IRELAND'S FINANCES.

Prefer Relations With New York to London.

Rulers of the Irish Free State, "for both sentimental and practical reasons," will make a close study of the possibility of establishing financial relations in New York rather than with London, Sir Horace Plunkett intimated to a group of business men and bankers in New York last week.

United States financiers and captains of industry would have an opportunity to help in accomplishing the ideal of a united Ireland, with her agricultural and industrial interests properly balanced, he said, not only in a financial way, but with advice born of great experience. Such advice would be even more valuable than monetary aid, and the Irish would be only too glad to follow it, he added.

Sir Horace reminded the gathering that Ireland, unlike England, is an exporting country, wholly self-supporting and with productive resources, admitting enormous development when satisfactory conditions prevail.

Road transport to supplement the railroads of Ireland with possibly a larger utilization of canals likely will be an early development following a return to favorable conditions, he declared.

ST. GAUDENS BACK WITH PAINTINGS

Homer St. Gaudens, who has been in Europe for the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh selecting paintings for its department of Fine Arts, returned to New York last week on the White Star liner Baltic from Liverpool with 132 paintings representative of modern European painters. He was accompanied by Charles C. Curran, the American members of the jury of artists who passed on the pictures.

"After consulting with the authorities in Europe," Mr. Saint Gaudens said, "we came to the conclusion that 132 paintings well hung on the line would show the important tendencies in European today better than bringing back 300 or more of which two-thirds would be of second rank and would cover the walls with a bewildering assortment of conflicting ideas."

"We have no such storehouses of past artistic treasures as those abroad," he continued, "but when it comes to contemporary work I am vain enough to feel confident that during the last decade our painters have produced as high a quality of work, if not a higher quality, than either the continent or Great Britain. To produce great art we must give and take, learn from our neighbors as they have much to learn from us. Consequently, while I am returning with the best Europe has to offer, I hope within the year to take to Europe examples of the highest distinction of our art, from which I believe they can profit much."

Re-Deputy Police Commissioner George S. Dougherty returned on the George Washington of the United States Lines after three months in Europe, bringing with him, he said, authority to sell a collection of 111 masterpieces owned by a European nobleman. There are 46 Italian painters, 41 Dutch, 22 Flemish, and two Spanish masters including a Madonna by Murillo.

Other gems of the collection, Mr. Dougherty said, were "Mother or Art," by Rembrandt, four by Peter Paul Rubens and four by Van Dyck. He estimates the value of the collection at $2,000,000 and, according to Mr. Dougherty, all the works are authenticated.

While in London Mr. Dougherty was the guest of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who is to visit the U. S. to lecture. He made a study of police conditions in Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France and England and came to the conclusion, he said, that the New York police force is the best in the world.

AMATEUR PROBLEM IN OLD COUNTRY

They Have Varying Rules for Separation of Amateurs and Pros in Sport.

London, Feb. 21.—(Canadian Press, by Mail).—That good old conundrum "who and what is an amateur in sport, and what is a professional?" is still making the rounds in sporting circles and many weird and ridiculous "cases" are cited.

A rough and ready and generally accepted definition is that any person making a livelihood out of a particular sport is a professional. However, a man may make a fortune out of owning successful race horses and if he rides any of his own animals he is classed as a "gentleman rider," that is, an amateur.

On the other hand, the fact that you are a cab-driver or a machine gunner automatically insures a professional status—according to the Amateur Rowing Association's ruling.

"If you elect to box for a purse, stake any kind of monetary consideration you are, according to the rules of the Amateur Swimming Association, not eligible to compete as an amateur swimmer. If you give verbal instructions to the young idea in almost any branch of sport at a school, your amateur status is immediately lost in the majority of cases, but you may give written instructions through the medium of newspapers or magazines and still look down with haughty disdain on the pro who is earning his living by taking advantage of his knowledge of some particular branch of sport in the same way as the amateur"—the only difference being in method and not in principle.

The football association has definitely adopted the principle of "once a pro, always a pro," in practice, if not in theory, and it is now well nigh an impossibility to secure reinstatement. If, however, being an amateur you are asked by a club to give your services, accompanied by an intimation that a soft job with good pay will be yours for the asking, you may still retain your amateur standing. What applies to football applies to cricket.

The most ridiculous interpretation, however, is that of the Amateur Rowing Association, which roundly asserts that no manual worker can be an amateur sportsman.

SAYS N. B. GIRL DID NOT PUT END TO LIFE

New York, Feb. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Officials of the Canadian Club who have interested themselves in the case of Ludo Blakeney, a young Kings county, New Brunswick, girl who died through inhaling illuminating gas, in her rooming house in West Twenty-second street, on Sunday, this morning received a telegram from the girl's father, Wilfred Blakeney of Havlock, N. B. The message said: "On account of my wife's condition, would prefer burial in New York. Will bear expenses. Please wire particulars."

Members of the club will make arrangements for the funeral today. This morning the bureau of missing persons took charge of the body.

It was said by officials of the bureau that an inquest will not be necessary. The police express the belief that it was a case of suicide, but developments this morning indicate that in all probability Miss Blakeney was asphyxiated through accident.

Mrs. Smith of 164 West 84th street, formerly of Havlock, said: "I am convinced that Ludo did not commit suicide. She had been out of work, but was not in such desperate straits as some of those in the rooming house seemed to believe. I saw her on Saturday and she certainly was not despondent."

Mrs. Smith explained that there was a rubber tube leading down to a cooking ring from the gas fixture above Miss Blakeney's bed. She believes that the girl, in turning out the gas, accidentally loosened this attachment allowing the gas to escape.

MONTREAL STOCK MARKET.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—(10.30).—The paper issues again occupied the limelight on the local market during the early trading this morning, and maintained advances recorded yesterday. Abitibi sold a quarter higher at 97 1/2. Brompton was fractionally stronger at 18, as was also Laurentide at 79. Rieton sold at 6 1/2 this morning after closing at 6 yesterday. Waygameck was unchanged at 48. Atlantic Sugar was another notable feature, registering an advance of 1 3/4 points to 26 3/4. Brazilian was up 3/8 at 32 1/2. Trading was very spirited during the first half hour.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—(12.30).—The local stock exchange continued to give a good account of itself this morning and trading broadened out considerably. Outside of Steamships preferred there was not a weak spot on the list and a number of substantial advances were gained in stocks which have been dormant in some time past. Once again the paper stocks assumed the leadership both in activity and strength, with Abitibi, Laurentide, and Spanish River preferred making new high levels on the movement, while Brompton and Waygameck were both firm. In the public utility group, Brazilian led the trading with an advance to 33. Power, Shawinigan and Quebec were all firm. Among the other stocks to show improvement were Breweries at 68, Sugar at 27 and Dominion Glass at 59 1/2.

STRIKE TROUBLE SERIOUS; ONE MAN KILLED

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 21.—Joseph Assuncion of Valley Falls, one of a group of strike sympathizers, was killed today when police discharged riot guns after a mob refused to disperse. Two others were seriously wounded. Mayor Kenyon, in personal command of the police, had read the riot act to the crowd. The shooting occurred near the Jencks Spinning Company's plant, where a strike is on.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 21.—Two troops of state cavalry today patrolled the little mill village of Pawtucket, ten miles south of here, where strikers yesterday besieged the mill and once of the B. B. and A. Knight Co.

Natick, R. I., Feb. 21.—While striking textile workers and sympathizers jammed the streets of this village today, mounted cavalry troops and police kept strict patrol.
