HAMILTON HAPPENINGS

Sudden Death of Henry Perkins Arouses Suspicions - Death of George McKeand.

Hamilton, Jan. 9 .- (Special.) -At the assize court this evening The Herald won out in the libel suit brought by William Hopkins, a bridge tender at the beach, the jury bringing in a verdict for the defendant, saddling the costs upon the plaintiff. The article complained of was to the effect that Hopkins had been the victim of an outrage, being pelted by rotten eggs because he was slow at turning the bridge for small boats. Most of the information was furnished in a typewritten statement. It turned out that Hopkins was not the victim of the egg throwing, and The Herald promptly apologized. Justice Clute told the jurors that they had to decide whether the article was written with malice, if it was written in good faith, if reasonable care had been taken to find the truth of the story and if ample apology had been made. The ample apology had been made. The citizens. jury decided in less than an hour In Ne
