

God Knows Best.

"Oh! papa," cried little Daisy,
With a sadness in her eye,
As she saw the kernels scattered,
'Neath the heavy turf to lie:
"Oh! papa," cried little Daisy,
"Do not throw the wheat away;
It must be wrong, I think, to waste it,
It is good for food, you say."
Did the father cease from sowing?
No, he kissed her tears away.
Bade her wait until the autumn;
Showed her then the harvest gay.
Thus do we, like little children,
Raise our foolish human cries,
When the wisdom of our Father
Some fond hope our hearts denies.
Thus may God in Heaven's garner
Shows us treasures manifold,
That were all our prayers granted
We might never there behold.
So we pray in trustful accents,
As we journey day by day,
That His will may be accomplished
And His wisdom point the way.

Two Ways of Looking.

When two boys went hunting grapes,
one was happy because they found grapes; the other was unhappy because
the grapes had seeds in them.

Two men, being convalescent, were asked how they were. One said, "I am better to-day;" the other said, "I was worse yesterday."

When it rains one man says, "This will make mud;" another "This will lay the dust."

Two boys examining a bush, one observed that it had a thorn; the other
that it had a rose.

Two children were looking through colored glasses. One said, "The world

The American people ought to be proud of these four periodicals. It is no exaggeration to say that the steady influence exerted upon the life and thought of the nation from the publishing house in Franklin Square is at least equal to that of one of the great universities. . . . All four of the Harper periodicals are better now than they ever were before. How much that means, everybody knows who has been Harper bred.—N. Y. Sun, Feb. 10, 1890.

is blue;" the other said, "It is bright."
Two boys were eating their dinner.
One said, "I would rather have something better than this;" the other
said, "This is better than nothing."

Two boys looking at some skaters,
one said, "See how they fall!" the other, "See how they glide!"

One man is thankful for his blessings; another is morose for his misfortunes.

One man thinks he is entitled to a better world, and is dissatisfied because he hasn't got it; another thinks he is not justly entitled to any, and is satisfied
with this.

One man enjoys what he has;
another suffers what he has not.

One man makes up his account from his wants; another from his assets.

One man complains that there is evil
in this world; another rejoices that there is good in this world.

One says, "Our good is mixed with evil;" another says, "Our evil is mixed with good."

Try to be like these happy tempered people and always view things on their brighter side.
