The Evening Chit-Chat

By MARY CAMERON

The lady across the aisle from me on the bus was a summer hat and an unusually heavy winter ulster. Said my companion: "Well, if I were going to have one of those ridiculous heavy winter coats, I certainly wouldn't wear my summer hat with it."

Wouldn't she? I wonder. Suppose, for instance, that her one summer suit got caught in a big shower and positively ruined, and she had to buy her winter coat early, but simply couldn't afford a hat. Now just what would she do in a case like that?

Why take it for granted that the lady across the aisle liked the peculiar combination of a winter coat and summer hat? Why not reckon that she was the victim of compelling circumstances, under which we would probably have done the same thing ourselves?

How often we all say loftily, "I wouldn't do this or that." How do we know we wouldn't under the same circumstances? We don't.

It seems to me that one of the big lessons of life is to realize what a difference it makes what side of the fence we are on, and not try to say what we would or wouldn't do under circumstances of which we know nothing.

It is often amusing to see people suddenly transplanted into the position of others, whom they have previously criticized, and to see how very much the same they act themselves, and what a different point of view they get.

Some friends of mine who used to own a horse and drive a good deal, have recently purchased an automobile. When they owned the horse, they could not say anything too strong against their natural enemies, the automobilists.

"This speeding is outrageous. There ought to be a jail sentence instead of a fine." Automobiles ought not to be allowed to go more than ten or fifteen miles an hour. The way some of these chauffeurs try to see just how close they can come to your carriage wheels is abominable." "It makes me disgusted the way the automobilists keep on tooting when you are already giving them three-quarters of the road"—these were a few of their strictures.

They have only been in the ranks of the automobilists about six weeks, and already the man of the house, who runs the machine has been arrested for speeding. Incidentally, I did not hear any pleading for a jail sentence instead of a fine.

I was out with them the other day, and don't think we went as slowly as ten miles an hour, even in the city streets. Furthermore, they came so close to the wheels of one carriage that my heart came up in my mouth. Once we passed a carriage which was giving us at least three-quarters of the road, tooting vigorously. A bit timorous lest he should suspect sarcasm, I ventured to ask why he tooted when the team was giving him ample room. "Oh, it isn't to make them give me any more room," he explained loftily; "simply to let them know I am coming so they won't swerve out into the road or start to turn round. You know so many of these drivers are absolutely reckless that way they expect us to take all the care."

I needn't have feared his suspicious sarcasm.

One of the finest men I know is a baker. Although he abides by it perfectly, he does not approve of the law requiring that every loaf of bread shall be wrapped in paraffine paper. He says it is a foolish law, because the bread is contaminated quite as much while wrapping as it would be if it were left unwrapped. He thinks the people who agitated that law were either short-sighted or self-interested.

Now, this man is a thoroughly sincere, splendidly honest man, and yet I can't help wondering if he were not a baker, if he might not see things differently.

What a difference it does make what side of the fence we are on!

It is simply impossible that I shouldn't help but enter into the judgments of the best and most just of men.

But I do think we can remember not to say, "I wouldn't," of anything.

Perhaps we "would" twice as much if we were on that side of the fence.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a widely practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (108 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 50 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

Armies Supplied Here.

When Asked, Colonel Driscoll Told the Portuguese Royalists that He Could Supply Them with 30,000 Soldiers.

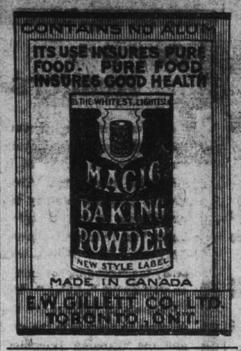

When the Portuguese Royalists contemplated a bold stroke to recover the country for King Manuel, one of their agents approached Colonel Driscoll, of the Legion of Frontiersmen, and asked him if he could raise a force of men to do the necessary fighting.

The Colonel, who is a hard-bitten soldier, and at present head of the Legion of Frontiersmen, coolly replied that he could within a few weeks provide any force up to thirty thousand men.

It was only the fact that the Home Government would have something to say on the matter that prevented him from signing a contract to provide an army which would have been comprised of the hardest and boldest adventurers in Anglo-Saxondom, and would infallibly have swept the Portuguese.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

MADE IN CANADA

Then there was "King" Willoughby of Madagascar. He lived twenty years in that great island, and rose to be Prime Minister and Commander-in-Chief. In the latter capacity he enlisted an army of twenty thousand men, officiating it with soldiers of fortune like himself.

Offered a Regiment of Sharpshooters.

Then he took upon himself to give Madagascar a navy, and with a large sum of money came to England to buy the first warship. He established himself in Jermyn Street in great state, but something went wrong with regard to that cruiser, for she never materialised, and the ungrateful Malaysians would have nothing to do with their Commander-in-Chief.

But he was not in the least discouraged, and we next hear of him in South Africa, recruiting irregulars to fight against the Dutch Republics.

There were plenty of soldier-brokers in South Africa during the war, and of them all none was more popular than Colonel Bethune, better known as "Father" Bethune. Colonel Bethune began life in the Navy, then left it and became an officer in the 16th Lancers, and afterwards exchanged into the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Men rolled up by the hundred to join his Irregular Horse, and he had such a choice that his regiment was one of the finest of all the fighting corps.

It was during the same war that Mr. James Malcolm, a gentleman residing in Great Russell Street, approached the War Office, offering to provide a selected regiment of sharpshooters, a thousand strong, the same to serve as auxiliaries without costing the country a penny.

There are soldier-brokers in every country, but the best are British. Next time we have the ill-luck to fall out with another Power, they will be in their element.—P.W.

The Other Bank.

One other story, and one ventures to think it is Dr. Macnamara's best.

The teacher was discussing presence of mind in face of danger.

"Now supposing," he said to his class, "supposing a man is working near a river and he suddenly falls in the water. He cannot swim, and he is in great danger of being drowned. Picture the scene, boys and girls. The man's fall; his frantic struggles in the water; his pitiful cries for help. His wife hearing his screams and realising his danger, rushes immediately to the bank. Why," he broke off to ask in a misjudged moment, "does she rush to the bank?"

The class was too thrilled to think. All except one little girl.

"Well, Mary, why did his wife rush to the bank?"

"Please, sir," the practical Mary replied, "to draw his insurance money!"

ASK YOURSELF THESE QUESTIONS

And find out if you have kidney disorders—Also make this test.

Have you pains in the back over the kidneys?

Have you urinary disorders?

Do you suffer from severe headaches, dizziness or defective eyesight?

Are you failing in health and strength and suffering from rheumatic pains or swelling of the limbs?

These are a few of the symptoms of kidney disease, and here is the test. If the urine after standing for twenty-four hours is cloudy, milky or has particles floating about in it, or if there is a sediment in the bottom of the vessel, your kidneys are diseased.

There is no time to lose in beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They will help you more quickly than any treatment you can obtain, and that is one reason why they are so successful and popular.
