SATURDAY, December 16, 1911.

Grand Falls Operations.

We thank the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company for a copy of their Annual Report and Statement of Accounts. The Directors report £34,085, 18s. 6d. profit for the year ending August 31st, 1911, after providing for depreciation of all Plant and Machinery and Logging Gear, and for Depreciation of Houses, Furnishings and other equipments. £4,000 was written off as the cost of issuing the Debenture Stock, and £2,599 4s. 6d. was expended in the alteration of the S. S. Tritonia for winter shipping. "The period covered by the present Report and Statement of Accounts practically marks the close of the construction period, although it will not be until early summer of next year that all construction work at the mill will be completed and the Company will begin to get the benefit of the full output of the mill. The past year's profits have been earned on barely one-half of the output of the completed plant. Rapid progress, however, has been made with the installation of the additional machinery, the money of which was provided out of the proceeds of the issue of Debenture Stock last year. It is expected that one of the two new paper-making machines will start running at the end of January next, and the other one in the spring. The Directors are pleased to be able to report that during the past year there has been a steady increase in the output and also a steady and substantial diminution in the cost of making pulp and paper. The Directors anticipate that when the full benefit of the increased output is felt the results will be highly satisfactory."

Police Court News.

To-day a drunk and disorderly on the Albeigna and who assaulted the chief officer was before the court. The officer who was deaf in one ear from the blow received from the prisoner, appeared against him and the man was fined $10 or 30 days. Two drunks were discharged. Four men summoned by Sergt. Olliphant for keeping unlicensed dogs were each fined $1 or 3 days. Four drivers summoned by the Council for working without a license, paid up their fees and were dismissed. The past has its pleasant memories, but the best has been kept till the last, for the creme de la creme of to-day will be the truly colossal bargains offered in Shirts and Boys' and Men's Suits at RODGER'S Sale.

Moral Value of Manual Work.

Some remarkable testimony has been offered by a Mr. Jacob A. Rus as to the moral value of boys and girls doing things. He says:—"My claim is that if a false emphasis were not laid upon head work in our schools—if real training of the hand and eye went with book learning—the result would be a wide-awake and competent lad, instead of the chap who can only fetch and carry."

"Were we not told a little while ago by authority which no one arose to question that in all the vast bulk of exports from the United States there was not a single article that found a market abroad because of its superior workmanship? That was an arraignment of something vitally wrong somewhere. To find where we have to go back to the school."

"He contends that—"All children should be taught to use tools, not to make mechanics of them, but men. They all want to learn. Why is Robinson every normal boy's hero? Why are the Scouts so popular? Because to him they both mean doing things."

He then cites a number of instances of the moral reformation instituted in hooligan quarters of certain cities in the States by the establishment of garden schools.

Uncle Walt

THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

All people respect the worker, for industry always knocks; and no one respects the shirker who stands on the street and talks. Here's truth unadorned, (and let her in every man's ear be din'd!): A WORK AND half a day's work is better than five hundred years of wind! I've looked on the loafers keeping their trust, where they stood and slept; and most of the bunch are sleeping to-day in the Potter's Field; oh, idleness was their fetter—they wore it, and weakly grinned, not heeding that work is better than all there is of wind. The street, where the loafers tread it, is fraught with a thousand tales of famine and lack of credit, and workhouses, cells and jails. The tale of the shiftless debtor, the tale of the thief who sinned; and bread that you earn is better than anything got by wind. There's only thing—endeavor—that counts in this world of men; the day that is spent will never come back to your life again. The siren of sloth—forget her! Let all of her wiles be din'd! An hour of real work is better than ages of futile wind!
