LIVING ROOM NO. 3—A Tasteful Modern Effect at a very small outlay

SUPPOSE you do not want to go to much expense but you would like a modern living room furnished in good taste. You are confronted with the problem of how near you can reach your ideal within a certain limit of cost. Here's one solution for your problem. Your room is the ordinary upstairs sitting-room, or perhaps you wish to use the front room or "parlor" on the ground floor as a Living Room. It will be of average size—say 11x15 feet, with two ordinary sash windows, or casements—just as the house happens to provide. A grate with a low plain mantel would preferably be the fireplace but we are not advocating any special style. We will suppose that you make best use of whatever is already there.

First thing to consider in inexpensively furnishing this room as a modern living room is the floor cover. It's a pine floor perhaps. We want the hardwood effect. Lay a Scotch inlaid parquet linoleum resembling the grain of quarter-cut oak around the margin of the room, 18 inches wide. This linoleum can be waxed just the same as wood. A plain bordered seamless Wilton Velvet Rug would then cover the remainder of the floor, in red or green. Early English or mission furniture is not expensive. Cushions would be covered with Puritan Tapestry, an extremely durable patterned denim of woven design.

The window curtains we suggest are made of colonial casement cloths in stencilled effects. Door curtains of all-wool English art-velvet of the same color as the carpet with a stencilled dado completes the room as far as house-furnishing proper is concerned.

Now then, do you think it would be expensive to do what we have outlined?
