

"LIFE'S A FUNNY PROPOSITION" IS CLEVER COMEDY

"Life's a Funny Proposition," a clean, clever comedy, featuring William Desmond, was presented at the Patricia Theatre yesterday, and will be repeated today and Saturday. This photoplay is based on a theme that fairly scintillates with humor. The story is as follows:

A young bachelor, Jimmie Pendleton, fights shy of the women folk until he meets the "one" girl and then he falls hard. Mary Austin is the girl, and her blonde beauty sure did hit Jimmie "between the eyes." But long before Jimmie and Mary decide to live in a cottage for two, a series of events come into the life of Jimmie that prove that "Life's a Funny Proposition." It all comes about after a friend of Jimmie's who is secretary and treasurer of the Belgian Relief War Relief, leaves one of his changes on Jimmie's door-step and Jimmie is obliged to care for the youngster, because his friend, after carrying out the job, meets with an automobile accident and is confined to a hospital for several days. Jimmie is so embarrassed that he is afraid to tell of the new member in his household. Jimmie's uncle, who had gathered together nearly all the money that "grew" in Kansas, has selected a country girl for Jimmie's partner. He, however, it wouldn't do to tell how this funny proposition is solved, but we will say that Jimmie and Mary are united to live happily ever after. A two-reel Big V comedy and a Mutt and Jeff animated cartoon complete a screen program replete with comedy from start to finish.

"Les Miserables" Showing at Patricia Next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

When Victor Hugo's greatest work, "Les Miserables" was put out in 1862, he insisted that it should be published simultaneously in London, Paris, Brus-

ENID BENNETT AND "FATTY" ARBUCKLE AT THE MAJESTIC

Commodore Tom and His Trained Pony Presenting Vaudeville Act.

Realism prevails in the production of "Partners Three," the latest Thomas H. Ince photoplay, featuring Enid Bennett, which is showing at the Majestic Theatre today and Saturday.

Much of the action of the story takes place on the great American desert, and to secure the proper setting Mr. Ince sent his director, Fred Niblo and the entire company out on the desert for a week to shoot the locations. The players camped in tents out on the sand amid cactus and sage brush. Large cans of water were taken out in the commissary automobile, but before the scenes were finished it was necessary to send a machine back for a new supply.

In addition to this feature photoplay, "Fatty" Arbuckle, the popular comedian, is appearing in his latest laughing success, "Cheating." A News Weekly film completes a screen program excellent in every way.

The wonderful pony which is performing on the stage at the Majestic has been a source of great delight to patrons the last two days. It is without a doubt a remarkable animal in many ways, seeming at times to have in almost human intelligence.

The management is giving a reception on the stage after tomorrow's matinee performance especially for children to see the pony at close quarters.

"The Admiral's Broom" is a ballad, vigorous and tuneful, having all the swing of a rollicking song of the sea and possessing breadth of business as well as strength of workmanship.
