A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE SPRING

Do Not Use Harsh Purgatives—A Tonic Is All You Need

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That is the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite flake, sometimes headache, and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuritis. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order, and the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Do not dose yourself with purgatives, as so many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. Which medicine, spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every dose of this medicine makes new blood which cleans the skin, strengthens the appetite and makes tired, depressed men and children bright, active and strong. Mrs. Maudie Bagg, Lemberg, Sask., says: "I can unhesitatingly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood builder and tonic. I was very much run down when I began using the pills, and a few boxes fully restored my health."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Electric Lighting Now

There was a big time at the new mill of the Albert Manufacturing Company last Monday night, when the electric light was turned on for the first time. Invitations had been issued and about forty availed themselves of the opportunity of inspecting the new mill which is one of the best in America. To Miss Ethel Elveaux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Steeves, was given the honor of pushing the button, which illuminated with electricity, for the first time, the new mill. Hon. C. J. Oman, manager of the Albert Manufacturing Company, showed the visitors through the mill, explaining the various machines and how the work would be done when the work begins. At the close of the inspection the guests were treated to an oyster stew after which toasts and speeches were made.

AN EPITAPH AD.

There is a Philadelphia man who is an authority on epitaphs, serious and otherwise—"otherwise," for as every one knows, many are unconsciously funny. "Dut," says the Philadelphia, "it is not often that one encounters an epitaph that is meant to carry a business advertisement. Such a one, however, exists in an Ohio cemetery. It was the happy idea of the widow of an man named McConnell, a partner in an industrial concern known as McConnell & McCumber.

"It appears that, not long after the decease of her husband, Mrs. McConnell married Mr. McCumber, her late husband's business associate.

"The epitaph is as follows: 'Sacred to the memory of Michael McConnell, who twenty years the senior partner of the firm of McConnell & McCumber, now McCumber & Richardson.

Earl of Yarmouth Does Not Get Father's Estate—The Man Who Married Alice Thaw

(Copyright, 1912, by the Brentwood Company.)

Much nonsense has been written in connection with the succession of the Earl of Yarmouth to his popular father's historic Marquessate of Hertford. Thus it has been alleged in all the notices of Lord Hertford's death, that Lord Yarmouth has now come in to the family estates which, though he encountered, are still productive of a yearly income that would appear as the riches of Golconda to a man who has been reduced to the straits of Lord Yarmouth in the United States, and more especially in England.

It is not true, however, that he has inherited any of the family property. On the contrary, he alienated long ago all his life interest in it and it has gone, not to him, but to his younger brother, Captain Lord Henry Seymour, of the Grenadier Guards. It is Lord Henry who became the master of Ragley Hall, the Warwickshire county seat of the Hertfords; and the marquis will be lucky enough if he continues to enjoy the voluntary allowance of $1,500 a year given to him by his father.

Lord Hertford, while still Lord Yarmouth, was bankrupted on several occasions, the most notable instance being his bankruptcy in 1890, when his family estate was sold to his creditors at the rate of fifty cents on the dollar. For this, however, Lord Yarmouth was compelled to renounce his claim to the inheritance of any of the family property, entailed or otherwise. Then he was bankrupted again, and fell when, among other matters brought to light, was the fact that he received no money from the Thaw family, on the occasion of his marriage beyond an annuity of $5,000 a year from his wife's estate, this annuity being forfeited when the marriage was annulled. He denied on oath in court last fall having received any other money from his wife or her family for the payment of his debts or for any other purpose, and there was nothing to show that he had ever received any of the large sums which he was credited as getting from her.

There has been a good deal of talk about the extraordinary measures adopted by the former Lady Yarmouth, Alice Thaw, sister of Harry Thaw, to secure her freedom from her husband, who did not apply for a divorce but for annulment by the English tribunals, and it is unnecessary to specify them here. As the case was tried in camera, the explanation as to the charges made by Lady Yarmouth did not present a very wide range. The remarkable fact, however, was that Lord Yarmouth offered no defence, and that the sympathy of Lord Hertford and of the Seymour family in the matter was with the petitioning wife, rather than with her husband.

It is generally understood that he had withheld from her at the time of his marriage in Pittsburgh, the fact that he had alienated all his prospective inheritance in the family estates, and that she could never reign as mistress in Ragley Hall. It was also rumored in London at the time that Lady Yarmouth had discovered certain transactions at her bankers, involving a rather large amount.

On the new Marquis of Hertford's bankruptcy last fall, from which he has not been discharged, it was shown that his liabilities were $100,000, with no assets or any prospects of assets. Until Lord Hertford receives his discharge in bankruptcy that is to say, by the spring of next ten or twelve shillings in the pound, he will be excluded from taking his father's seat in the House of Lords and from availing himself, save in a merely titular way, of the marquisate, the two earldoms, viscountcy, and the two baronies, which have come to him by inheritance.

Last Christmas, when his father was known to be dying of cancer, Lady Abdy, widow and principal heiress of the late Sir William Abdy, entered into negotiations with Lord Yarmouth, with a view to the coming in due course Marchioness of Hertford. She withdrew at the last moment. With regard to Lord Yarmouth's inability to take his seat in the House of Lords, owing to his being an undischarged bankrupt, he is likely to remain excluded hereafter for the remainder of his days. In the House of Commons a member also becomes incapable of sitting and voting in the house or upon any committee when he is legally adjudged bankrupt, but not merely when his affairs are beginning to be attended to by a receiver or when the attention of the bankruptcy court is directed to his affairs.

If within six months after being so adjudged he succeeds in obtaining his discharge, together with a certificate from the court of bankruptcy that his insolvency was caused by misfortune, without any misconduct on his part, his disqualifications cease, ipso facto, and he is restored to all his rights and prerogatives as a member of the House of Commons. If, however, during those six months, the discharge is not obtained by the bankrupt, his seat is pronounced vacant by the speaker, and a new election is ordered, the bankrupt at the same time being pronounced incapable of election to parliament during the first five years following his eventual discharge.

There is no penalty provided for a man when adjudicated bankrupt, from sitting or voting in the House of Lords, nor for the matter of that, in the house of commons, during the six months that intervene between the adjudication of bankruptcy and the declaration by the speaker that the seat is vacant; and since there is no penalty provided, it is difficult to know just how parliament would deal with any titled or untitled bankrupt so acting.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"Is this hand-made?" queried the shopper, holding up a dainty little crocheted slipper which she had been examining.

"No," said the honest clerk, "it's machine done, but I think it's very pretty, don't you?"

But the shopper, instead of making any reply, dropped the slipper as if she had suddenly discovered that it was sprinkled with Paris green or cholera microbes, and walked on.

Do you know, I think a great many of us carry this passion for hand-made things altogether too far.

What is it about hand-made articles that makes them so much more to be desired? Is it their superior appearance? How can it always be? The shopper couldn't tell by the most careful examination whether the slipper was hand-made or not. She had to ask the clerk.

To be sure, some articles we can pick out at once as handmade, but with many more we have to ask the clerk before we know. And a great many times, I fancy, we don't know even then. Besides, some things look better when machine-made than they do when done by hand. Yes, I dare to say it. In the old days, when handwork was done with the most painstaking manner it was beautiful. But today, when the hand-worker, like all the rest of us, is infatigable with the machine mania, and is obliged, moreover, to compete with machine products, handwork is not what it used to be. Machines, on the other hand, are daily being brought nearer perfection, and do finer and more intricate work than they used to.

Probably many people think they prefer handwork because it is more durable. Perhaps that is true about some things, but in many cases the difference is so slight as to be really unimportant. To refer to the olden times again, if the work were done in the "for eternity" fashion of our grandfathers, that would be one thing, but it isn't. It's done by workers of today in the "peddle-don't-own" low fashion that speeding, whether of man or machine, invariably produces. We think we are getting back to the solidity and durability of our grandfathers' day by insisting on handwork, but we aren't. The difference is deeper than that.

It seems to me that our affection for handwork is founded, not so much on its durability or beauty, as on its rarity and greater expense. We like handwork because it costs more, because everybody cannot have it, and because we think it distinguishes us from the masses. My mother tells me that when machines were first used, and machine work was rarer than handwork, just the opposite condition existed. The people who could afford to have what they wanted had machine work, delighted in it, and showed it off to their friends. Then machine work became so common that everyone could have it, and handwork became expensive. And now those who want something a little better than other folks must have handwork. Doesn't that prove pretty conclusively that the desire for exclusiveness, for having something that's hard to get, is at least one component of our love for handwork?

The vast amount of time spent in the home in doing things by hand is another phase of that matter. The sewing machine is a wonderful invention, which stands ready to give every mother more time for self-cultivation, for companionship with her children, and for a hundred other worth while things, if she is not making a mistake when she turns her back upon it and spends long hours doing by hand what could be done in a few minutes on the machine, just because "handwork is nicer."

A DAUGHTER-IN-LAW OF EARL OF ROSEBERY

Lady Dalmeida, who was Miss Dorothy Groveron, was married two years ago. She has one child, the Hon. Archibald Primrose. Lady Dalmeida is a cousin of the present Duke of Westminster. She and her husband are very keen on racing, during the seasons are usually seen together at all meetings of importance.

MORNING LOCALS

The adjourned meeting of the Charlotte County West Owners' and Fishermen's Union will be held at St. George on Tuesday next, April 2, on arrival of the train from St. John. There are important matters to be discussed, including the rights of the price of the fish for the coming year. It is expected there will be a large gathering of the members.

The members of the Philathea Class of German Street Baptist church last night met at the home of H. Davis, Prince William street, and spent enjoyable hours. Miss Babbitt, Miss Ollie Harbour and Mrs. Harriett Staples contributed to the program.

Lewis Odorous, of the firm of Connors Bros., Ltd., of Black Harbor, was in the city yesterday. He says that owing to the continued bad weather the lobster fishing has been delayed considerably, and the fishermen are now engaged in dragging for scallops, and digging clams. On April 15 the firm will launch a new boat, an auxiliary schooner built by George E. Richardson. They also intend to increase their plant at Black Harbor.

In chambers yesterday afternoon Mr. Justice McLeod issued a writ of habeas corpus in the suit of Ellis vs. Williams, calling upon the defendant to produce the plaintiff's infant son. The plaintiff was married to the defendant but secured a divorce. The defendant took possession of their two children, and the present suit was brought for possession of one. The child was given to its mother after the judgment.

Robert Quinlan of this city, who has been employed with Richard O'Leary in Richibucto, is in the city visiting friends. He will leave in a few days for Medicine Hat to take a position there.

In the school room of St. Stephen's church yesterday afternoon and evening a Dutch tea and sale was held. The pretty young ladies engaged in catering to the visitors' wants were dressed in Dutch costume, and the room was nicely decorated. A pleasing musical programme was given after tea. Mrs. West, Mrs. G. Ditch, Miss Jones, Miss Ruth Knight, Miss Mary Gilchrist, the Misses Smith, and six little girls from the Sunday school took part.

NO DYSPEPSIA, STOMACH GAS OR HEARTBURN

Diappein Makes Your Out-of-Order Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diappein, and realize not only immediate, but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diappein and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour erings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, no flatulence, no indigestion. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour odor, no nausea, no pain, no gas, no heartburn, no indigestion.

Pape's Diappein is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store. These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of dyspepsia, indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

At Sand Point yesterday afternoon a longshoreman working on the Lake Manitoba was struck on the head by a davit and knocked unconscious. He was treated by the ship's physician. Last evening two immigrants fell over the ferry wharf and were rescued with some difficulty.

Daily Hints For the Cook

BREAD CUSTARD
To four beaten eggs add one quart of milk and one quarter cupful of sugar; beat until the sugar dissolves. Pour into a baking tin and set three slices of buttered bread on top, with the buttered side up. Bake in a moderate oven; when solid, set it away to cool.

CHEESE SOUFFLE
This will serve well as a substitute for meat. Soak one cup of fine bread crumbs in two cups of milk to which is added one saltspoon of soda, dissolved in a teaspoon of hot water. The crumbs should be measured evenly, and if very dry use but three quarters of a cup. In an hour add two well beaten eggs, one quarter level teaspoon of salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper, seven-eighths cup of grated cheese and one tablespoon of melted butter. Turn at once into a well buttered baking dish and set in a quick oven. As soon as the soufflé rises very light, serve in the same dish, for it falls quickly as it cools.

IF YOU WANT

A good firm lining put into your stove, a lining that will be dependable for wearing qualities and will protect your oven wall. Write or Telephone Main 1835-21

FENWICK D. FOLEY,

MR. DOOLEY SPEAKER AT MEETING OF NEW YORK SUFFRAGISTS

Woman's Journal.

Two thousand suffragists are reported to have crowded into the large ballroom of the Hotel Astor at the meeting held in New York last week to raise funds for the Wisconsin campaign.

Rev. Anna H. Shaw, president of the N. A. W. S. A., presided. She said she was glad to see so many present. It reminded her of a suffrage meeting she once held—because it was so different. Of the other occasion there was no one present but the janitor. However, after she had talked with him half an hour he was converted. Women have been working for this cause for more than half a century, sometimes laughed at and sometimes taken seriously.

"A little niece of mine came home from school the other day and told her mother that she thought she would have to give up being a suffragist."

"Do you think Aunt Anna would care very much?" she asked.

"Her mother told her she was sure it would feel badly to know she was sure it would."

"Then I'd better not tell her," said the child. "I hate to tell her, but the truth is the other girls laugh at me so I don't."

"I can understand that," said the speaker. "Her small sister spoke up. 'You ought to be ashamed,' she said. 'Why, Aunt Anna has been laughed at hundreds of years!'"

Mrs. Crystal Eastman Benedict presided for $2,000 to be used in organizing. She said, "A victory in Wisconsin means a victory in New York, and New York should help the first state this side of the Mississippi river to win."

In a simple and sincere address she submitted her proposition to the audience and it was met with enthusiastic applause.

The other speakers on the programme were: Dorothy Dix, Peter Finley Dunne (Mr. Dooley), Samuel Untermyer and Max Eastman. Mr. Untermyer could not come, but he sent a check and the manuscript of his address, which was read. Mr. Untermyer expressed strong dissent from the assertion often made by the Axis that women now get more justice under the law.

The distinguished lawyer wrote: "The allowances made by the courts to deserted and betrayed wives are grotesquely inadequate. Under our divorce laws, as administered by the courts, the wife is absolutely at the mercy of her husband. After he has taken the best part of her life he can put upon her the pressure necessary to get rid of her, if he happens to be a man of means. She is forced to choose between comparative poverty and the acceptance of his terms."
