

upon their landing in England. (Applause).

The camps, he further said, are not good in a great number of cases. The British system of training is not good. The food is the same. With things in that way what does it mean?

"Why that we are inviting trouble. That is all. That does not show leadership. Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied how things occurred when the Canadian troops were making their way back to Canada. When they were going to France, they were told, 'Wait till you go to France, then you will see that things are a hundred percent worse in France.' But when coming back the men had been in France, and they knew. They were not then going to stand any fooling. They were going to demand right conditions or know the reason why. They had lived under different conditions. I may say conditions are different in Canada from what these men found them in England. The Englishman is different from the Canadian. I say I don't bless the Englishman, but I do bless the whole lot that our men will not stand. We are not born that way. We don't intend to stand a great deal that they stand over there."

A Warning to Canada.

Col. Price continued to say that the riots should be regarded as a warning to all in Canada to treat the returned soldiers fairly. He said the length on the subject of soldiers' pensions. If Canada had gone into the war in a way that would eliminate the profiteers, there would be no money for soldiers' pensions without taxing unduly the municipalities and the province. According to The London Times, the Canadian munitions board had spent 240,000,000 pounds sterling, and for a great deal of the expenditure the Dominion of Canada is guarantor. The munitions board has been regarded as a body of holies in Canada, upon which no one must place a finger. There is one Sir Joseph Flavelle himself announced expenditures amounting to $1,250,000,000 in addition to which he controlled 260,000 tons of shipping, the airplane contracts, large contracts in British Columbia, and the agency for the American munitions board. Altogether the munitions board had spent $2,000,000,000 in various things. What the soldier wants to know is who made the profits on that $2,000,000,000? (Applause).

Who Got the Profits?

"What the returned soldier wants to know is who are the men who put these profits down into their pockets, and have them there today?"

Col. Machin: Hear, hear.

Col. Price: And we are going to know. (Loud applause).

Col. Machin: Hear, hear.

Col. Price: All I am criticizing is the man who got the big contracts and who made the big profits. The man who would not have got the profits if the soldiers had not gone over to fight. These hog butchers—you may call them what you like, Mr. Speaker, nothing is too bad for them—our munitions board, have reaped profits of $600,000,000. It is self-evident that the soldiers coming home do not come to be told that someone made these millions on contracts while they were away. They won't like to find that the money that was sent where all this money is. (Applause).

"Wherever Sir Joseph Flavelle is, E. Wood, W. E. Rundle, the Bank of Commerce, Lloyd Harris, Tommy Russell—"

Wm. McDonald: And Sir Thomas White.

Col. Price: Yes; you may put him in, too. I don't care. These are the men who will always be found round the corner, wherever Sir Joseph Flavelle is. And I intend, Mr. Speaker, on another occasion, to move a resolution of this house, addressed to the Dominion house, asking where all this money is. (Applause).

Col. Machin: Hear, hear.

Soldiers Want a Show-down.

Col. Price: The men who are coming back want a show-down. We want a show-down in Canada. That is what we have been fighting for. (Applause). That is what our men want overseas. They are now coming back wanting to know conditions. They want to know everything. (Loud applause).

"The thing that pleased me, most in the past week, was the victory of the Hydro-Electric. (Applause). The returned soldier will be pleased with the Hydro-Electric. He will want not only to see its success in regard to light and power, but he will want to see Ontario gridironed with electric roads. The people of the province must be always on the alert to further the success of the Hydro-Electric under Sir Adam Beck. He advised a policy of investigating the entire province for coal deposits."

Community System for Soldiers.

At the evening session of the legislature, Mr. J. C. Toimie, Windsor, took up the theme of the returned soldiers. He said the comrades idea had been established among them, and they could not be expected to settle in Northern Ontario unless the community system was provided there for them. His explanation of the Wales riots was that the Wales being over, the boys want to come home.

He admitted that the boys are welcomed when they return to Canada. But asked what are we to do for them afterwards? His heart had been broken by the member for Parkdale describing conditions in England. He said the returned soldier was a peddler laces. If that was the case, he was ashamed in the fact only that those in Canada who are responsible. (Applause). Profits must be found for the men somewhere, somehow; but at once. (Applause).

Mr. Toimie concluded with the following words: "The returned soldier is not going to bow down for a title even tho' it be worn upon a throne of gold. Erected out of profits made in this war. (Loud applause)."

More Banks Needed.

Tom Hook, Toronto, gave a spirited appreciation of political patronage, which he said had made government service in Canada what it is. He referred to the fact that thirty-five years ago Canada had forty-four banks. The business of the country was well done then. We have now only fifteen banks, and the business of the country is not done better. The Bankers' Association which means two or three men, have all the liquid assets of Canada under control. If things keep on as they are, the time will surely come when Canada will have but one bank, and then one man will control bag and baggage, bones and soul, all the liquid assets of the country. Restrictions should be placed upon the banks and trust companies of Canada. Small local banks should be encouraged.

J. W. Widdfield (P.O., North Ontario), in his maiden speech expressed appreciation of the remarks of the member for North West, who was coming to the house to house, would make himself clear as to his own position. He had come into the house as an independent member. (Applause). He did, of course, not expect that he could always remain independent, but would vote for one side or the other according to his conviction, but the government could be assured that he was not in antagonism to them, despite the fact that he said to the contrary in North Ontario. He believed party politics, doomed, and failed to see why the government of the province could not hold the same position towards the business of the people as a board of directors holds to the shareholders of a corporation. He put himself on record as saying that those who have committed Canada to a high tariff policy, and the attitude of the people of western Canada are not going to stand the continuance of present conditions.

He declared his entire agreement with the principle of the housing bill, but regarded the real problem that the house was to be tackled in the debate. There are similar disregarded conditions in rural Ontario calling for investigation, and he hoped the government would undertake the necessary enquiry at once.

Government's Best Asset.

"I am in hearty accord," said Mr. Widdfield, "with the Hydro-Electric legislation of the government. I regard the Hydro as the most creditable thing that the government has done, and when the government deserves credit it will find me always willing to accord it."

With regard to the interprovincial highway from Windsor to the Ottawa, he could not favor the scheme. The farmers should have extra help for the next few years, but if the farmers do not receive this labor there is still much that can be done by the government toward improvement of the general rural conditions.

He was in accord with the Hearst government in its temperance policy. He was in favor of the reservation that there be no retrogression in impartial honest administration. They had not been told how the referendum would be taken.

With regard to Premier Hearst undertaking for a long period duties as the agriculture minister, he held it was by no means necessary to have done so. If there was ever a time of stress in the history of the agriculture and college groups, the period when Premier Hearst controlled the portfolio of agriculture was the time that had been contended that because of the delay in the assistance of the head of the agricultural college the situation was adequately explained. The two departments of agriculture and education must go hand in hand in the opinion of the farmers, who stand ready to give all the assistance in their power to solve the difficulties pressing upon the agricultural community, especially the matter of rural depopulation. (Applause).

The Nickel Tax.

Z. Mageau (Sturgeon Falls) continued his dealing with the nickel question and showing the province had lost $5,000,000 taxes which it was entitled to. He described many of the roads in Northern Ontario as so badly constructed that they are impassable for the greater part of the year. He described the distribution of the liquor, the O.T.A. in the unorganized districts for medicinal purposes as the greatest graft in the province. The consumer pays at the rate of $84 a gallon for a product that costs Gooderham & Potts 88 cents a gallon, plus $1.50 excise. The thing is a farce with huge graft on top of it.

SCORE'S GREAT ESTATE SALE.

There's no flagging in the interest in the great Estate Sale. Civilians are flocking to the sale, and the tag of the mighty opportunity to select suitings and overcoatings, and to buy at a bargain. Score's expert and experienced tailor follows the sale of guaranteed Indigo dyed serges and fine Scotch call-generous discounts. R. Score & Son, Limited, Tailors and Haberdashers, 77 King St. West.

LAST DAY DRIVE FOR AID TO JEWS

Reports of Appalling Destitution Inspire Workers to Greater Effort.

Today the workers of the "Helping Hand Fund" for the relief of the destitute in Palestine, will make a final appeal to the people of Toronto. Latest reports by wire from Palestine bring news of appalling destitution and misery. Ottawa to date has given fifteen thousand dollars to the fund. The Toronto committee here has been working hard the way, as usual. Among the suggestions received yesterday, there was one from the inmates of the Home for Aged Women, with a letter of good wishes for the success of the campaign.

SPENCE CASE ADJUDGED.

The case against Rev. Ben Spence for publishing "The Parasite," was adjourned until next Tuesday in police court yesterday morning. The adjournment will be made of one day, and it is anticipated the case will be proceeded with Wednesday morning.

HEAVY M.S.A. FINE.

Sam S. Needle, a Russian, failed to register under the M.S.A., and yesterday morning in police court, Magistrate Kingsford fined him $350 and costs for three months.
