$575 Profit Made With One Bottle Save-The-Horse

J. Edward Block, M.D. Physician and Surgeon, Campbellport, Wis., Jan. 11, 1915, writes: "Please mail latest book. Your Save-The-Horse is superior to anything I have ever used. I bought for breeding a beautiful black Victor mare for $375. I got her at that price because one hind leg was enlarged twice its natural size. I paid out over $100 for remedies and veterinary bills, and got no benefit. One bottle of Save-The-Horse spavin remedy removed all swelling permanently, and I sold her for $950 cash. I have another mare that had tried to race two seasons and couldn't, so last year I sent her to the farm; Save-The-Horse was used for three weeks, we started training, she raced every week, got record of 2.13 3/4 and could trot in 2.10 before season was over."

For 19 years, throughout the Whole World, Save-The-Horse has stood up and "MADE GOOD" under every test.

Veterinary.*Abortion in Sheep.

I have a flock of eighty ewes. About four weeks ago one aborted; four days later another, and two days later still another aborted. I then isolated the three ewes, and since then they have been aborting at the rate of two weekly. Eight have now aborted.

1. Is this contagious abortion?
2. Will all my ewes abort?
3. I got a new ram last fall. Is he responsible for the trouble?
4. Will those that abort this year do the same next year?

Ans.—1. We do not think this is infectious abortion. We have never known it in ewes, but it is possible that it might occur. We are of the opinion that the trouble is due to local causes, something in the food or environments. It would be wise to notify the Dominion Department of Agriculture, and an inspector will be sent to investigate, and probably he can discover the cause of the trouble, or have an aborted lamb or discharge from ewe, or portion of an afterbirth examined by a bacteriologist in order to ascertain whether the trouble is infectious.

2. It is not possible to say. If the trouble be infectious, it is probable a large percentage of them will, and if it is caused by local conditions the same applies, but in either case it is probable a percentage of the ewes will carry to full term.

3. The ram cannot be held responsible unless the flock from which you bought him were affected with infectious abortion, and he had been bred to infected ewes before you got him.

4. If the trouble be infectious, this is quite probable, and the advisability of disposing of your whole flock should be carefully considered.

Improvements Pay.

Editor "The Farmer's Advocate":

There seems to be a prevailing tendency among farmers to deal with improvements as ordinary expense. This, combined with the farmer's natural hatred of debt, causes, I think, a hindrance to progress among a great majority. Thus, the farmer says, "I can't afford such an improvement," meaning he can't pay cash. At the same time perhaps really he couldn't afford to do without it.

For instance, we know scores of farmers who owned their farms, representing from four to eight thousand dollars, who didn't put foundations under their barns, who didn't have a silo and other improvements, till the last two or three years. This wasn't because they were not convinced that these were good things, but because they did not have the money. A farmer told me the other day that he saved more money last year than he ever made before. He says, "I'm in shape to make money now; I've everything to make money with." He has owned a farm valued at ten thousand dollars for the last ten years. The question is, why has he not had things to make money with all this time. His credit was good. He could have bought pure-bred stock, had his stables and his silo, but he says "I hadn't the money."

We do not need to go headlong into debt, but if we are going to get any returns for our labor we must supply our needs. It does not pay to patch an old rail fence and chase our neighbor's cattle and our own throughout the busy summer months to keep them out of crops because we haven't the money to buy a fence. If an improvement is going to pay, it will pay the interest on the money, and we should have it.

"Our supplies of field root seeds are practically all imported from France, Germany and England. Fortunately the surplus stock in Canada is sufficient to prevent a seed famine during 1915. Farmers would be well advised to transplant early this spring fifty or more sound seed specimens, manure or other roots to get seed for future planting. When planted out, the top of the root should be slightly below the surface of the soil. The soil should not be above medium quality in point of fertility. If grown together for seed, varieties will cross fertilize."

Convenience

of the STANDARD Cream Separator with its low supply can, and crank shaft just exactly the right height for easy turning. These are only two small features of the

Standard

Cream Separator, but they serve to show its up-to-dateness. In fact, the 1915 MODEL STANDARD is far in advance of other separators, as you can see for yourself by visiting one of our agents. Get him to show you the interchangeable capacity feature, by which you can change from a 350- or a 450-lb. machine to a 600-lb., 800-lb. or 1,000-lb. capacity at small cost, where with an ordinary separator a new machine would have to be bought.

See the self-oiling system and the oil-tight case. No oil-catcher is necessary under this machine. And you need oil it but once every three months.

Have him explain the skimming system. Ask about the electrically-welded spacing cauls on each disc, also the guide-pin.
