

HAVE YOU A HUSBAND

child or friend, who is suffering from eczema, or other skin disease, or an obstinate sore that has defied medical treatment? If so, that is a case for Zambuk.

Mrs. B. Miller, of Castleton, Ont. writes: "My husband suffered intensely with a running sore on his foot. The sore penetrated to the bone, and the inflammation was so bad that he could not sleep at night. After spending a lot of money and trying every remedy we heard of, with no result, I read of a cure which Zambuk had effected in a similar case, and got a box.

"Within two hours after the first application the pain was eased; and with perseverance the inflammation was drawn out, the swelling reduced, and before long the sore was entirely healed."

Zambuk also cures ulcers, abscesses, eczema, poisoned wounds, pimples, cold sores, chapped hands and chilblains.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES DURING WEEK OF PRAYER

Program as Laid Down by Evangelical Alliance Being Followed

The Week of Prayer services held in the different Protestant churches last week were all exceptionally well attended, and the program as laid down by the Evangelical Alliance was carried through.

The Thursday evening service in Christ Church was a specially interesting one. The address was delivered by Rev. Wellington Camp, the new pastor of the Baptist Church.

His subject was—"Nations and their Rulers," and he said in part:

"This brings us face to face with the most terrible war the world has ever known."

A large part of the world is at present engaged in war. The Central Powers and the Allies together with Belgium and Serbia, which have been crushed by Teutonic power. A few nations are looking on, but these are making munitions of war for the fighting nations.

Note the situation.

On July 28th Austria-Hungary declared war upon Serbia. On Aug. 1st Germany, who was the real instigator of the war, declared war upon Russia, and on the 3rd of Aug. declared war on France. Up to this time Great Britain had used every means in her power to avert the war. Germany was prepared and thought that her opportunity had come. She must strike France quickly and reach Paris in a few weeks. To reach Paris she must go through Belgium. She had sworn to maintain the neutrality of Belgium, but to secure her object she at once violated her treaty, treating her word of honour as a "scrap of paper". Belgium appealed to Great Britain, who had promised to stand by her neutrality. On the 4th of Aug. Great Britain, to maintain her honour, declared war on Germany. On the 15th of Aug. Germany had taken Liege. On the 20th she had come within a few miles of Paris, when Great Britain and France stopped her. For nearly two years this war has been going on. Germany's brutality and treachery, and her long list of crimes, can never be forgotten. She has violated International Law and every other law of right and justice. Her unjustifiable cruelty and the manner in which she has outraged humanity will forever stand against her. What should be the attitude of the Christian Church toward Germany and her Allies?

Let me suggest three things.

1. Pray for the downfall of Germany and Prussian militarism.

There can be no peace on a righteous basis until this military spirit is crushed. British victory is the hope of the world today.

"Lord, be our nation's Saviour" now, for royal son's shield in this hour. Oh shelter in the battle storm, Their refuge be—their mighty tower. Oh bid that war and strife may cease, Grant to our Empire victory—peace."

This poetry expresses my thought. We can only have a worthy peace when victory comes to our beloved Empire. Some have greatly wondered how our American cousin can stand by and witness the awful and unparalleled crimes committed against humanity and not lift up her hand against it. The great dailies of New York and Chicago have given no uncertain sound. But Mr. Wilson and his advisors content themselves to write letters to Germany and Austria when American lives have been sacrificed, but nothing further has been done. I saw a cartoon from the New York "Dip". A boy is sitting on a bench with a little dog beside him, holding a little string which is fastened around the dog's neck. Another young fellow comes along and the following conversation takes place.

"Nice little dog you have."

"Splendid little dog. Quiet, peaceful and domestic. No military spirit in him. Simply can't imagine the little chap getting into any sort of a scrap."

"What do you call him?"

"Uncle Sam."

But "Uncle Sam" may some day be sorry he lost the golden opportunity to set before all the world his approval of right. He has seen the Lusitania, the Arabic, the Hesperian and the Persis go down and many American lives have been lost. Then crimes of under water craft still go on and yet neutrality.

"Uncle Sam" is maintaining a strict neutrality.

II. Give our boys who are going to the front a hearty word of cheer and Godspeed.

They are making a great sacrifice. Their heroism, their cheerfulness and their loyalty have influenced the whole world and called forth praise from all the Allies. If Great Britain's fighting is the highest and holiest thing we know anything about, we can say to our boys, God bless you and God go with you and God grant you victory.

III. Trust God as to the issue.

God rules. He will overcome all for His glory and the good of man. We shall have a better world after the war. This awful crisis will bring about a day of peace. God is leading the world on to the second greatest event in its history. The first was the Advent of our blessed Lord; the next will be His second coming. We are on the eve of a great revolution. There shall be a new heaven and a new earth in which dwelleth righteousness. Christ's coming will bring this to pass. Some say God has nothing to do with this war. I don't believe that statement. God did not start the war. The Kaiser and the devil started it. But God will finish it. He will overthrow all for His glory and the good of His people. Let us do our best to discharge each his duty and trust God for the best."

These services were brought to a close Friday evening in the Methodist Church, when Rev. Hugh Miller delivered the address.

Rev. Mr. Miller's subject was "The Church Universal; the One Body of which Christ is the Head."

"Every ideal sought embodiment, every thought that took a firm hold upon the human mind sought visibility in historical institutions. An industrial company secures capital for its work and then erects buildings, builds railways and in other ways gives visibility to its ideas. Likewise with the church movements. Christianity was the greatest ideal that took hold upon the human mind and it sought embodiment in a visible Church, the outward expression of an inward Truth. The different definitions of the Church were dealt with. In answer to "What is the Church?" A child might give the answer "It is the place where we worship on Sabbath," identifying it with a building of certain architecture, and equipment. Another would answer that the Church was their denomination composed of people accepting certain dogmas founded upon certain interpretation of Scripture. Others, the sum total of people composing the various denominations. None of these were shown to be the true definition. The Church of Christ is composed of the sum total of believers in Christ. It is a Society founded by Christ, which Society was composed of followers who were admitted for no other reason, but for their belief in Christ and because their lives were changed by the Grace of God. The Church was persecuted from the first, but instead of destroying it, it gave it new life. The chief danger was not from the critic without, but the failure of the man within the Church. Of the Church, Horace Bushnell truthfully said: "Persecution has not crushed it, power has not beaten it, time has not abated its force, and what is most wonderful of all, the abuses and treasons of its friends have not shaken its stability."

LETTERS FROM THE FRONT

Interesting letter from Pte. Athanasios Poirier, 26th Batt., and son of Victor Poirier, Balmoral, In the trenches, Belgium, Dec. 9th, 1915.

My dear parents—

How happy I was this evening when the post orderly handed me a letter from you. It seemed such a long time since I had received a letter from dear old Canada. None I can speak of myself only, as Etienne is no longer with me. He is in the Duchesse of Genoa Hospital in England, and may go back to Canada. Some say he lost two fingers, but I do not believe it. He wrote to our sergeant that he was improving. Until he was wounded he ate and slept with me, and we fought side by side. He was certainly a brave and good soldier and was much loved by all the officers and soldiers. He is so jolly and so comical.

My health is always excellent, notwithstanding the fact that I have been in the trenches over three months, struggling fiercely with the enemy. They have often turned their machine guns on me, several "Jack Johnsons" have exploded near me, but, thanks to the Supreme Master, I am still without a scratch.

Our Lieutenant found out I knew something about cooking, and I became cook for our platoon. I like it, although the Germans tease me by times. Yesterday, they spilled my tea and my milk, but they told it pretty hot when I can get it at home. I have been face to face with some of them, and although they are known as good soldiers, I poor little Canadian recruit, whom, a few months ago, knew nothing but the forest and the farm, came out vanquisher more than once. The first one I met was a lion, his eyes were like fire, and his face red with rage. He sprang towards me, muzzling something in his language, which I took for another. Really, I thought I had taken my last

OUR TIN POT NAVY DOES GOOD WORK

S. S. Niobe Is Doing Active Service on the Atlantic—Large Number of Prizes

Going about her work quietly, but efficiently the Canadian cruiser Niobe has been the subject of but little remark in the past eighteen months, yet she has done valuable service to the Empire.

Not very long ago the Tory papers were full of anxiety as to the "tin-pot" navy; now they realize what an asset that "navy" is, and they are silent.

It is said that the Niobe chased the Kron Prince Wilhelm and the Prinz Eitel Friedrich into port at Newport News. As a matter of fact, these vessels were probably anxious to reach that haven of rest, but the fact remains that the Niobe was "on the job," ready to protect Canada's coast from these vessels, and, if necessary, fight them to a finish.

She has converted tonnage ships over the Atlantic, and thus aided in getting the man in khaki safely to the front.

More than this, the Niobe stands third in the list for prizes captured, with 68 vessels. This means eternal vigilance and unflagging energy. The cruiser has done her duty nobly, and is still ready to give a good account of herself if hostile craft should appear.

With a few more such vessels on the Pacific Coast there would have been less anxiety, early in the war, Britain had an abundance of warships for the work in waters nearer home, but there were one or two raiders afloat in the Pacific which caused much worry. Had there been a few sister ships to help in the chase the two Kron Prince ships might have been now in British lands, instead of being laid up in the United States, and then doing good service as transports.

The Niobe and those who acquired her for Canada have reason to be proud of her record.

super. But summoning all my courage and energy, and thinking of our Blessed Mother, our King and the country which I had come to defend, I took my gun firmly in my hands, and thrust my bayonet in the heart of that beastly foe. I could feel the steel deep in the human flesh, which concealed the wicked heart of that d—n.

It was awful. With a deep roar of pain and rage, he fell heavily on the blood-washed ground. Then I turned on another and another until the effete whistle announced the battle over for that moment. So many more who will eat no more "bully-beef" or "hard tarp."

Do not be uneasy about me, I pull through alright and bear with courage, all the hardships of our mission. Some poor fellows cannot endure as much as I, and some find bayonetting positively beyond their strength. But they all do honor to their King and country.

We have winter here now, but it is not very cold. There is a thin layer of snow on the ground, and as far as the eye can reach, the summits of hills are white, plants and trees are bare. One meets neither men in uniforms, neither French, English or Belgian, and military transportations of all descriptions.

Well, dear parents, Christmas and New Year's Day are drawing near, and, as I let my thoughts fly across the world, I wonder, while the friends left behind enjoy life in the land of dreams and happiness, if any of them will send a kind thought towards the boys in the trenches. If we at once stepped in their midst, they would undoubtedly appreciate our return. But being so far away, I am afraid we shall be altogether forgotten. You must remember that we struggle and suffer for every one within the bounds of our immense Empire. Therefore, those who have not enough back-bone to follow our example, have no right to speak lightly of the "boys in khaki."

Britain needs men and the parish we come from is full of strong young men who, but for some misadventure, they lack energy and good-will. They do not understand their duty, but say it is only the "common boys" who come to fight and suffer for the Motherland. These are unpardonable words, and their utterers are not only cowards, but dangerous men. We hold life as dear as any of them and the world never did cast us out. But we felt that our King needed us, and we generously sacrificed our life to save thousands of others. If the fathers and mothers of certain families in Balmoral could only see one third of what we have seen, they would speak differently, and would willingly send their sons to help us in the defence of the Empire, the reigning of the world's peace and the repelling of the Germans from the French Republic, the land of our noble fathers.

Prospects are brighter, now. We are on the right and left. The high spirit among the soldiers is wonderful. Even when the Germans bombard us, we laugh, sing and whistle as we go on with our work. We are happy and well used, and have nothing to complain about. We get two drinks of rum every day in the trenches.

This great struggle is over. Write me long letters, and remember me to all my friends.

Your affectionate son,
ATHANASIOS

"So that my executors may have ready money."

The following extract is from the will recently executed by a lady, successful and as the will proves, thoughtful business man.

Among the insurance policies on my life which were payable to my children in equal shares, I am endeavoring to arrive at the best policy which will pay to my children as they reach their majority, the sum of $10,000 each, and I desire my children to receive their share in the following manner:

The $10,000 life insurance proceeds the sale of property which would otherwise have had to be disposed of at a great sacrifice.

Let me be plain. There is no estate but it is of small, but should be covered by life insurance. A policy would protect the estate of your widow or your children, and will not otherwise be needed, because it spells "ready money," especially if planned wisely.
