My mother, sister and myself accordingly commenced our novena. For the first few days very little change in my condition was noticed, and on the eighth day I suffered so intensely that I was unable to go to confession. The next morning, those making the novena with me received Holy Communion in honor of St. Anne for my recovery. When my mother and sister returned home, they were surprised to see I had changed so much for the better.

In fact, from that moment, my health has improved, my rheumatism has left me entirely, and the damp weather, which before my cure used to keep me in the house and often in bed, has no terrors for me, and I go around as well as all the other little girls who attend school with me. Praise and honor to St. Anne.

AN AFFLICTED CHILD

Palgrave, Ont., April 5th 1899.

I am a little girl only thirteen years old and I have nearly lost the power of my hands. I have been doctoring nearly a year now, but Doctors say they cannot do any more for me it being the cariosity of the bones. My wrists are the worst. I am hardly able to write this. Besides, my father died on March 26th and my mother is sick. I am making a novena to St. Anne that my mother may be spared to me. May it please her to hear my request.

The sickness was very severe, for five long weeks, I was laid up with it and reduced to such a weakness that I was unable to stand. But St. Anne, to whom I had prayed every day, came to my help
