

Faith is the root of Everything.

Faith is the Source of Power.

Faith is the Fountain of Influence.

Faith gives the Fibre to Character.

For example, Daniel, a young man, is taken captive to a strange city but in the midst of unfamiliar surroundings he lived the simple life. He grew up to be a fine man, with a clear countenance that would cause you to turn and look as he passed by.

In every position he held he did his work with such thoroughness and fidelity that he rose step by step until he came to the notice of the King, who called him into his service and soon we find him Premier of the Great Empire.

Then the intrigue of plotters began. They went to the King, flattered him as being the greatest King that ever lived on this earth, and pressed him to pass a law that every citizen within the Empire should worship him only during a period of thirty days. He was beguiled by this flattery and the law was passed.

Soon, the plotters went to the Premier's office and found him upon his knees with his windows open toward Jerusalem, in prayer to God. They told him that his life was in danger; that he was breaking the law of the land; that he would be in danger of the lion's den. Then Daniel jumped to his feet and exclaimed "Shall I obey God or man?" However, he was arrested, taken before the King. The law of the Medes and Persians could not be changed. He was cast
