 sidering with a summary of the whole epistle—chapter 5.

SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN.

This epistle, which was the basis of his author, was originally written by John, about A. D. 60. It was addressed to a plain lady, for the purpose of imparting comfort and consolation to her and her family, and of strengthening their faith in the Christian religion. Our Lord himself appeared to him after his resurrection with the women of Jerusalem in the garden of life, and, when about to ascend into heaven, he would with his dying lips breathe the love of this beloved disciple and
