THE LATE CAROLINE A. HARDWICKE

A Niece of B. B. Hardwicke, of Annapolis Passes Away in Massachusetts

A letter received from one of the professors in Wellesley College, Mass., states that they are making plans to erect a memorial tablet in the college to the memory of Miss Caroline A. Hardwicke, who died there on March 5th. The Wellesley College News of March 13th contained the following appreciation of the deceased who was a niece of Mr. B. B. Hardwicke, of Annapolis Royal:

CAROLINE A. HARDWICKE

This last week has seen the passing of a brave spirit from among us.

Miss Hardwicke bore bodily infirmities for years without complaint. Not even those most intimately associated with her, knew of her great disabilities. How beautiful and merciful that after weeks of sleepless nights, that she should slip into silence with the words: "I am going to sleep."

She was Scotch by inheritance and had many of the fine characteristics of the race: love and truth devotion to kin loyalty to friends, faithfulness and devotion to her apostles, and all the great questions of the day and brought to their consideration good sense, strong conviction and courage.

Her faith in God was attested by her deeds. She read many times these words: "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth."

She was eminently the teacher. It is seldom that a teacher in experience had her grasp of principle, she did not teach by imitation, but was logical and constructive in her methods.

This gift of method had high recognition by those who understood the difficulties of teaching her subject. I wish her pupils might know how deep her interest was in them individually. She never wearied of discussing them, and followed their progress after they left her classes.

In her private life she had independence of mind and that fine human dependence of spirit on her friends.

As the steady result of her life was upward, so may it ever be "Oche heights in other lives, God willing."

Here, we shall ever miss her.

MALVINE M. BENNETT.
