> Says the Great Issue of the West is One of the Live Questions of the Day

Predicts That at the Next Election Quebec Will Go Back Solid for Laurier

The Liberal League rooms were filled last night to hear the Hon. George Morrissey, minister of public works for New Brunswick, in an address on the political issues. Mr. Morrissey is a clear, concise speaker, with a wide knowledge of Canadian affairs, and his address was well received. He touched on reciprocity, and told those present that the great issue of the west was not dead, and was a greater question than ever. In reference to the naval policy, he said the Tories were waiting for the Liberals to give them a few pointers, hence their delay in declaring their policy. Chairman Keating introduced T. J. S Skinmer, the latter expressing his pleasure at being present, and said, although a defeated candidate, he still had his flag nailed to the mast. The vital question of the day, he said, was still reciprocity, and it never would be a dead issue while there were Liberals to keep up the fight.

Mr. Morrissey received an ovation on nisting to speak. He said: "They say I took seven Dickings before I won out, and when I got in I told them they would get seven lickings or more to get me out, and I'm not going out till I get good and ready.

"Back east they are spending less time on the country's interest than they are in quarrelling over the spoils of office. The clouds of Liberalism are afready breaking. Reciprocity is by no means dead any more in the east than y in the matter of good buildings, it is in the west. The Tory party went into office through misrepresen side issues, and Mag waving, and not on reciprocity. Why should we in New Brunswick not have reciprocity?
