

YOU'LL NOT FIND ALL OUR LOW PRICES IN OUR ADVERTISEMENTS.

It's easier to advertise low prices than to sell at low prices and there's a heap more of it done. All the prices that can be put in advertisements are a small part of the whole. What about the rest of the prices. You'll not find all of our low prices in our ads, we can't crowd them in. Come to the store.

HOW DO YOU CARRY AN UMBRELLA?

A Woman's Character Revealed by This, Thinks One Man.

The man who sat nearest the window said he didn't mind the wet weather. "It gives me a chance to see how people carry their umbrellas," he said. "I have such firm faith in my umbrella deductions that I wouldn't be afraid to choose a wife with them for a guide."

The woman on his left smiled. "I'm glad I'm not out there in the street," she said. "You'd be picking out all the kinks in my disposition along with the rest of them."

"Oh," said the man. "I sized you up a long time ago. You carry your umbrella, when it's needed, just like that woman across the street. You grab it in the middle and go forging ahead with the ends of the handle digging into the unfortunate pedestrians who go before and follow after."

"And what does that signify?" asked the woman on the left.

"Alertness, activity, selfishness and inconsiderateness."

"Um-m-m," said the woman. "But just look at the third woman in the procession," said the man. "I pity the men folks about her house. I'll warrant they have to get their own breakfast about six mornings out of seven. I never yet saw a woman who dragged her umbrella along so that you could track her by the trail of the tip who wasn't dilatory and shiftless. She never sews on a button or darns or mends, and her breakfast dishes are seldom washed before 2 o'clock."

"That other woman who is hustling along holding to the top of the umbrella handle like grim death and pointing the tip down and forward in a kind of south by southwesterly direction is altogether different. She would set the world on fire if it wasn't waterlogged. I am not sure that I'd want to be married to her, either. She'd be too energetic. She'd push everything before her, and when she took a notion to clean things up a mere man would have nowhere to lay his head. What she is good for is serving on committees."

"That woman in the gray skirt is a real and nay sort of person. She wants to agree with everybody and follows wherever led. Women who carry their umbrellas with the point backward and downward are always unassertive. But just look at that girl who spins along swinging her umbrella around in a circle as if it were a magic wand. I like her. She's jolly and good natured and gets more pleasure out of life than ten ordinary people. There's a woman carrying her umbrella across her shoulder like a shotgun. She's a true soldier of fortune and was never known to say die. I can't think of anything that would faze her."

The man paused. "And what would you say," asked the woman, "about that girl who carries her umbrella horizontally across the small of her back and catches either end into the crook of her elbow?"

"Well," admitted the man, "she is a new one on me. I never met her before, but I wouldn't be afraid to wager that she is conscientious to a degree and has a heart as big as all outdoors. But here," he added, "comes the most even tempered woman of the lot. She cuddles her umbrella protectively under her arm as if she doesn't want even it to get hurt in the crowd. That woman is gentle and thoughtful and kind."

TRADING WOODEN LEGS.

Effects of the "Swap" Between Minister and Stage Driver.

"Trading legs!" I exclaimed. "Do you mean to say that a wooden leg is an article of barter and exchange?"

"Waal, some do, an some don't. I'm one of the kind that does," went on the driver dryly. "It's only human nature to be dickerin an tradin round if a fellow's got anything to trade with, an when I run across a chap who's got a peg leg that looks as if it might fit me a little mite better than the one I'm wearin at the time I gen'ally stump him fer a trade before I let him git away."

"Sometimes we make a swap of it, an sometimes we don't," depends on whether the other fellow's got any game in him or not. It's a sorter risky business, tradin legs, same as swoppin hosses, an some folks ain't got the rekisite sand to do it. I'll never forget the first trade I made. Feller I swapped with was one of these travelin exhorters, an, b'gosh, I don't kear a darn whether you b'lieve me or not, but I hadn't bin wearin that wooden leg of his a week before I quit swearin at the hosses an misin Sam Hill when anything didn't go right, same as I allers uster do, an commenced exhortin the passengers an p'intin out the error of their ways to them in any case where I seen it was necessary."

"Waal, it wa'n't very long before complaints begun to come in ag'inst me. You see, to begin with, I couldn't make time over the road without rippin out at the hosses wunst in awhile. The plaguy critters noticed the difference in me right off, an they took advantage of it by lazin along an do jest about as they pleased, an then, besides complainin of me fer bein behind time, the passengers said I was preachin at them an misin in affairs that was none of my special business, an, by g'wah, it begun to look as if it wa'n't goin to lose my job, when that air shoutin exhorter come along back ag'in an kicked up a rumpus because that leg of mine had jest about ruined his business; said it had bin travelin straight 'rds the bottomless pit with him ever since he owned it, an now he'd got so he was jest as liable as not to swear right out in the pulpit without thinkin, an he allowed that unless I traded back with him he'd sue me fer damages."

A Great Scheme.

Friend—What are you working at now? Inventor—Greatest thing of the age—a dollar in the slot voting and weighing machine. It collects the poll tax, counts the votes and so beautifully discriminates that there'll be no more trouble, no more politics, no more speeches, no more brass bands and, best of all, no more boodlers.

"My stars! What's the idea?" "Simple as A B C. The machine only counts the votes of those under a certain weight. Quick as the party in power begins to get fat on the spoils of office their votes are thrown out, and the half starved minority walks in, and when the new party gets fat it goes out, and so on. It beats all creation! Gives every fellow a chance to become a successful politician."
