THE RAILWAY PROPOSALS. The Grand Trunk Pacific scheme, as announced semi-officially by the government, may be considered in two ways. There is a plan for the immediate relief of the situation in the west, and there is the larger plan of a new transcontinental railway, giving an all land route from Port Simpson to the Maritime Provinces.

In the west the settlers are coming in so fast and the grain raising area is to call attention to the futility of is being increased so rapidly that more facilities are required for getit is circulating, there are many refermection with lake vesseis, for carrying at least a large share of their labelled them "Pie-crust."

TUESDAY MORNING

The next reflection explains the intervention of the nerve doctor as an authority in the case. Mrs. Carlyle, in spite of all this, was not a happy woman. Her physical condition was always out of gear. She was, in fact, in a chronic state of being "run down." On page 47 of the first volume she is afraid shee has posted a letter without scaling it. posted a letter without sealing it, and the thought comes into her mind like liquid fire and runs over her whole face, neck and arms; on page 51 she is agitated, on arminimum and the sealing its agitated. on page 51 she is agitated, on arriving at Manchester, by the remembrance that she has come off without the address to which she is going; on page 52 she is "dreadfully frightened" at the prospect of her first railway journey, believing that she will certainly faint, and being distressed by "the impossibility of getting the horrid thing stopped"; and on page 61 she professes herself unable to do anything except fret herself to fiddlestrings. Later, she passes thru terrible sufferings because at a country postoffice there has been overlooked for two hours a letter she has been expecting from her husbanders and the suffering from her husbanders. looked for two hours a letter she has been expecting from her husband on her birthday. She imagines that all kinds of horrible things have happened to him; and, when the omission is cleared up, she declares that she is as much broken to pieces by this little accident as if she had come thru an attack of cholera or typhus fever; she cannot even steady her hand to write decently. Later still, we find her nervous troubles so acute that she resorts to the habitual use of dangerous drugs. "I sat up reading gerous drugs. "I sat up reading till three in the morning. Then I made a bold venture and took before lying down thirty drops of morphia. I used to get good of an exceptional dose of this sort. Even that couldn't put me to sleep for a minute; but it gave me a sensation of rest instead of wildness; and I lay patiently till seven."

Our only excuse for this quotation is to call attention to the futility of the controversy. A man whose genius all admire, but whose literary work ting the grain to the ocean. OFFER A REWARD. Editor World: The piratical attempt the other night on the part of the Toronto Street Railway Co. to take possession of our streets is a most contemptible piece of business, and it is to be hoped that the press and the proper authorities will leave no stone unturned to ferret out the trouble. A reward ought to be offered for the apprehension and conviction of the party or parties responsible for the diabolical proceeding, and ignoring of public rights. This is a grave question and concerns every citizen. If such acts are allowed to proceed no property holder would be safe from the invasion of any corporation wishing to extend its vicious propensities. Nothing indeed will be gained from the public by corporations in such "unde hand tricks." Remarks as reported uttered by the directors and servants alike of the Street Railway Co., savor too much of conjuring criminal invasion. However, this is one more nail in the coffin of corporation fran-chises, and another column in supchises, and another port of public ownership.

The Independent Order of Foresters' annual reunion closed yesterday. It was a great gathering, and a most enjoyable time was spent by the members of the staff from headquarters, and a large number of prominent people from the United States and Canada, from the United States and Canada, and on Saturday evening a ball was ing it, and gathering to it given in the ball room of the castle, the Supreme Chief Ranger's magnificent summer home.

He only briefly outlined what he proposes to do, but stated that very shortly he would place the whole scheme in detail before the membership. After thanking them all for their kindness and expressing the pleasure he felt at having them as his guests the Chief said. pressing the pleasure he felt at having them as his guests the Chief said:

Their resources were encorrously increasing, and their expenditures proportionately decreasing. (Cheers.) He was proud—that over $6000 a day was astracked, he said, for his pride in this matter, by the manager of one of the great old line insurance companies of Canada, this attack being published in the columns of an insurance companies when they paid large dividends to stockholders.
