THE SPLASHING HOUSE.

A French Yarn That Was Printed to Ridicule Englishmen.

One of the most extraordinary tales ever invented about Englishmen by foreigners was the "splashing house" story, given to the world by the Paris Journal Patrie in 1868. An ingenious writer in the paper gravely informed his readers that in the suburbs of London were houses where "earth beaten up into mud is retained." To these houses men were accustomed to resort in hunting kit for the purpose of being splashed with mud.

"These curious establishments are provided with muds of different countries, but principally of those countries where the hunting is best. The sale of the mud is conducted in the most serious manner imaginable; the attendant inquires, 'From what country, sir, do you wish to be supposed you have just returned?' From the county of Kent." The pretended sportsman thereupon takes a seat on a wooden horse whose legs throw up the selected mud; after having been well splashed the customer pays his bill (3 shillings), casts an eye of approbation toward the mirror, takes a whip in his hand and goes to exhibit his muddy clothes in Piccadilly, Bond street or Pall Mall, in order that it may be supposed that he has just returned from a grand hunt.

In addition to the chance of marrying an heiress which this remarkable display of dirty clothes confers on their wearers, says the French newspaper, the patron of the "splashing house" has another more immediate advantage. "The mud with which he is splashed affords, if not proof, strong presumptive evidence that he is a landed proprietor in the county whose mud bespatters him." And landed proprietors being held in vast esteem as solvent and desirable creditors, the man can obtain anything he likes at any shop on credit.

One wonders whether such a wonderful tale finds any believers among those who read it—London Live Stock Journal.

JUMPING THE DEER.

A Style of Hunting That Looks Easy Till You Try It.

"Jumping a deer" is a highly attractive phrase, quite apt to make a tingle in the back hair of the tenderfoot who hears it for the first time. It is also intensely satisfactory to the club who always has to shove before winning nature. You may, indeed, get a good shot in this way, and it is generally the only way to see the grandest of all the sights of the woods—deer running through a windfall. To see the glossy curves of fur curl over the lofty legs that he piled on each other in boundless confusion is well worth a trip to the woods, while for him who loves the ride as I do, more for what cannot be done with it than for what can, there is no such target elsewhere. But for the tyro who is dying to get that first deer, "jumping a deer" generally means out of sight and out of hearing. For the deer that goes off to lie down after feeding does not go to sleep, but to ruminate and take life easy. Once in a great while one falls into a doze, but almost always the head is well erect and all senses keen for danger. And even if one is in a doze it may slip away without your suspecting its existence, for sleep deadens the senses of this wary animal. The man who "wouldn't shoot such an innocent creature as a deer" should by all means see one getting out of a heavy windfall, while the man who loves game that can get away can here find the attraction of the woods at its climax—"Hunting the Virginia deer" in Outing.

The golden age is before us, not behind us.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one divided disease that science has been able to cure in all its states, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh is a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient health and strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Case of Indigestion that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cannot Cure—Halibarton Man Tells How His Sufferings Were Relieved.

That bloating that gives you such pain and discomfort after eating is caused by gas generated by the fermentation and undigested food. It bulges out the walls of the stomach and thus frequently interferes with the action of the heart.

The cure is to have your food properly digested. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will properly digest the food. Hear what A. D. Miller, of Pacey, Halibarton Co., has to say about it.

"I had been troubled with Dyspepsia and indigestion and during the summer of 1900 my doctor treated me for Liver Complaint," says Mr. Miller. "But instead of getting better, I gradually grew worse. My sleep was irregular and I was bloated very much after eating. I also had palpitation of the heart and sometimes I could not sleep at night on account of my heart beating so hard."

"I was hardly able to get around when I commenced using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After using half a box I felt much better and was soon well and felt like a new man." Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets rest and recuperate the stomach. They have yet to find the case of Indigestion they cannot cure.

It doesn't take dynamite to blast hopes.

Sleep the Best Brain Stimulant.

The best possible thing for a man to do when he feels too weak to carry anything through is to go to bed and sleep as long as he can. This is the only recuperation of brain power, the only actual recuperation of brain force, because during sleep the brain is in a state of rest, in a condition to receive and appropriate particles of nutriment from the blood which take the place of those which have been consumed by previous labor, since the very act of thinking burns up solid particles, as every turn of the wheel or screw of the steamer is the result of consumption by fire of the fuel in the furnace. The supply of consumed brain substance can only be had from the nutritive particles in the blood which were obtained from the food eaten previously, and the brain is so constituted that it can best receive and appropriate to itself those nutritive particles during a state of rest, of quiet and stillness of sleep. More stimulants supply nothing in themselves. They tend the brain and force it to greater consumption of its substance until it is so exhausted that there is not power enough left to receive a supply.—Exchange.

No Offense Intended.

A regular customer of a certain coal company dropped into the office of the company one morning to make a complaint. "That coal you sold me for my furnace a few weeks ago," he said, "is the worst I have had in ten years. There's a great quantity of slate in it, and what isn't slate runs to cinders."

"Sorry to hear it, Mr. Williams," said the man inside the railing. "I'll make a memorandum of it. Perhaps the company will give you a rebate on it." Taking a slip of paper, he wrote a few words on it and hung it on a book. The customer, happening to glance at the slip of paper, saw this: "G. G. Williams. Bad egg."

"So I'm a bad egg, am I?" he asked, reddening with indignation.

"Oh, not at all, Mr. Williams," hastily explained the clerk. "That means that the egg coal we sold you turns out to be bad."

And the customer reddened again, but not from indignation.

Have You Mysophobia?

Mysophobia is the scientific name for a complaint the symptoms of which are familiar to every one. "Molecular fastidiousness" would be a roundabout way of expressing the same thing. "A person suffering from mysophobia," says a medical journal, "on taking his seat at table begins by scrutinizing closely every article placed there for his use. He holds his tumbler up to the light to see if it is free from finger marks, he scans his napkin to make sure that it is immaculate, and one by one each object is critically passed in review. In advanced cases the sufferer mechanically wipes the various articles, using the napkin for the purpose." But there is compensation in everything, and what may be an annoying idiosyncrasy in a guest becomes an undeniable virtue in a domestic servant.—Chicago News.

Presence of Mind Smith.

The dean of Christchurch in the thirties was known as "Presence of Mind" Smith. A well known tradition of the name. Going down to Nuneaton with a friend in his undergraduate days, he returned alone. "Where is T?" "Well, we had an accident. The boat leaked, and while we were bailing it T fell over into the water. He caught hold of the skiff and pulled it down to the water's edge. Neither of us could swim, and if I had not, with great presence of mind, hit him on the head with the boat hook, both would have been drowned."

"Fog! Ha, ha, mon frere," ejaculated the Frenchman, "now I understand you mean you say ze sun never set or your dominion. Ma foi, it does not rise."

A Connoisseur.

"Papa," said the boy, "when you say in your advertisements that your goods are acknowledged by connoisseurs to be the best what do you mean by connoisseurs?"

"A connoisseur, my boy," answered the great manufacturer, "is an eminent authority—an authority, in short, who admits that our goods are the best."
