MISS ST. JEAN.

Inspector's Statement in Regard to Her Death and Mutilation.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 19.—Police Inspector Medley, who is at work on the Tiverton murder case, made the following announcement just before noon to-day: "We have discovered blood-stained furniture and other articles which establish the fact, in our minds, beyond a reasonable doubt, that an operation upon Miss Amelia St. Jean, of Woonsocket, R. I., was performed, unsuccessfully, in the office of Prof. Frank Hill, on Bedford street, a week ago last Friday afternoon, and that she died there and the body was subsequently dismembered in that shop."

ACQUITTED ON ALL THREE CHARGES.

of the office in this city, while Wilson was away. While the prisoner was away he sold some of the carpet cleaners. About seven weeks ago Wilson returned and again took charge. When Wilson returned he asked him to try and sell the stock for him, as he wanted his money back. Before Wilson left for England information was laid against him in regard to the patent. Wilson stated to him that a large order had been received from Winnipeg, and that the company was going to move Hamilton, but when statements, he said, were misrepresentations. Wilson had also told him that the stock was treasury stock, but that made no difference. Wilson was in the city about a week before he endeavored to have him arrested, but the reason was that it took time to find out the misrepresentation. At the annual meeting of the company he looked over the books, and discovered who had sold the stock previously, but who had sold.

"I thought you didn't know that at Police Court; you didn't appear to know," said Mr. Staunton.

"Did Wilson tell you that he wished to get the controlling stock in Hamilton, so he could bring the business here?" asked Mr. Staunton.

"I think he did," responded the prisoner.

"Well, why didn't you tell that before?" was Mr. Staunton's next question, and witness said it was because he had not been questioned about it.

Dr. George Clemens said the company was formed in 1907, and amalgamated with other companies. He issued the stock. Biggs had some transfer stock. The register of transfers showed that Biggs secured fully paid up shares in the names of George Bates, and K. Hagerdon. It, however, was not treasury stock.

"Did you have an order for 2,000 cleaners?" asked S. F. Washington.

"I object," said Mr. Staunton, but his objection was not sustained.

Witness said the order was not from Winnipeg alone, but from the Northwest, but all the orders had been sent through the Winnipeg agency.

Mr. Staunton objected to the questions that were being asked on the ground that the witness was not defending himself, and His Honor upheld the objection.

When questioned by Mr. Staunton, witness stated that the agent, Johnson, had not given the order for 2,000 machines, that he was aware of. He said he did not know much about the business.

Mr. Staunton said a false pretense was a misrepresentation made with fraudulent intentions, but he failed to see what the misrepresentation consisted of. The evidence was flimsy.

The prisoner, who was when giving evidence, told of his dealings with Biggs, and said when he met the plaintiff he had a carpet cleaner, and demonstrated how it worked. He told the plaintiff 300 machines had been sold. Plaintiff was well pleased with it. He explained to him that he had an option on the stock, and it could be bought up by people in Hamilton. It might be possible to have the company moved to Hamilton. Considerable rivalry existed between himself and the manager and a British Columbia order was turned down because the agency for the Northwest had been given to a man named Johnson.

Biggs had not asked him for his money back, but upon his return from England Biggs requested that Wilson sell his stock if it were possible, but made no statement in regard to any misrepresentation. The reason he did not take the British Columbia order himself was because it was out of his jurisdiction. He sold more than the rest of the company put together, but the manager had told him of the Winnipeg order.

His Honor, after Wilson had concluded, said he saw no reason why he should not acquit the prisoner.

The charge made against him by Fred W. Wilson was also read, and prisoner pleaded not guilty. The charge was similar to the first one.

F. W. Wilson said the prisoner claimed to be the local agent and told him he had an option on an English patent. It was necessary for him to pay over $2,000 for this patent, which was owned by Mr. Conover, of Toronto. Upon the strength of prisoner's representations he invested $750. The statements of the prisoner had given him the impression that he intended to endeavor to sell the patent while in England. The agreement between plaintiff and prisoner was read. The witness' signature was attached to the document.

Mr. Staunton asked witness who told him that Wilson had put the remainder of the money in his pocket.

"I refuse to answer," responded Mr. Staunton, and the plaintiff told him that the information had been gained indirectly from Mr. Conover.

Mr. J. B. Day, Toronto, solicitor for Mr. Conover, said an option was given on the patent. All he knew was about a conversation between Mr. Conover, Wilson and himself.

"It's a remarkable thing that we can't conduct a case without objections from my learned friend," said Mr. Washington, as Mr. Staunton again objected.

"What I meant was that my learned friend asks some questions not touching on the case. I meant no offence."

Mr. Conover stated that Wilson had not bought the patent from him, but had paid $600 on it. Captain Dickson was interested in the patent.

"Did he sell the patent to Wilson and agree that it was his patent?" asked Mr. Staunton.

"Yes."

"What did Wilson give you the $600 for?" asked Mr. Staunton.

"In part payment."

"You know Captain Dickson is present, and you know that he will say, do you? He claims you defrauded him out of $160, as you only paid him $500," said Mr. Staunton.

Mr. Staunton asked why witness was buying out the patent from Captain Dickson with Wilson's money.

Mr. Staunton arose to give his views of the case, but his honor asked to hear what Mr. Washington had to say. Mr. Washington argued that Eric Wilson had obtained $750 from Frederick Wilson by misrepresentation.

HENSON LECTURED.

Peary's Colored Man Refused to Answer a Pointed Question.

New York, Oct. 18.—"He will tell you anything you want to know about the North Pole," announced Wm. A. Brady to five hundred persons scattered about the Hippodrome, which will hold 5,000, when he introduced Matthew Henson last night as the man who had accompanied Peary.

Henson was introduced by Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club. Henson read from a voluminous manuscript, lights were turned off, and pictures taken by the speaker were shown. Henson answered many questions satisfactorily.

"How many observations did Peary take after Captain Bartlett turned back when you were one hundred and twenty miles south of the Pole?"

"One set."

"How near to the Pole were these taken?"

"Twenty miles away."

"Were you present when the explorer took his observations indicating 90 degrees north latitude?"

"I refuse to answer," said Henson. The crowd then yelled for Dr. Cook.

GOOD BOOZE.

Tests Show That Quebec Spirits Are Pure.

(Special Wire to the Times.) Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 19.—The Province of Quebec is drinking fairly good spirits according to a report by the Inland Revenue Department, which has recently collected 40 samples of whiskey, 40 of gin and 20 of brandy from barrooms. The only serious criticism in regard to any of the samples is that they are diluted and under proper alcoholic strength.

THE SAME GANG.

(Special Wire to the Times.) Kingston, Ont., Oct. 19.—That the burglars who cracked a safe at Cape Vincent early Monday morning are undoubtedly the same men for whom scores of officers have been looking in the Gatineau district above Ottawa, there seems to be little doubt. Mr. George Bowen, an officer of Folger's Steamboat Agency, has positively identified the picture of Courtney.

Some time ago the Women's Institute of Burlington decided to give a series of concerts in aid of the Hamilton Sanitarium, and the inaugural concert was given last Friday evening, at Aldershot, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Scheer. There was an excellent programme. Miss Clara Salisbury, of Hamilton, and Mrs. Walter Howe, of Aldershot, gave elocutionary recitals; Miss Vallance, Miss Markle, Mr. Campbell Leckie and Mr. Baker, of Hamilton, each sang a solo, as also did Miss Cartwright and Mr. Frank Atkins, of Aldershot. Mrs. Oaten and Miss Vallance sang a duet, as also did the Misses Robertson, of Waterdown.

The accompanying work, Wilfrid Oaten, organist of First Methodist Church; Miss Bessie Leckie and Miss Mary Smith, Ex-Warden W. A. Emory was chairman.

As a result of the enterprise the Sanitarium was made richer by $30. The Women's Institute is particularly grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Scheer, for throwing open their beautiful home, and also to those who contributed to the good programme.

Other concerts will follow, which will be duly announced, and everybody is invited to attend and thus help the good cause.
