

THE NAPOLEON OF NOTTING HILL

By G. K. CHESTERTON

With Seven Illustrations and a Cover Design by W. GRAHAM ROBERTSON, and a Map of the Seat of War. Crown 8vo. 6s.

MR. JAMES DOUGLAS, in the Star.—"An allegorical romance, a didactic fantasy, a humorous whimsy. It is not easy to say what it means; Mr. Chesterton himself probably does not know."

Daily Mail.—"Mr. Chesterton, as our laughing philosopher, is at his best in this delightful fantasy."

Westminster Gazette.—"It is undeniably clever. It scintillates—that is exactly the right word—with bright and epigrammatic observations, and it is written throughout with undoubted literary skill."

World.—"... as delightful as a second 'Lilliput Leves' or an 'Alice in Wonderland' grown up, come out, and edited by the author of 'The Battle of Dorking,' or 'Nelson Steersforth.' The book deserves to be read eagerly, first for the general effect, which is bewilderingly witty; secondly, for the tit-bits, which are benignly wise."

Referee.—"Mr. Chesterton is one of the few modern writers who have a style—and full of humor. It would be difficult to put this book down until you had finished it."

Daily Chronicle.—"It is quite needless to know what Mr. Chesterton means. All that concerns us is that he has written a vastly entertaining book, which should be breathlessly enjoyed at Notting Hill and elsewhere."

Daily News.—"If the test of the success of any book is the pleasure it gives in the reading, this first novel of Mr. Chesterton must be pronounced a veritable triumph. The book is at once a fantastic romance, a rich mine of humor, and a kind of allegory of all the contentions which the author has been maintaining so trenchantly since his first appearance in literature."