WORDS FOR MUSIC. BY REV. DR. BETHUNE. I love to sing when I am glad,
Song is the echo of my gladness;
I love to sing when I am sad,
Till song makes sweet my very sadness;
Tis pleasant time,
When voices chime When voices chime
To some sweet rhyme in concert only;
And song to me
Is company,—
Good company when I am lonely.

Whene'er I greet the morning light,
My song goes forth in thankful numbers,
And 'mid the shadows of the night,
I sing me to my welcome slumbers.
My heart is stirred
By each glad bird
Whose notes are heard in summer's bowers;
And song gives birth
To friendl mirth
Around the hearth, in wintry hours.

Man first learned song in Paradise,
From the bright angels o'er him singing;
And in our home, above the skies,
Glad anthems are forever ringing.
God kends his ear,
Well pleased to hear
The songs that cheer his people's sorrow
Till day shall break
And we shall wake
Where love will make unfading morrow.

Where love will make unfading morrow.

Then let me sing while yet I may.

Like him God loved, the sweet tongued Paslmist,

Who found in harp, and holy lay,
The charm that keeps the spirit calmest;
For sadly here
I need the cheer,
While sinful fear with promise blendeth;
O, how I long
To join the throng,
Who sing the song that never endeth;
Oshv One Brick on Another.—Edwin was looking at a large building which they were putting up, just opposite to his fathershouse. He watched the workmen from day to day, as they carried up the oricks and unstr, and then placed them in their proper order.

His failer said to him, 'My son, you seem to be very much taken up with the bricklayers pray, what might you be thinking about? Have you any notion of learning the trade?

"No, sit," said Edwin, smiling, "but I was just thinking what a little thing a brick is, and you thinking what a little thing a brick is, and you thing gone added to another. It's man could walk all around the globe, it would be by only putting one foot before the other. Your whole life will be made up of one little moment after another. Drop after drop makes the ocean. Learn from this not to despisite things. Learn also not to be discouraged by great inbour. The greatest labour becomes easy, if drividen into parts. You could not jump over a mountain, but step after step takes you over to the other side. Dono for here were the step of the step of

The following very happy and equally true sketch is from the London Quarterly:

"You see this lady turning a cold eye to the assurance of shopmen, and the recommendation of Milliners. She cares not how original a pattern may be, if it be ugly, or how recent a shape, if it be awkward. Whatever law fashion dictates, she follows laws of her own, and is never behind it. She wears very beautiful things which people generally suppose to be brought from Paris, or at least made by a French milliner, but which as oftpose to be brought from Paris, of a trease made by a French milliner, but which as often are brought from the nearest town and made up by her own maid. Not that her costume is either rich or new—on the contrary, she wears many a cheap dress, but it is always pretty, and many an old one, but it is always good. She deals in no gaudy confusion of colors; nor does she affect a studied sobriety; but she either enlivens you with a spirited contrast, or composes you with a judicious harmony. Not a scrap of tinsel or trumpery appears upon her. She puts no faith in velvet bands, or gilt buttons, or twisted cordings. She is quite buttons, or twisted cordings. She is quite aware, however, that the garnish is as important as the dress; all her inner borders and beadings are delicate and fresh, and should anything peep out which is not intended to be seen, it is quite as much so as that which is. anything peep out which is not intended to be seen, it is quite as much so as that which is. After all, there is no great art either is her fashions or in her material. The secret consists in her knowing the three unities of her dress—her own station, her own age, and her own points—and no woman can dress well who does not. After this we need not say, that whoever is attracted by the costume will not be disappointed in the wearer. She may not be handsome or accomplished—but we will answer for her being even tempered, well informed, thoroughly sensible, and a complete lady."

John H. Prentice, in his recent valedictory on retiring from the editorial chair, which he has filled for forty-two years, has the following:

"No man should be without a well-conducted newspaper. He is far behind the spirit of the age unless he reads one, is not upon an equal footing with his fellow-man who enjoys such advantage, and is disregardful of his duty to his family, in not affording them an opportunity of acquiring a knowledge of what is passing in the world, at the cheapest possible teaching. Show me the family without a newspaper, and I venture to say that there will be manifest in that family a want of amenity of manners, and indications of ignorance most strikingly in contrast with the neighbout who allows himself such a rational indulgence.

Young men, especially, should read newspapers. If I were a boy, even of tweive years, I would read a newspaper weekly, though I had to work by terchlight to earn money enough to pay for it. The boy who reads will learn to think and analyze; and, if so, he will be almost sure to make a man of himself, hating vicious indulgence, which reading is calculated to beget a distaste for."

Which they are subject. It should be translated into warm and rich soil, early in the spring, and be assisted, during its early developed ment, by copious manuring and frequent pressure. When plants, late in the season, exhibit symptoms of decay and general debility, the planting of a small root of camomile in their vicinage is frequently the most speedy and efficacious remedy that can be applied. The odor, or aroma, diffused by this plant, is also known to be highly repellent to many kinds of aligerous insects, and its presence among those species of plants and vegetables infested by such enemies will protect them more effectually than almost any other agent known, and at comparatively small expense.

the last cigar, our mouth became full—full of blessings.

Blessed is the man himself. He is more wise, more cleanly, more savory, and more reasonable than when he went smoking and puffing about like a locomotive.

Blessed is the man's noife. She is the happier woman for the four reasons mentioned in the last sentence, and for many more. She had hoped against hope for the last puff; but it has been made at last. We seem to see her face brighten—her step is more elastic—her voice is sweeter—her welcome to her husband as he reaches home is more cordial. She has our hearty congratulations.

Blessed is the man's house. An unsavory spirit has gone out of it. More easily can it be kept neat and tidy. Old repellencies will repulse no more.

CURE OF A DESPERATE CASE OF ENTSIPELAS.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Joseph Gildon, Jun., a Farmer, East Kent, near Spilsby. Lincolnshire, 8th. Aprit, 1846.

TO PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY.

SIR,—I have the gratification to announce to you a most wonderful cure wrought upon myself, by the use of your Ointment and Pills. I had a severe attack of Erysipelas in my right foot, which is welling and inflammation to an alarming degree, insomuch that I was unable to move without with swelling and inflammation to an alarming degree, insomuch that I was unable to move without when, strange to say, in less than two weeks the swelling and inflammation subsided to such a dead with swelling and inflammation subsided to such a dead will remove all the bad bile from the stomach is one of those who were acquainted with my case, secing that I was enabled to pursue my daily avecation, to the utter surprise and annazement of those who were acquainted with my case, secing that I was cured so quickly. I and my family are well known here, as my father holds his farm under the Rev. J. Spence, Rector of our Parish.
