance for ever, a naughty spirit, hence her appearance in the graveyard when Count Albert comes to mourn. In the background, through this action, is the sinister figure of the unwhimsical humbug, Hilari, who intrudes himself upon the midnight dance of the sylphide and loses his life as a penalty.

Starting in New York October 15, a tour to the Pacific coast and back must be completed in less than ten weeks. In consequence, the only cities given more than one day in the wild flight are: Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles.
The prices for this attraction are from 50 cents to $1.00. For the matinee performance there are 600 seats at $1.50 and 600 at $1. and 600 rush seats at 50 cents.

The management of the Alexandra Theatre, pleasure in announcing for this week, commencing to-night, a theatrical attraction, the famous English comedian, Weddon Grossmith, who accompanied by his own London company, will be seen in Mr. Carlton's successful three-act farce, "Mr. Freely and the Countess." The organization is to be brought here in its entirety. The only matinee will be on Saturday.

The offering at the Grand this week is the Kirke La Shelle dramatization of Owen Wister's novel "The Virginian." The play teams with the breezy ranch atmosphere that obtained in the Wyoming cattle country a quarter of a century ago, when ranch owners and cowpunchers were the leading lights
