

X. OCTOBER hath XXXI Days. 1793.

The verdant leaves that play'd on high, And wanton'd on the western breeze,	Not moist with dew, but drench'd in rain, Nor health nor pleasure wanders there.
Now trod in dust neglected lie, As Boreas flips the bending trees.	No more while thro' the mid- night shade, Beneath the moon's pale orb I stray,
The fields that wav'd with gold- en grain, As rusted heaths are wild and bare;	Soft pleasing woes my heart in- vade, As Progne pours the melting lay.
