No Cause for Anxiety.

A message was received in town this morning from a Newfoundland resident in Montreal, stating that he spent last evening with His Grace Archbishop Howley in his room at the Royal Victoria Hospital. He assures the recipient of the message that there is no ground for anxiety. Dr. Garrow has subjected His Grace to an examination by the x rays and declares that His Grace is perfectly sound. By the advice of Dr. Garrow he is staying in the hospital for another week resting.

The News Contradicted.

The News professes to deny that there was no trouble at the Dry Dock yesterday re discharging the Wilhelm's deals. We need do nothing more than refer the smart alec who wrote that to Mr. James McGrath, President of the Labourers Union, and he will soon give him all the information he wants. The Union men were asked to work but demanded the Union rate of 20 cents per hour. They were offered 15 cents. As regards the permanent employees at the dock we would ask how many Topseil men arrived here to discharge the ship and whenever he likes we will produce the men who advocated the idea of interviewing the Premier on the matter. The News man puts on a very judicious air sometimes, but there are many things that he says "are so" that "aint so."

The Ladies of St. John's May Now Grow Beautiful Hair.

McMurdo & Co. backed up by the manufacturers of SALVIA the Great Grower, guarantees, it to grow hair. SALVIA destroys Dandruff in ten days. The roots of the hair are so nourished and fed that a new crop of hair springs up, to the amazement and delight of the user. The hair is made soft and fluffy. Like all American preparations SALVIA is daintily perfumed. It is hard to find an actress who does not use SALVIA continually. A large bottle for 50c.

DANGEROUSLY ILL.—Mrs. Carew, wife of the late Joseph Carew, Cooper, formerly of the King's Road, is dangerously ill at her residence, Barne's Road. She is a woman of advanced years and her physician knows she cannot long survive. Her many friends both young and old in St. John's will be sorry to learn of her condition.

Not a cargo of fish has yet been shipped to market off the coast of Labrador, north of Battle Harbour, weather conditions were still bad when the Solway was coming this way last trip. However in a few cases vessels were partly loaded and the weather was shortly looked forward to which would be a boon for the fishermen.

The Other Side of the Medal.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Of a certain great man very much in the public eye just now, a popular periodical recently used an apt French phrase. It said that he had "les defauts des qualites" which, as the general reader has already that he had the guessed, means defects that go naturally with his peculiar qualities.

This great man is pre-eminently a "doer," and according to this analysis of his character, he has the precipitancy and indiscretion which are the complementary defects of that character.

Now as to whether this particular man has the qualities and defects mentioned, I am not going to try to guess. You see, I've given my solemn word to the Editor to keep out of politics. But the reason I've been telling you about him is just this. I want to call your attention to the value of that French phrase.

Do you realize that almost all of us have "les defauts des qualites"?

We have, you know. And in judging or blaming or analyzing our family or our friends, and especially I think, our children, we should certainly take account of this.

And yet how seldom we do!

For instance, a child is quick to learn, eager and impulsive; we praise these qualities. But he is also the inevitable complement, rash and impulsive, and probably quick tempered. We blame him for these tendencies.

and wonder where on earth they came from. They are nothing but other manifestations of the qualities we praise.

I know a young woman who, all through her childhood and girlhood, was tremendously intense, in her play, her study, her friendships, and all that she felt or did. Her mother undoubtedly knew this, and, I think, took pride in it. But when womanhood came, and the same intensity displayed itself in other ways and almost ruined the girl's life, the mother could not see where she got such a passionate disposition. [If the coiner of the French phrase will permit I'd like to twist it a bit, and say that we also have the qualities of our defects.]

For instance, a friend of mine supplied a piece of information which a group of people wanted. "How did you ever find that out?" they inquired. "How?" she answered. "Because I wanted to know and asked. That's the way with you people—you laugh at me because I go around asking questions, but you are glad enough to share my knowledge when you want to know anything." You see she had the quality of her defect—if you may call curiosity a defect; I don't, but some people do—the fund of knowledge that went with her inquiring mind.

Good and bad are often only two names for different phases of the same thing.

And if you will use this point of view as a key, I think you will find it easier to understand folks' characters, your own included.

HAPPY THO' MARRIED?

There are unhappy married lives, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the illness of the wife, mother or daughter. The feelings of nervousness, the befogged mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, hollow and circled eyes, result most often from those disorders peculiar to women. For the woman to be happy and good-looking she must naturally have good health. Dregging-down feelings, hysteria, hot-flashes or constantly returning pains and aches—are too great a drain upon a woman's vitality and strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health by regulating and correcting the local disorders which are generally responsible for the above distressing symptoms.

Fads and Fashions.

Very pretty canvas and voile dresses in white and biscuit color are embroidered with wool. Some of these are done in a darning stitch, some in thick padded embroidery, while others have the appearance of old Berlin wool work done on canvas. The effect is excellent and bizarre, bright shades being used.

Afternoon frocks of foulard have a train made in white fllet, reaching below the knee, open at the side and fastened with buttons on the shoulders. Round the waist is a ribbon or white silk elastic belt with an antique clasp. This turns a morning or simple dress into one suitable for the afternoon.

One-sided effects are a feature of the fall costumes. There is no brilliancy of material. One side of a costume will be entirely different from the other. A revers here and opposite a line of buttons; a cascade of lace will be added on one part, while the corresponding portion will be adjusted draped panels.

Many of the smartest mantles have the one-sided effect so much seen in the new dresses. A broad band of crine slung over one shoulder appears to hold up the cavalier cloak fashioned drapery of dark seal-colored plush on a straight band collar effect across the shoulders, compressed of sable or chinchilla, is also pretty.

All sleeves show a long sloping shoulder. This is noticed in both day and evening costumes. The full bishop sleeve falls from a piping half-way down the armhole and is caught at the wrists by a bracelet of color or velvet, while other sleeves are full at the elbow and finish in a long tight-fitting mitten cuff sleeve, almost hiding the hand.

The most favored trimmings for evening gowns are heavily encrusted with brilliants. The contrast of rhinestones on a black net is new and makes a charming trimming on a black-and-white evening gown. Spangled nets are in evidence, jet being foremost, and the beaded and embroidered tunic has wonderful possibilities of transforming a gown.

The use of contrasting fur is shown in nearly all the separate coats of fur. Chinchilla squirrel is a novelty that is being used for trimming sealskin coats. The long coats have the cutaway line at the lower edge. Linings are very beautiful. Some of the fur coats are lined with a soft velvet, others with brocade or heavy plain satins in rich colorings.

Not in the Straits

Dear Sir.—In reading a copy of the Montreal Illustrated Standard of May 25th I saw a picture of Bell Island, C.B. It said it was a charming spot in the Ancient Colony, near the Straits of Belle Isle, photos by our own artist Mr. S.H. Parsons. It would be interesting paper to study a little more of the geography of Newfoundland, England's Oldest Colony, and he will find that it has not yet drifted down to the "Labrador," as it is well halasted with "iron ore" and likely to remain there for "fifty years more."

Strong Factors Favoring Eastern Car Company.

The New Car Building Corporation at New Glasgow has advantage of Location for Assembling of Materials and Shipment of Product.

There are two prominent features in connection with the Eastern Car Company which will give that corporation a decided advantage in competing for a share of the immense tonnage of cars annually required by the railways of Canada.

One of these is the location of the plant at New Glasgow and its close relationship with the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company.

The company also will enter the car-building field in the possession of a plant embracing all the improvements which past experience makes possible. The plant has been laid out on practical and scientific lines and is being built under the supervision of the best experts the industry has produced.

New Steamer.

The work of laying the keel and frame for the new Reid ship is now going forward. She will ply on the Cabot Strait and it is thought that the contractors will hand over the steamer in January.
