Blankets and Flannels!

Just when you need goods most we sell them cheapest. On Monday morning we shall inaugurate a special sale for two weeks only of Blankets and Flannels at prices we never attempted to offer before. With the unlimited capital at our command, we have recently effected several very advantageous purchases that have materially reduced the cost of the goods. For the sake of the increased trade it will bring us we are satisfied to sell them at a much smaller margin of profit than usual. You may depend upon it that prices are the lowest we ever quoted for equal qualities. We have prepared for an unusual two weeks' selling in Blankets and Flannels, and these values will give us all the business we expect:

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST BRITISH SHIPPING.

The chief feature of the preferential tariff seems to be the innumerable perplexities in its working. Those who import British goods find that statutory declarations of British origin are necessary, and these are annoying to the maker of the goods and expensive to the importer.

Still another obstacle to the declared purpose of the tariff, i.e. a preference to Britain, is its practical discrimination against British trade routes. The one-eighth reduction is only granted on goods coming direct from the country of origin. Now, it is in Britain, and to a less extent in Continental Europe, to have all the goods shipped to Canada from a central point in England. London is the mart of the world. The average English free-trader is as proud of the immense profits enjoyed by the country as an ocean carrier as he is of his fiscal policy. But the Canadian tariff, as now administered, says to the French, Belgian or German firm, who have sold goods to Canadian merchants: If you ship via England the goods will pay a higher duty than if they are sent by a foreign line direct from a French or German port. As long, therefore, as the present arrangement continues in force the tariff discriminates against British shipping. Possibly this was not contemplated by the Government; it may not have occurred to the Ministers. But even so, the whole experience with the new tariff points the moral that a government which attempts to deal with a question as broad as this, without a careful study of conditions and results has been made.

SCARBORO' AND BACK WAS THE ORDER OF THE trip, and when the green-clad historic heights were reached, and the Cleopatra sailed, the scene was a most picturesque one. The Cleopatra, a lovely, dark-eyed English girl, in large, black picture hat, Madame Russell Garner, of New York; Canon Adams of Lenoxville, N.Y.; Campbell McDonald, Mrs. Porter Hart of Cheltenham, Prof. Barker, Prof. Frederick of Pennsylvania University, a man who looks like a Viking in coloring and splendid physique; Mr. Frederick Deverell, London, Eng.; Dr. Orlean, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Squibb; Prof. Mills, York; Miss H. McDonald, Miss Jessie McDonald; Miss Foster, Buffalo, and many others.
