BABY BURGLAR CATCHER.

Gussie Mantel, the 8-year-old niece of Louis Steltzer, of New York, was awakened early in the morning by hearing the door opened leading from the hall. She saw a man go to a closet and take a suit of clothes, belonging to her uncle. "Mister, what are you doing there?"

she asked of the burglar.
"Shut up, or I'll choke you," replied the man. As he started to leave the room she ran after him, grabbed him by the legs, and began to scream. He tried to kick her away from him, but she got a firm grip on his trousers, He dragged her down a whole flight of stairs, where he managed to release himself. He then ran down three more flights to the hall leading to the street. Here he was met by Louis Steltzer, the child's uncle, who had een aroused by her screams. Steltzer held him until the little girl came running down and explained the cause of the trouble. Roundsman Fitzsimmons arrested the burglar, who gave the name of Samuel Bernstein, and said he lived at 56 Norfolk street.
