Raising Calves on Skim Milk.

A. B. Allen writing, to the Western Agriculturalist gives some excellent advice on raising calves. He says:—
“A friend who has a large dairy in the western part of the State of New York informs me that he has kept twenty four grade Shorthorn and Guernsey calves, dropped the past spring, in the following manner:—They were allowed to suck their dams a few times immediately after birth, and then taken away and taught to drink milk from the pail. This was warm and fresh from the cows for week or ten days and then skim milk was gradually mixed with it till substituted entirely for the milk. This was frequently lobbied, in very hot weather, before feeding, and was thought all the better for it, as being more easily digested. The calves were put into a good pasture and at a few weeks old began to nibble the grass. The summer being very dry, this failed considerably during August; cut hay mixed up with wheat shorts were then given the place of it. One may judge how well these calves thrive when simply fed, for at six to seven months old they weighed from 500 to 600 pounds each. The cream from the milk of the dams of these calves was made into butter of first quality, stored till October, and then brought a good price. Many think that choice calves cannot be well raised on skim milk, and therefore feed all new milk to them. But I think this is wasting the cream on calves as are designed to grow up for dairy cows and that they are all the better for this purpose when reared on the quality of milk which is the least fattening and gives the most muscle. Many a shorthorn heifer is injured for the dairy by being over-fed and kept too fat from its birth up to three years old, when it is the usual time for it to drop its first calf. As fed above the calves are occasionally scoured, and to stop this some astringent medicine had to be given in their food. But if a heaping tablespoonful of oil meal, gradually increasing to a pint for each calf as it grew older, had been made into a gruel and mixed daily with the skim milk, it would have prevented scouring, kept the bowels in good order and made them relish their other food more heartily. Flaxseed boiled to a jelly answers the same purpose, also. If ground mixed with one fourth of the former to three-fourths of the latter, and then a quart or more, according to the age of the calf fed daily, is a good substitute for oatmeal.”

ARCHBISHOP CROKE ON THE SITUATION.

Dublin, June 2.—Archbishop Croke yesterday with two speeches, in the course of which he said:—“I appeal to that great statesman (Mr. Gladstone) to do something for the Irish people, and as an Irish Bishop, in the name of Tipperary, and in the name of Ireland, to let his fiat go out, and there be no more evictions. (Great cheering.) It is a curious fact that the word ‘Eviction’ in the sense used here is scarcely known in any other country in the world. There is no such word in any of our people, it is a word of evil omen, imports depopulation of our country, degradation of our people, and the flying of them to foreign lands in quest of livelihood, carrying with them the spirit of vengeance against the greatest empire in the world, but an empire which has treated Ireland worse than ever she was treated a dependency. (Cheers.) Therefore I say to that great statesman, the good name of England, or the lives of our people, if you do not wish to perpetuate the national feud and the sanguinary traditions that ruled in this country for ages, blot from the statute book the name of evictions, and let no man henceforth be turned out of his land unless it is clear that the money which should have met his engagements has been wastefully and foolishly dissipated. Let me ask Mr. Gladstone what has become of hundreds of families once happy in their humble homes, who have disappeared. Many have gone into the grave, many into the workhouse, and many to the great Republic of the West, bearing with them an undying hatred to the country that banished them. If the evictions go on do not bring gratitude to the country that banished them. They are too strong. We must offer passive resistance to those opposed to us, and in that way they will get tired of the contest, because a whole united people have never yet been defeated.”
The Archbishop declared the agitation was not due to David Parnell, nor to the fact that he is a Catholic, but to the fact that the Irish people at last comprehended it manfully and were determined to remove it. Without the priesthood of Ireland we have been impossible for the movement to
